UNITED STATES SENATE SELECT COMMITTEE
TO STUDY GOVERNMENTAL OPERATIONS WITH RESPECT TO INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES (SSC)

RE: SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES - DOMESTIC TARGETS

Reference is made to SSC letter dated September 22, 1975, from Mr. John T. Elliff, Director, Domestic Intelligence Task Force, to Mr. Michael E. Shaheen, Jr., Special Counsel for Intelligence Coordination, Office of the Deputy Attorney General, wherein Mr. Elliff made the following request with respect to domestic targets of surreptitious entries conducted by the FBI:

1. Statistics on the volume of such surreptitious entries in inclusive categories such as "subversive," "white hate," organized crime," or "miscellaneous." These statistics should be cleared for public disclosure.

2. Committee access at FBI Headquarters to a complete list of specific targets, represented by the statistics in Item 1, above.

3. Delivery of the Chairman and Vice Chairman of the list of specific targets requested for access in Item 2, above.

With respect to this request, from 1942 to April, 1968, surreptitious entry was utilized by the FBI on a highly selective basis in the conduct of certain investigations. Available records and recollection of Special Agents at FBI Headquarters (FBIHQ), who have knowledge of such activities, identify the targets of surreptitious entries as domestic subversive and white hate groups. Surreptitious entry was used to obtain secret and closely guarded organizational and financial information, and membership lists and monthly reports of target organizations.

Re: Surreptitious Entries - Domestic Targets

When a Special Agent in Charge (SAC) of a field office considered surreptitious entry necessary to the conduct of an investigation, he would make his request to the appropriate Assistant Director at FBIHQ, justifying the need for an entry and assuring it could be accomplished safely with full security. In accordance with instructions of Director J. Edgar Hoover, a memorandum outlining the facts of the request was prepared for approval of Mr. Hoover, or Mr. Tolson, the Associate Director. Subsequently, the memorandum was filed in the Assistant Director's office under a "Do Not File" procedure, and thereafter destroyed. In the field office, the SAC maintained a record of approval as a control device in his office safe. At the next yearly field office inspection, a review of these records would be made by the Inspector to insure that the SAC was not acting without prior FBIHQ approval in conducting surreptitious entries. Upon completion of this review, these records were destroyed.

There is no central index, file, or document listing surreptitious entries conducted against domestic targets. To reconstruct these activities, it is necessary to rely upon recollections of Special Agents who have knowledge of such activities, and review of those files identified by recollection as being targets of surreptitious entries. Since policies and procedures followed in reporting of information resulting from a surreptitious entry were designed to conceal the activity from persons not having a need to know, information contained in FBI files relating to entries is in most instances incomplete and difficult to identify.

Reconstruction of instances of surreptitious entry through review of files and recollections of Special Agent personnel at FBIHQ who have knowledge of such activities, show the following categories of targets and the approximate number of entries conducted against each:

1. At least fourteen domestic subversive targets were the subject of at least 238 entries from 1942 to April, 1968. In addition, at least three domestic subversive target were the subject of numerous entries from October, 1952, to June, 1966. Since there exists no precise record of entries, we are unable to retrieve an accurate accounting of their number.

Re: Surreptitious Entries - Domestic Targets

2. One white hate group was the target of an entry in March, 1966.

A recent survey of policies and procedures of the General Investigative and Special Investigative Divisions at FBIHQ with respect to surreptitious entries, disclosed that with the exception of entries made for the purpose of installation of authorized electronic surveillances, the technique of surreptitious entry has not been used in criminal investigations.

A list of specific targets has been prepared for review by Senators Church and Tower, and appropriate FBIHQ officials are available for a discussion of this list.

NOTE:

A memorandum containing specific targets has been prepared and is available for use by FBIHQ officials should Senator Church and Tower request a meeting to examine the list.

Reference is made to Legal Counsel memorandum to Mr. J. B. Adams, 11/20/75, captioned as above, requesting Intelligence Division review 26 items requested by the plaintiff including one item for documents on surreptitious entries.

PURPOSE:

To obtain approval for the forwarding to all offices of the attached airtel which requests each office to review field office files for any documents from 1960 to the present relevant to any surreptitious entries against the plaintiffs.

BACKGROUND:

Plaintiffs, the Socialist Workers Party (SWP), its young group, the Young Socialist Alliance (YSA), and fifteen individual plaintiffs, filed captioned civil action during 7/73, alleging that defendants, the FBI, other Governmental agencies and officials have denied them constitutional rights as a political party. They seek substantial damages as well as broad injunctive relief.

In connection with pretrial discovery proceedings, we are attempting to locate any documents which may exist relating to surreptitious entries or "bag jobs" which may have been perpetrated against the plaintiffs. We have already advised the plaintiffs that there is no central index, file, or document listing surreptitious entries directed against domestic organizations. The reporting of information from such entries was designed to conceal the method by which the information was obtained. Because such information is not retrievable at Headquarters, it is necessary for each office which may have documents relevant to this lawsuit to conduct reviews of their own records.

Re: Socialist Workers Party, et. al. v.
Attorney General, et. al.
100-16

There is no way the necessary information can be obtained at Headquarters to frame the necessary response to plaintiffs' request. Consequently, all field offices are being requested to review their records on the named plaintiffs and to forward their results to Headquarters by COB 1/23/76. It is anticipated the U.S. Attorney at New York will shortly thereafter be required to furnish a response on this matter to the plaintiffs.

RECOMMENDATION:

That the attached airtel be approved and sent.

Do you and each of you solemnly swear that all of the testimony that you will give in these proceedings will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. ADAMS. I do.

Mr. WANNALL. I do.

The CHAIRMAN. After yesterday's hearing I asked the staff to furnish me with the statutory authority that presently exists that could be said to relate to the FBI's intelligence activities, which was of course the subject of yesterday's hearings. And I am furnished in response to that request title XVIII, section 533, of the United States Code, which reads as follows:

The Attorney General may appoint officials: 1. to detect and prosecute crimes against the United States; 2. to assist in the protection of the person of the President; and 3. to conduct such other investigations regarding official matters under the control of the Department of Justice and the Department of State as may be directed by the Attorney General.

Now yesterday, Mr. Wannall, we were told about a series of activities that were undertaken by the FBI, and indeed, initiated within the FBI, the purpose of which was to harass and discredit Dr. Martin Luther King. I am not referring to the results of any FBI investigative activity, but rather, I am referring to these kinds of initiatives that were undertaken for the purpose of either harassing or embarrassing or otherwise discrediting Dr. King himself. My first question is: was Dr. King, in his advocacy of equal rights for black citizens, advocating a course of action that in the opinion of the FBI constituted a crime?

TESTIMONY OF JAMES B. ADAMS, DEPUTY ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF THE FBI, AND RAYMOND WANNALL, ASSISTANT DIRECTOR, FBI INTELLIGENCE DIVISION

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. So he was not then thought to be engaged in any criminal activity. In fact, he was preaching, as I remember those days, nonviolence, was he not, as a method of achieving equal rights for black citizens?

Mr. ADAMS. That's right, his advocacy for civil rights.

The CHAIRMAN. His advocacy of civil rights was nonviolent and therefore legal in character.

Mr. ADAMS. That was not the basis of our investigation of him.

The CHAIRMAN. But as you have said, he was not engaging in any unlawful activity in connection with his advocacy of equal rights for black citizens. Is that correct?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, is it true that at one time the FBI undertook to discourage an American college from conferring an honorary degree on Dr. King?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. On what legal basis does the FBI have a right to interfere, in an effort to discourage a college from conferring an honorary degree upon a man like Dr. Martin Luther King, who was not engaging in or suspected of engaging in criminal activity?

Mr. ADAMS. I know of no basis.

The CHAIRMAN. Why did the FBI do it?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, we have to approach two parts, in my estimation, Senator Church. One, the basis for our investigation of Martin Luther King, which was to determine Communist influence on him, my hands are tied in discussing that, somewhat on the basis that there is certain information which today, from an ongoing operation is sensitive and which, of course, we have made known to you and certain staff members. I would like to say on the basis that from our review we feel that we initially had a basis for investigating Martin Luther King. Now as far as the activities which you are asking about, the discrediting, I know of no basis for that and I will not attempt to justify it.

The CHAIRMAN. You never made a finding, did you, that Martin Luther King was a Communist?

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir, we did not. We were investigating Communist influence and the possible effect on him. We never made such a determination.

The CHAIRMAN. Very well. Then there was no justification for the FBI to interfere?

Mr. ADAMS. To discredit him.

The CHAIRMAN. In conferring an honorary degree upon him?

Mr. ADAMS. I cannot find any justification for that.

The CHAIRMAN. Is it true that the FBI on another occasion intervened in an attempt to prevent Dr. Martin Luther King from seeing the Pope?

Mr. ADAMS. I believe that is correct, sir. There were approximately 25 incidents, I believe, of actions taken in this regard. I think Mr. Schwarz has those available, that I would lump basically all of them into the same situation of I see no statutory basis or no basis of justification for the activity.

The CHAIRMAN. But what was the motive, there being no statutory or other valid basis? What was the motive for attempting to prevent Dr. Martin Luther King from visiting with the Pope?

Mr. ADAMS. In looking at absolute motive, I don't think the files which we have reviewed and made available to the committee, give me a clear picture of what the motive was. I think that there were, the motive was certainly known to Mr. Hoover. It was known to one top official who is no longer with the Bureau and maybe known to others, all of whom have been interviewed by the committee. Matters bearing on what might have been the real motive or the possible motive, I again feel, because of reasons of privacy and delicacy, are not a proper subject of discussion at a public hearing. I think we know what could have influenced this, but one, the primary individual, Mr. Hoover, is not with us. Individuals who were closest to him in this effort are not with us. And the committee itself has interviewed them. So I really am not in a position to discuss this motive issue.

The CHAIRMAN. Nevertheless, you would agree that whatever the motive, it was a very improper thing to do.

Mr. ADAMS. I cannot find any justification, no, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Is it true that after Dr. Martin Luther King had been nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize, that an anonymous letter was sent to him and to Coretta King, his wife, 34 days before he was to receive the Nobel Peace Prize? [See footnote p. 21.]

Mr. ADAMS. I do not think those dates are correct.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, it was sent—

Mr. ADAMS. It was before he was to receive it. I think 34 days—upon reconstruction by one of the members of my staff, 34 days would have been Christmas Day, and whether that 34 days—

The CHAIRMAN. It is hard to believe that such a letter would be written on Christmas Day.

Mr. ADAMS. It was not written on Christmas Day, but 34 days—the Nobel Peace Prize I think was on December 10, the letter—34 days from the date of the mailing of the letter as has been reconstructed, as best as possible, would have been Christmas Day.

The CHAIRMAN. Was the letter written and sent by the FBI?

Mr. ADAMS. We have no information to that effect. All we know is that the draft, or original, of what may have been the letter was found in papers of the FBI left after a former official departed the FBI. We know that based upon inquiries that we have conducted and you have conducted, we know that the letter was not—I mean it was in connection with other material. So I think we can assume—

The CHAIRMAN. Other materials which were sent.

Mr. ADAMS. That's right. So I can assume that the letter was sent. I have determined nothing from my review of the files, and neither has your staff, to my knowledge, or has been reported back to me which would indicate that this action was duly recorded in any file or was a part of any authorized program or anything else. This is a void that I do not think any of us has been satisfactorily able to resolve.

The CHAIRMAN. We know the letter appeared in the files. We know that the letter was received. We know it was associated with other matters that were sent by the FBI to Dr. Martin Luther King.

Mr. ADAMS. The letter was never in our files in the sense that it was entered into the official files of the FBI. It was among papers—

The CHAIRMAN. It was among papers.

Mr. ADAMS. Left by an individual who had departed.

The CHAIRMAN. That individual being Mr. Sullivan?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. The letter read: "King, there is only one thing left for you to do. You know what it is. You have just 34 days in which to do it, this exact number has been selected for a specific reason. It has definite practical significance. You are done. There is but one way out for you."

Now, if you had received such a letter, how would you have interpreted it? What would you have thought it meant?

Mr. ADAMS. I have read that statement. I have heard the conclusions of your staff that it was a suicide urging. I can't find any basis upon which they drew that conclusion. I think that, approaching it from an objective standpoint, as I read it. I don't know what it means. I think rather than a conclusion it should be a speculation in a realm of possibilities as to what was intended, but I cannot—I don't understand the basis for it. It is a possibility, but I certainly would not reach such a conclusion from my reading of that statement.

The CHAIRMAN. Now, if you had received a letter of this kind and it had been directed to you, and you were in Dr. King's position and you read, "King, there is only one thing left for you to do. You know what it is. You have just 34 days in which to do it." Now, that happened to correspond to the time before which he was to receive the Nobel Peace Prize. What would you think that it meant?

Mr. ADAMS. I would have to consider what I was being accused of. I would have to consider what the facts were. I would have to consider what the intent was of the person writing such a note, coming just before Christmas. I don't know if it means, it is an urging to repent from something this person, whoever he was, that had sent it, I have no idea what it meant.

The CHAIRMAN. It is certainly no Christmas card, is it?

Mr. ADAMS. It is certainly no Christmas card.

The CHAIRMAN. It reads, "You are done. There is but one way out for you." What does that mean?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't know. I don't know if it means confession. I don't know if it means suicide, as has been raised. I have no idea. You have the statement. I am not in a position to say. I haven't interviewed anyone that was with him at the time he received it.

The CHAIRMAN. Would you disown this statement and say that any connection the FBI had with it was utterly improper and grotesque?

Mr. ADAMS. I certainly would say it was improper, and I can't justify its being prepared or sent, yes, sir.

Senator MONDALE. Mr. Chairman, if I might just interrupt.

The CHAIRMAN. Senator Mondale.

Senator MONDALE. What I asked the staff yesterday was what Dr. King took it to mean. I have no knowledge of what those who framed this letter intended, and those who were with him at the time he read it, including Congressman Young who was one of his assistants at the time, said that they took it to mean a suggestion that he take his own life.

Mr. ADAMS. I am not in possession of that information. I am being put in a position, I don't know what the staff determined. They did not report back to me on their findings.

The CHAIRMAN. The letter will speak for itself. You personally have disowned it.

Mr. ADAMS. Absolutely.

The CHAIRMAN. It was a highly improper thing for the FBI to be connected with in any way. Do you agree with that?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir; yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Now, without going through the many different and specific undertakings that were intended to publicly discredit Dr. King, because my time will not permit that, and others will want to question you on other specific matters, I have just one further question to put to you. Yesterday there was a document of the FBI which suggested that in the opinion of the Bureau, Dr. King was an unsuitable leader for the civil rights movement, and that another man should be looked for, and indeed, another candidate was actually suggested to Mr. Hoover as one who should be promoted in various ways so that he might assume the leadership of this movement.

Now, can you tell me of anything in the law, or any other justification, given the mission of the FBI, that would entitle it to decide who should lead political movements in this country or to undertake to degrade a man who had fought and won such leadership and had the support of a great many black people in this country, and white people as well, and to substitute in his place someone of the FBI's selection or someone who stood in the FBI's favor? Can you think of any justification for such activity on the part of a law enforcement agency?

Mr. ADAMS. I can't think of any offhand; no, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Neither can I, Senator Tower?

Senator TOWER. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

What is your understanding of the underlying causes of the feud between Mr. Hoover and Dr. King?

Mr. ADAMS. Senator Tower, I feel if we got into any discussion of that, I think we would have to take into consideration certain material which I feel should not be disclosed publicly, and I would respectfully ask that a question of motive of Mr. Hoover and the spat with Mr. King should be discussed in executive session, if at all.

Senator TOWER. In 1965, Attorney General Katzenbach was informed by Mr. Hoover of the Bureau's surveillance of Dr. King. What was the Attorney General's reaction? What was his position once he was informed by Mr. Hoover of this surveillance?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't recall having seen it.

Senator TOWER. In other words, did the Attorney General give any direction to the Bureau in the matter that you know of?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir. I know that, of course, on the wiretapping on Martin Luther King, it was approved by the Attorney General. I know that the President of the United States and the Attorney General specifically discussed their concern with Dr. King over Communist influence on him. I do know there was concern, but I don't tie in this date, 1965.

Senator TOWER. Do you know whether or not Mr. Hoover ever sought direct authorization from Mr. Katzenbach for this very sensitive surveillance of Dr. King?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't know. Attorney General Kennedy approved the actual surveillance that was instituted on Dr. King. I don't know of any correspondence between Attorney General Katzenbach—

Senator TOWER. Or any personal communication between them that would have indicated the level of the Attorney General's involvement?

Mr. ADAMS. No. If my recollection serves me correctly, as far as Attorney General Kennedy was concerned, he requested coverage on Dr. King. The Bureau responded with a request in writing, which is our normal procedure. He declined to approve that request, and then we came back later, a few months later, and requested it again, at which time he did approve. That is my recollection of that.

Senator TOWER. Why did the Attorney General change his mind? Do you have any idea, or is that again a matter of sensitivity?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't know why he actually changed his mind from originally requesting, then declining when it was submitted, and then approving it on the second go-round. It may be in the files. If it is, I would be glad to see what I could determine.

Senator TOWER. If you could, we would like to have that. [See footnote, p. 21.]

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

Senator TOWER. Mr. Adams, you have been familiar with the Bureau's domestic intelligence work for many years. How did the Bureau come to launch the COINTELPRO, and what in essence did COINTELPRO accomplish?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, the program as such, as I can reconstruct from the files, was indicated as concern over conspiratorial efforts of certain groups, and a decision made that perhaps more affirmative action should be taken to neutralize violence which was becoming of more concern to the FBI in that regard. I believe these are some of the basic considerations that went into the launching of the COINTELPRO.

Now, as far as the first one, which was the Communist Party, of course, there was the concern here to neutralize the effectiveness of the Communist Party in the United States. In fact, out of all of the COINTELPRO operations that were approved, 50 percent of them were directed at the Communist Party. The bulk of the concern initially was with the Communist Party, and it was a desire to create factionalism within the Communist Party and try to neutralize its efforts. The Communist Party—Congress itself still has a determination on the record as to the threat of the Communist Party in a statute. The Supreme Court has held that the Communist Party is an instrument of the Soviet Union. The Soviet Union certainly has not relinquished its interest in the United States as a target. All of these considerations went into should we do something not only to follow the activities of the Communist Party, but should we destroy its effectiveness in the United States. That was the first program, I believe, that was initiated.

Senator TOWER. Now, did the Bureau ever seek direction and counsel from the Attorney General on any of its COINTELPRO efforts or specific programs?

Mr. ADAMS. As best as I can reconstruct, Senator, there was no direct authority requested from any Attorney General for the initiation of these programs, and it is only a question, as your staff presented yesterday, that the Attorneys General, Presidents, Congress, had been made aware of certain aspects of programs after the fact and those were primarily concerned with the Communist Party, and on one other organization but not the New Left and these other types. So I cannot find any evidence, and I have no reason to believe, that there would be any evidence that the Bureau initiated these programs other than as an internal decision.

Senator TOWER. Were reports on these programs made to the Attorney General? Was he informed of them? Was he kept informed on a continuing basis?

Mr. ADAMS. He was kept informed by letters, which again the staff has alluded to, letters reporting certain developments. For instance, one of them that went to one Attorney General, reading of that letter outlined almost in complete detail Klan activities, activities taken to disrupt the Klan. It used terms of neutralize, disrupt. There were a clear explanation of what we were doing against the Klan in that regard.

Senator TOWER. How is it that you came to believe that you had the authority to neutralize or disrupt these organizations rather than proceed against them frontally through prosecuting them for violations of the law?

Mr. ADAMS. I guess you would have to say, in a position like this, that it is just the Smith Act of 1940, which is designed to prevent revolutionary groups from advocating the overthrow of the Government, and then subsequent interpretations as to the constitutionality of it leaves us with a statute still on the books that proscribes certain actions, but yet the degree of proof necessary to operate under the few remaining areas is such that there was no satisfactory way to proceed, and it was an area where—

The CHAIRMAN. Will the Senator yield at that point, please? What you are saying, Mr. Adams, is that you did not operate within the law because the law didn't give you sufficient latitude. Therefore, you undertook direct action to disrupt and otherwise undermine these organizations.

Senator TOWER. Did you proceed on the assumption that these organizations would eventually break the law, and therefore you sought to neutralize and disrupt them before they did?

Mr. ADAMS. I can't say that, sir. I think that the investigations of them were based on this belief, that they might break the law or they were breaking the law. The disruptive activities, I can't find where we were able to relate to that. What it boils down to is what we have gotten into a question on before: in our review of the situation we see men of the FBI recognizing or having a good-faith belief that there was immediate danger to the United States.

Senator TOWER. All right, but to repair to Senator Church's question, you don't say that you really had specific legal authority?

Mr. ADAMS. No. And this is the hang-up with the whole program, and which we are not trying to justify, that there is some statutory basis. I would not make that effort whatsoever. All I'm trying to do is say that at the time it was initiated, we had men who felt that there was an immediate danger to the country. They felt they had a responsibility to act, and having felt this responsibility, did act. And this is the whole problem we have at the present time, because we do have one, we can see good evidence of their belief there was a threat. We had cities being burned; we had educational institutions being bombed. We had deaths occurring from all of these activities. We had a situation that we didn't know what the end was going to be.

We never can look around the corner in intelligence operations. We don't know if ultimately this might bring the destruction of the country. All we know is we had an extremely violent time. So I don't find any basis in my mind to argue with their good-faith belief they were faced with a danger.

Now, when they move over to the second area of responsibility, here is where we have the problem, and I think it is the whole purpose of this committee, the Attorney General, Mr. Kelley, all of us realizing we can't operate in these areas where we feel responsibility, but we don't have a mandate by Congress. So in that area, this feeling of responsibility I feel came from the fact that Presidents, as your staff said yesterday, Presidents, Congressmen, the Attorney General, no one really provided direction and guidance or instructions don't do this, do this, don't do that, or what are you doing and how are you doing it.

For instance, there is some feeling on the part of some that our whole domestic intelligence operations was secret. The COINTELPRO operation was. I mean, I think we all agree that this was, to be effective, they felt it should be secret. But back in our—this is printed appropriation testimony which went to the members of the committee. It was mailed out to newspapers, friends, anyone that was interested in it, back in 1967 talking about Internal Security's operations, the New Left movement, Young Socialist Alliance, Chicago trial, nationwide demonstrations, student agitation, antiwar activities, the Committee of Returned Volunteers, Communist Party, U.S.A., Progressive Party, Socialist Party, extreme organizations, Black Panther Party.

All of these items and statements about extremists, white extremists and hate-type groups, the Republic of New Africa, Minuteman, our coverage of subversive organizations—there are several groups, organizations, and movements which I discussed showed the wide coverage we must maintain to follow on their activities and changing tactics, and in spite of the proliferation of these organizations, our informant coverage at all levels has been of great value and assistance, enabling us to keep abreast of our investigative responsibilities. This is the same way through all of our public appropriation testimony. We have told the world we are investigating black hate groups, New Left groups. So, I merely mention this to try to put in the frame of reference of these men, feeling, they know we are investigating them. They didn't tell them, though, in sufficient detail other than scantily before the Appropriations Committee, what we were doing to disrupt these activities, and my feeling is that the men recognized the danger, they pointed out the danger to the world. They said, we are investigating these organizations, and they felt then that the comfortable climate of leave it up to the FBI, we should do something more. And that is what we are looking for guidelines on, the Attorney General, Mr. Kelley, you, to give us the guidelines under which we should operate.

Now, there are certain guidelines that we don't need to be given, we shouldn't do this. We don't have such activities today, programs designed to disrupt and neutralize in the domestic intelligence field. But beyond that, we need guidelines on what does the whole of Congress, representative of the people, by passing of legislation say this is the FBI's role in domestic intelligence.

Senator TOWER. Mr. Chairman, my time has long since expired. But I would like to note that I saw Mr. Kelley on the "Today Show" this morning indicating strong support for a response to congressional oversight, and that is a healthy attitude.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, I think it must come because, as you have conceded, you shouldn't have ever had to have had the guidelines that the Federal Government's chief law enforcement agency ought not to disobey the law, and really, you don't need explicit guidelines to tell you that, or you shouldn't. Wouldn't you agree?

Mr. ADAMS. I would say that looking at it today, we should have looked at it that way yesterday, but I do feel, I don't have any doubt about the good faith of people recognizing the danger, feeling they had a responsibility, no matter whose fault it was, our's internally or because we weren't given the supervision we should have been given, and taking what they considered to be appropriate action.

The CHAIRMAN. Senator Hart.

Senator HART of Michigan. I should apologize both to witnesses and my colleagues on the committee for scrambling around loosely, but in explanation to the witnesses, I have not been able to give attention to the evolution of the files that are now at hand until the last couple of days, and I am not sure what is in the files for the public record, and which of the materials I have been shown in the last couple of days are still under seal. So just out of memory I am going to summarize certain activities which have been acknowledged that the Bureau undertook, but without being specific with respect to location and names. I do it for this reason: it is right that the committee and the press be worried about the treatment of a Nobel Prize winner, Dr. King; but there are an awful lot of people who never got close to a Nobel Prize whose names are Jones and Smith, that my review of the files show had violence done to their first amendment rights. Nobel Prize winners will always get protection, but Joe Potatoes doesn't, and the Committee should focus on him, too.

Included in these COINTELPRO activities were, anonymous letters, drafted by Bureau offices in the field, sent to headquarters in Washington, approved, and then put in the mail, intended to break up marriages, not of Dr. King but of Mary and John Jones because one or the other was thought to be a dissenter, might have dressed strangely or showed up at meetings in company of others who dressed strangely. Anonymous letters were sent to university officials and to the several newspapers in that city to prevent university facilities from being made available to a speaker of whom the Bureau disapproved, and it was not a topflight, bigname speaker.

In that case, an anonymous letter was sent to me making protest. Being an anonymous letter, it never occurred to me that it came from the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The series of anonymous letters, one with the spelling very poor, the grammar sloppy, and another more sophisticated; protesting the employment of a man by a city, alleging that he was a Communist or came from a Communist family, and there are loyal Americans out of work, what are you doing, mayor. And to the press, isn't this an outrage. And again the letter, the anonymous letter sent to me saying what are you going to do about this. There are loyal Democrats in this town who need work. And in that case I happened to have known the man about whom the protest was made, and the Bureau's facts were wrong as hell on that man's loyalty. He was as loyal as you or I. Now, yes or no, are those actions regarded now by the Bureau as within bounds?

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir.

Senator HART of Michigan. Why were they regarded as within bounds when they were approved by the Bureau?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, I think even under the guidelines of COINTELPRO, as established, the programs were not designed for the purpose of harassment of an individual. The memorandums indicate they were designed to disrupt the organizations. Some of the turn downs were turned down on this specific wording. This is mere harassment.

The rationale would have been—and of course, here, I say some of these you mentioned wouldn't even appear to me to meet the criteria of the program and should have been disavowed, even under the existence of the program. However, in the total context of the program, activities were to be directed toward the organization itself, but we do not do that at the present time.

Senator HART of Michigan. Yes. But everything I have summarized rather poorly, was approved by the Bureau at the time by headquarters, not by the field office agents.

Mr. ADAMS. I do not think that there were improper actions taken under the program, even under the program as it existed. Mr. Kelley has so stated his recognition of that fact. The Attorney General certainly has. Yet the majority of the actions taken, even the Department concluded were lawful and legal, proper investigation activities, but are—

Senator HART of Michigan. You see, my feeling is that it isn't a question of techniques that are bad. The concept of the program seems to do violence to the first amendment because everything you did sought to silence someone or threaten someone to silence, or deny someone a platform, or create an atmosphere in which people were in fact afraid to assemble. Now, sometimes law enforcement, legitimate law enforcement, has what we call this chilling effect, when it is legitimate law enforcement. Oftentimes that chilling effect is a necessary, though regrettable, side effect. But what I am talking about, and what these files are full of, are actions the only purpose of which is to chill. It isn't in pursuit of any crime at all. Indeed, when a court of general jurisdiction approved the use of that university premise by the speaker, the Bureau had stirred so much controversy with its anonymous letters, when that judge wrote an order, after the sponsoring group went to court, what was the Bureau's reaction from headquarters? Investigate the judge.

Mr. ADAMS. I'm not familiar with that fact.

Senator HART of Michigan. Well, neither was I until last night.

Mr. ADAMS. The instruction was to investigate the judge?

Senator HART of Michigan. This is the sort of thing that I came out of the hospital to find, and it is the sort of thing, as I said yesterday, that my children have been telling me for years you were busy doing, and I simply didn't believe them. And they were right and I was wrong.

Mr. ADAMS. Well, there were about 3,200 activities, and about 2,300 I believe or so were approved under the COINTELPRO, and over 50 percent were addressed to the Communist Party. That leaves 1,000. And out of 1,000, perhaps, I don't know what the actual figure was of ones that just clearly stand out as improper under the program, even as it existed at the time, but I do feel that—well, it is a very difficult area.

Senator HART of Michigan. My time is up, too, I am sure, but regarding the Communist Party, if your theory continues to be that any socially active group of citizens who organize, whether women's libbers or fight the bomb or anything else, might be a target for infiltration by the Communist Party and therefore you can move in your agents. That means, almost not as an overstatement, that any and every citizen's activity could be made the target of the kind of activity that I have just described, because every individual is apt, during his lifetime, to engage in violence. If that is justification, then you are justified in running surveillance on everybody.

Mr. ADAMS. Well, that was not—

Senator HART of Michigan. Everybody has that privilege, and that clearly is a police-state concept.

Mr. ADAMS. That is not our criteria.

Senator HART of Michigan. All right, but if the criteria is three or four of us get together and we have a sort of nutty idea, just the kind of thing the Communists would like to exploit, and therefore you seek to justify shutting off the forum for that group or to survey it, the potential for Communist infiltration, then, if that continues to be your theory, then I say you are going to pursue the same wretched road that these files show you have been pursuing before. If that is the predicate, the fact that a Soviet or Marxist or Maoist Hottentot is liable to think there is an idea that we can exploit, then you people are going to be spending how many man-hours, how many tax dollars doing the kind of things that I summarized so briefly here? That, in my book, is the 20th century version of what the Founding Fathers intended to prevent when they wrote the first amendment. Is it the position of the Bureau when a Communist participates, associates with, and promotes an idea, that this justifies you trying to figure out if you can bust up a marriage if two of the people are in the group?

Mr. ADAMS. It does not, and it is not our criteria; no, sir.

Senator HART of Michigan. What does it justify?

Mr. ADAMS. It justifies our doing nothing in the way of COIN TELPRO activities. I still feel it has a justification, that you agree with, to investigate the Communist Party. It is when you get into the disruptive areas, where the program does beyond investigation, that we have no statutory authority.

Senator HART of Michigan. Well, we have been emphasizing COINTELPRO. Would it justify tailing these people?

Mr. ADAMS. What, just a—

Senator HART of Michigan. Or putting an informant into the group?

Mr. ADAMS. If it is a Communist group?

Senator HART of Michigan. No, if it's me and somebody else that thinks we oughtn't to have something that a majority of people think we should. We organize and you people say, "Well, there is something the Communists can take and run with."

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir.

Senator HART of Michigan. Does that justify a surveillance of them?

Mr. ADAMS. It does not, and we would not. Before we would even open a preliminary inquiry, we should have an indication that the Communist Party has attempted to infiltrate or is infiltrating. In other words, where you have some evidence of a subversive group participating in the functions of that organization, and there are grey areas here, in the spectrum of anything where I am sure we have opened investigations where we should not because there has been scant evidence of such infiltration. And this is a supervisory problem. It is a criteria problem. And it is also an oversight problem which we are responding to.

Senator HART of Michigan. My time is up and I haven't gotten into some of the other material.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, Senator, you have not been with us—

Senator HART of Michigan. No, no, I just—

The CHAIRMAN. If you want more time, you have a lot of time stored up. If you want to use it now, go right ahead.

Senator HART of Michigan. Well, let me ask the justification for this sort of business. I have been talking about the things I have seen in the files that bear on direct denial of first amendment rights, and again, this does not deal with the treatment of a distinguished American. Indeed, it involves groups that are generally viewed with very sharp disapproval. The ground rules for the treatment should be precisely the same, whether he is a good, popular guy, or a dirty, smelly guy. What was the purpose of the Bureau in trying to stir up strife—perhaps I shouldn't say what was the purpose—what possible justification for the Bureau trying to sic the Black Panthers on that outfit out in California, or between the Black Panthers and the Blackstone Rangers in Chicago? Was it with the hope that by fomenting it they would kill each other off?

Mr. ADAMS. Absolutely not, and I think the committee staff can inform you that during their review of all of these matters they haven't come up with one instance of violence resulting from any of these actions. In that particular case there was a communication in the same file, which I believe the staff had access to, which showed that we did get information that one of these groups was going to put out a contract on one of the others, and we notified the police and the individual of the fact that their life was in danger. None of our programs have contemplated violence, and the instructions prohibited it, and the record of turndowns of recommended actions in some instances specifically say that we do not approve this action because if we take it, it could result in harm to the individual. So, I think this is one charge—and the staff did not make such a charge, I might add, when they presented the picture—but I think any inference that we were trying to result in violence is wrong.

Senator HARR of Michigan. Let me explain for the record why I reached the conclusion I did.

Mr. ADAMS. The wording of that memorandum—

Senator HARR of Michigan. And why I continue to hold to that conclusion.

On January 30, 1969, the Bureau headquarters in Washington approved sending an anonymous letter to the leader of the Blackstone Rangers, Jeff Fort, which indicated that the Black Panthers had put a contract out on his life as a result of conflicts between the two organizations [exhibit 28<sup>1</sup>]. Now, you say that was to warn him. I ask, wasn't the principal purpose of the letter to encourage the Rangers to shoot some or all of the leadership of the Panthers? Otherwise, what does this quote mean, and I will read it. It is from a memorandum from the Chicago office of the FBI asking approval to undertake this. Here is the way it reads: "It is believed that the above" this anonymous tip that a contract is out on you. "It is believed that the above may intensify the degree of animosity between the two groups and occasion Fort to take retaliatory actions which could disrupt the BBP." the Black Panthers "or lead to reprisals against its leadership. Consideration has been given to a similar letter to the Panthers alleging a Ranger plot against Panther leadership. However, it is not felt that this will be productive, principally because the Panthers at present is not believed as violence prone at the Rangers, to whom violent type activity, shooting and the like, are second nature." [Exhibit 29.<sup>2</sup>]

Now, how can you reach any conclusion other than a purpose was to generate the kind of friction that would induce the killing—

Mr. ADAMS. Well, if that purpose was for that rather than generating factionalism, disagreements, disrupting it, it would be contrary to the communication I referred to in the other file, the Black Panthers versus Ellis, where we notified the police of the contract, we notified the individuals of the contract and took every action at our command to prevent direct violence, and also the fact that the files showed that we turned down these situations where violence was involved.

Senator HART of Michigan. Well, we have differing views with respect to motives and the purpose of the Panther situation in Chicago. I still do not understand why we sought to set the Panthers and this US group in California against each other as they were. Also, I don't know whether it is in the record, open or not, what purpose other than to occasion violence moved the Bureau to approve of forged signatures of Communist Party personnel on letters addressed to Mafia-owned businesses attacking the employment practices of those businesses? Why would the Bureau think there was any value to be served in concocting a forged letter? Let us assume Phil Hart is a local Communist in this city. The Bureau forges Phil Hart's name to a racket-owned business, notorious for using muscle, protesting that fellow's business practices. Certainly it was not intended to improve the employment practices.

Mr. ADAMS. I think if the full communication were available, it did show a purpose unrelated to violence. I don't recall the exact wording now, but I think it was to create a lack of support or something like that. This was part of that HOODWINK program. I believe, that was one of four actions that were involved in HOODWINK, and I think there have been some public descriptions of that program that indicate that it was not the greatest thing coming down the pike.

Senator HART of Michigan. Well, that is the sort of thing I found that persuaded me to say very openly that I do not buy the idea that the American people ultimately are responsible for that kind of nonsense because I am certain that virtually every family in the country would have screamed in protest no matter how much they disliked Dr. King or the Panthers or the Communists.

Mr. ADAMS. Sir—

Senator HART of Michigan. If they had known that tax money and Federal personnel were busy around the country, notwithstanding bank robberies that were going on at the same time, pounding out that kind of correspondence and inciting that kind of conflict and curbing speech.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you very much, Senator Hart.

Senator Mondale is next.

Senator MONDALE. Mr. Adams, I realize that you were not a part of this particular event. But being an experienced FBI hand, I wonder if you could help us understand the psychology that led to this kind of memorandum.

Mr. ADAMS. I feel it coming, but go ahead.

Senator MONDALE. This is a memorandum to the Director. It has been referred to before. It calls for removing King from his pedestal and replacing him by someone else. The memo is dated January 8, 1964, and was written a week following the time that King was named man of the year by Time Magazine. [See footnote p. 21.]

This memo, as you know, received the following comment from Mr. Hoover: "I am glad to see that light, though it has been delayed, has come to the Domestic Intelligence Division," and so on. I would just quote part of the language and maybe you can help us understand the psychology that led to it. The first part of the memo says: "We have got to remove King from his pedestal." Then it says:

The Negroes will be left without a national leader of sufficiently compelling personality to steer it in a proper direction. This is what could happen but need not happen if the right kind of national negro leader could at this time be gradually developed so as to overthrow Dr. King and be in the position to assume the role of leadership of the Negro people when King has been completely discredited.

For some months I have been thinking about this matter. One day I had an opportunity to explore this from a philosophical and sociological standpoint with X [the name of the leader] whom I have known for some years. As I previously reported, he is a very able fellow and one on whom I can rely. I asked him to give the matter some attention, and if he knew any Negro of outstanding intelligence or ability, let me know and we would have a discussion.

He has submitted to me the name of the above-named person. Enclosed with this memorandum is an outline of X's biography, which is truly remarkable. In scanning this biography, it will be seen that X does have all of the qualifications of the kind of a Negro I have in mind to advance to positions of national leadership.

And skipping:

I want to make it clear at once that I don't propose that the FBI in any way become involved openly as the sponsor of a Negro leader to overshadow Martin Luther King. If this thing can be set up properly without the Bureau in any way becoming directly involved, I think it would be not only a great help to the FBI, but would be a fine thing for the country at large.

While I'm not specifying at this moment, there are various ways in which the FBI could give this entire matter the proper direction and development. There are highly placed contacts at the FBI who it might be very helpful to further such a step. This can be discussed at a later date when I have probed more fully into the possibilities and this recommendation is that approval be given for me to explore the whole matter as set forth above.

And to that Mr. Hoover says:

I'm glad to see the light has finally come. I have struggled for months to get over the fact that the communists were taking over the racial movements but our experts here couldn't or wouldn't see it.

Now I think you testified earlier that you do not accept this as proper FBI activity, but can you help us understand how at one point in American history someone thought it was proper, apparently including the Director?

Mr. ADAMS. I would have to say for one thing that this gets into the real motive of the discrediting of Martin Luther King, which I don't feel can be fully explored. I think that the people most directly involved in that are not available, because I don't know from my experience what they had in mind in this regard. I have no doubt from this memorandum and other memorandums that the two individuals involved felt very strongly that Martin Luther King was a threat to the success of the Negro movement and that steps should be taken to get him out of that—what the reason for it was or the motivation, I am just not in a position to say. I do say it is improper to inject yourself into that type of activity, but I don't know what the real motive was.

Senator MONDALE. Dr. King was investigated, as I think you testified earlier, because of fears of Communist influence upon him?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

Senator MONDALE. Is that a proper basis for investigating Dr. King or anyone else?

Mr. ADAMS. It is, where you have information indicating that the Communist Party is and has made efforts to try to influence an individual. I would say that that would normally be considered within the current criteria.

Senator MONDALE. You would consider that to be a valid basis for investigating today?

Mr. ADAMS. The movement itself, but not the individual.

Senator MONDALE. How do you investigate a movement without investigating individuals?

Mr. ADAMS. You do get into a gray area. The main thing would be if we had an organization today that we saw the Communist Party gravitating to, trying to work in positions of leadership, we would be interested in opening an investigation on Communist infiltration of that organization to see if it was affecting it.

Senator MONDALE. All right, now let's go back specifically. I gather there never was any question raised about whether Dr. King was a Communist. That was never charged.

Mr. ADAMS. Not as a Communist Party member, no, sir.

Senator MONDALE. That's right. Or that he was about to commit, or had committed acts of violence?

Mr. ADAMS. No.

Senator MONDALE. But the reason for investigating him apparently was that he was subject to Communist influence. Now what makes that a justified reason for investigating him? Is it a crime to be approached by someone who is a Communist?

Mr. ADAMS. No.

Senator MONDALE. What is the legal basis for that investigation?

Mr. ADAMS. The basis would be the Communist influence on him and the effect it would have on the organization. It would be in connection with our basic investigation of the Communist Party.

Senator MONDALE. Well, as I understand the law to read, it is not a crime to be a member of the Communist Party.

Mr. ADAMS. That is correct.

Senator MONDALE. How can it be a crime to know someone who is a member of the Communist Party?

Mr. ADAMS. It is not.

Senator MONDALE. How do you investigate something as tenuous as that? What is the basis for it legally?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, it falls into the area of, one, the intelligence jurisdiction of the activities of the Communist Party to have a situation where an individual in an organization, a leader of an organization, efforts are being made to influence him and to achieve control over the organization, and it is part of the overall investigation of the party trying to exert this influence as to are they successful, are they taking over the black movement or the civil rights movement. It is just like we tried to make clear in investigations that were more prevalent years ago but still occur on the Communist influence in labor unions. We tried to tell everybody we interview we are not interested in labor matters. We are not trying to inquire into that. We are interested in the effect of the Communist Party on this union.

Senator MONDALE. Mr. Adams, I am trying to get at the legal basis in this particular case for investigating Dr. King on the grounds that he might be subject to Communist influence. Can you cite any legal basis for that, or is it based entirely upon a generalized authority thought to exist in the FBI to investigate internal security matters?

Mr. ADAMS. It would fall also in the Presidential directives of investigating subversive activities.

Senator MONDALE. Then the question would return to what authority the President had.

Mr. ADAMS. That's right.

Senator MONDALE. Now Dr. King was investigated, among other things, for matters of, I think you call it delicacy. Would that be a basis for investigating an American citizen by the FBI?

Mr. ADAMS. No.

Senator MONDALE. Would you say then that those investigations were improper?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't believe that there is an allegation that we investigated him for that. I think there were certain by-products of information that developed and I think at a point you had a situation where the tail was wagging the dog, perhaps, but I don't see any basis for such investigation. And I find it very difficult to get into a discussion of this in view of the prohibitions that I think—

Senator MONDALE. You answered my question. That by itself would not be a basis for investigation.

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir.

Senator MONDALE. Would you agree with me, Mr. Adams, that this area of the assignment that the FBI had been tasked, which they thought they possessed or could use to investigate Americans; is an exceedingly vague, difficult, if not impossible, area to define? It is not an area where there were allegations of crime or suspicion that crimes were about to be committed, or that violence was about to be committed, but rather this whole generalized area, to investigate Americans in terms of ideas that they have or might be persuaded to have, ideas that might hold potential for danger to this country. This vague area has got the FBI into an awful lot of trouble, including today's hearings.

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

Senator MONDALE. And because of that, there is a very important need to sit down and redefine the guidelines, and have those guidelines known specifically by all, so that the FBI can know precisely what it can do and what it cannot do.

Mr. ADAMS. I think this is why the country is fortunate in this particular time to have an Attorney General who is a legal scholar and a lawyer of unquestioned repute who has indicated a willingness to address these problems, which, as the staff has determined, was not always the case over the years. But we have an Attorney General, we have a Director, who has offered his complete cooperation, just as he has to the committee in this inquiry, that we are not trying to avoid embarrassment. The only thing we are trying to hold back are identities of informants and sensitive, ongoing operations that we have, a concern on the part of Congress that not only recognizes there have been abuses, but recognizes that there still always has to be some degree of flexibility.

We are going to have situations where you have a "Weatherman" working for the waterworks, and in college he was a scientific student, and he makes a comment to a fellow employee that there is going to be some spectacular event that is going to bring the attention of the world on this city.

Senator MONDALE. Wouldn't you have probable cause then to investigate the commission of a crime?

Mr. ADAMS. We might have to investigate, but to disrupt, we have the authority to tell the supervisor of the waterworks, you had better get him out of there before the city water is poisoned and 100,000 people die, and I think the committee is going to find the same problems we do in coping with that situation, and even the Attorney General in his speech in Ottawa pointed out that there is still possibly a necessity for some flexibility to take appropriate action under extreme conditions. But it should be controlled. It is like Mr. Kelley says, go to the Attorney General, explore the legal issues, lay the problem up there. It should not be handled internally in the FBI.

Senator MONDALE. But do you also agree that the Congress ought to redefine the rules legislatively?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes; because the problem I have with it is we talk about oversight, and Mr. Kelley and the Attorney General and I believe this committee agrees that we should have joint oversight which would avoid the proliferation of hearings and the sensitive knowledge among many people which always poses the risk of an inadvertent leak of information. But yet even with oversight, under the plan you discussed yesterday, or some of the observations that were discussed yesterday, having people, conservative, liberal, black, and the other qualifications you put in, can a committee speak for the will of Congress? At one time we had Congressmen making speeches all over the country, if we don't stop these bombings, if somebody doesn't do something about it this country is in trouble. Is that the will of Congress?

Until it is embodied in legislation where the whole will of Congress is expressed, we are going to have problems.

Senator MONDALE. I am glad to hear that, because there is a way Congress speaks. It is not through the buddy system or a person. It speaks through the law.

Mr. ADAMS. That's right.

Senator MONDALE. And now for the first time we have this whole issue; it is not denied by the FBI. The elements are known. What I hear you saying is that you would like the Congress now to define, and redefine specifically and carefully, what it is we expect the FBI to do, and what it is we wish to prevent the FBI and will prohibit the FBI from doing.

Mr. ADAMS. Right. What is our role in society? After World War II, if you'll remember, a congressional committee met and raised all sorts of storm over the fact that there was not enough in the way of intelligence investigations. Never again should it happen in the United States that we be caught with our pants down. After the Kennedy assassination, if you recall, the FBI was properly criticized for having too restrictive dissemination policies in connection with Secret Service because they depend upon us for the intelligence necessary to provide protection for the President against extremist groups. We did that, but just before the recent incidents in California, there was going to be committee concern, not this committee, over has there been too much dissemination.

So the FBI is in the position of, at different times in our history, being damned for doing too much and damned for doing too little. And it is because of reacting to what we try to judge is what they want us to do, and this is what we are not in a position to do. We need the will of Congress expressed in some definitive measure, yet providing the latitude, because as you have seen from these problems, there are many that there are no black and white answers to. There have to be occasions where, when you are confronted with an extreme emergency, someone can act, and I don't think you or anyone else wants to tie the hands of law enforcement when today we have over 10 million serious crimes in the United States. We have 1 million crimes a year involving violence, and there has to be a capability to react. But we need to know in better terms what is our role in this, especially in domestic intelligence.

Senator MONDALE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Senator TOWER [presiding]. Senator Schweiker.

Senator SCHWEIKER. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Adams, in 1966 a letter written by the Bureau to Marvin Watson, Special Assistant to the President at the White House, and the gist of this letter was, in reference to his request, and I want to make it clear it was his request, not the Bureau's, authors of books that were critical of the Warren Commission report on the assassination of President Kennedy, were requested to file any pertinent personal data information, dossiers, et cetera, on seven individuals whose names I will not discuss.

Do you have any knowledge as to why the White House requested this kind of material on the Warren Commission critics?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't recall. I am familiar with the material. I did review it some time ago when we were testifying before the House Committee in February, but I don't recall that I saw in there any specific motivation on the part of the White House group requesting this information.

Senator SCHWEIKER. Now, in the same letter it also says a copy of this communication has not been sent to the Acting Attorney General.

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

Senator SCHWEIKER. Number one, is that a normal procedure, when you get requests of this kind that the Acting Attorney General is bypassed, and why was the Attorney General bypassed in this instance?

Mr. ADAMS. This is not a normal procedure. It is not the procedure followed today. There was a period of time where, at the President's directions, Mr. Hoover reported more directly to him in certain areas, and it was apparently a feeling that he did not want the Attorney General to know certain things.

Senator SCHWEIKER. One of the dossiers specifically included photographs of sexual activities.

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

Senator SCHWEIKER. And my question is, how is that relevant to being a critic of the Warren Commission? What standard do we use when we just pass photographs of sexual activities to the White House? Is this a normal proceeding when a dossier is requested? Is this normally included, or did they specifically request photographs of this kind, or what light can you shed on this?

Mr. ADAMS. I can't shed much. I know they requested information on him. I think there was other material concerning that individual of a security nature that was included. Why the information in that respect was submitted I am unable to answer. I do know at the time there was a lot of concern following the Warren Commission report. Had all the answers been explored? Was the Soviet Union involved? Was Cuba involved? And who were the critics who now are attacking this? But I have seen nothing which would explain the rationale for requesting the material.

Senator SCHWEIKER. I think what concerns the committee is, that whenever you get to the nitty-gritty of investigations—and it doesn't relate to the Warren Commission, I will leave that alone—we get back to something like a photograph or a tape recording or some letter referring to some kind of human weakness or failing that is really very irrelevant to the investigation, is sandwiched in here. It just seems to me that it was a tactic. This just happens to be the Warren Commission I singled out, but it was a tactic that was used rather frequently as a lever, or for reasons which I am trying to discover, as an instrument of investigative policy. Would you differ with that or dispute that? What rationale would you use? Do we use sexual activities as a standard criterion for investigations?

Mr. ADAMS. We do not use sexual activities as a criterion, but during the course of our investigation—we did have an investigation on that individual at one time—and during the course of the investigation, in checking the records of a local police department or a district attorney's office, they had conducted an investigation for a criminal act involving these photographs, and they made that available to us. So it went into our files. Now, the request of the President, he is the Chief Executive of the United States. He in effect has custody of everything. There are problems involved when the man who is in charge of everything requests information. I would like to add, however, that following the cleansing effect of Watergate that I don't know of any such requests coming over to the FBI anymore. There is a direct line between the Attorney General and the Director, and the Director certainly recognizes that in a case of extreme disagreement he would have the alternative to tell the Attorney General, I need to go directly to the President, or feel I should, but we do not have this line of communication at the present time.

Senator SCHWEIKER. It seems that if they had just listed what was alleged in the other investigation, that certainly would have sufficed for whatever purpose. But it seems to me that when you enclose living photographs, you are really attempting to discredit these critics. What other purpose would a photograph of this nature have, other than to discredit critics?

Mr. ADAMS. I can't answer that.

Senator SCHWEIKER. One area that I think this gets into, which we really touched on in the assassination probe Mr. Adams, is where the Bureau stops when they get some of these requests. You touched on it a moment ago. The President asked for something. I don't know in this case whether or not the President asked to see photographs of this nature, but the point is, nobody said no and he got them. So the question is, where do you see the Bureau's responsibility, and what can this committee do to insure that there is some kind of a test, that we either put in the law or that the FBI applies, that prevents the White House from using police power in this way?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't think Congress can ever fill the responsibility of trying to draw up guidelines, even in conjunction with the executive branch, to guarantee that all abuses won't take place. The organization is made up of human beings, and these things occur. Certain corrective actions are self-initiated, such as this. The President, for instance, you know we had an incident a few years ago about investigating a newsman, where we were requested, and if I recall from our information, we thought he was being considered for an appointed position which would have been a logical basis. As facts turned out, that was not the purpose that the information was requested. To stem or stop abuses like that, the President, the current administration, has issued instructions that any requests for investigations under the special inquiry or White House investigation such as for appointment must clear through the office of his counsel, in other words, not let the lower line people come over and say we need this information or we need this request. They come through the office of Phil Buchen through an employee that is assigned to that office with responsibility.

Now, we do still make certain name check requests for the White House, and those, too, have to clear through his office. So we do have that. Then we have the responsibility, if we get something which on its face appears political or improper, then our responsibility under that would be to go to the Attorney General and ask him to intercede by finding out is this a proper request on the Bureau. And I can assure you, that as Mr. Kelley has testified and has made it perfectly clear, he has not had any such improper requests and he would go right to the Attorney General if it was necessary. Otherwise he would reject the request.

Senator SCHWEIKER. What steps are you taking to make sure that we catch some of these things in the present that maybe we either overlooked or did not catch or somehow got sidetracked in the past?

Mr. ADAMS. We have been working with the Attorney General and his staff. It started even when Attorney General Saxbe was there, to look at all of our procedures, all of our investigative operations. Are they proper? Do they fit criteria? Do we have a legal basis for them? And we have guidelines, committees which have been established in the Department, that meet every day on questions of the overwhelming problem of collection and maintenance of information. What do we get? Why do we get it? What should we do with it?

I feel there is a very active program going on in that regard, and I feel certain that it will continue to make sure that we are aware of everything and take appropriate action.

Senator SCHWEIKER. I wonder if you might share some of these with the staff so that we may have the advantage of taking a look at those, too.

Mr. ADAMS. I would have to secure the approval of the Attorney General on the guidelines. He did tell the House committee which originally raised the question on maintenance of information, that once we get something and they are nearing completion in the Department, that he does intend to take it up with Congress. So I am sure there would be no problem at that point in bringing it to this committee as well.

Senator SCHWEIKER. It seems to me that the problems in the past have arisen, in not having clearly defined standards. I think this is the crux of it.

Mr. ADAMS. That is true.

Senator SCHWEIKER. That's all I have, Mr. Chairman.

Senator TOWER. Mr. Adams, what use does the Bureau presently make of its intelligence informants, and have they ever been used as provocateurs or as magnets for action?

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir.

Well, you asked two questions.

Senator TOWER. Yes.

Mr. ADAMS. Let me take the last one first, provocateurs. Our policy has not—or our policy has been to discourage any activities which in any way might involve an informant doing something that an agent cannot do, which would be in the area of being a provocateur, which basically is entrapment. And we have had some allegations of entrapment come up. We feel we have satisfactorily answered them. This is a very technical legal field which boils down, of course, to the fact that if a person is willing to do something, and the Government merely provides the opportunity, that is not legally entrapment. So if a person comes to us and says, "I have been asked to participate in a break-in of a Federal building, I would like to help you," then the law basically would indicate we have the authority to continue to let him operate. The question comes up if he assumes the whole direction and causes people to do something which they would not otherwise have done. That is the entrapment issue. So we are very alert to this. We have instructions, clear guidelines, instructions to our field offices that they are not to use an informant for anything that an agent cannot legally do. I don't say there haven't been some mistakes in that regard, but I don't know of any at the present time.

Senator TOWER. Senator Huddleston?

Senator HUDDLESTON. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

First, I think to keep this activity in proper perspective, it might be well to remember that even though a great deal of the testimony and the questioning has been relating to the question of Dr. King, this is by no means an isolated situation. Dr. King's case is indeed a classic example, utilizing all of the various techniques of the Bureau, both in intelligence gathering, and action against an individual in order to discredit him or embarrass him, and indeed destroy him. But the record is replete, and indeed, here is an entire sheaf of similar targets who are certainly not as well known. Some of them are high school students, some of them are high school teachers, college students, college teachers, broadcasters and journalists, people whose names would be almost totally unfamiliar to the vast majority of Americans. So the activity was not confined to those that are immediately recognizable public figures.

I want to just proceed along the question of informants that Senator Tower just raised for just a moment or two. You say that your informants are not expected to do anything that an agent himself could not do. In the gathering of information do you have any safeguard at all, any rule as to how the informant proceeds in order to gather the information you are looking for?

Mr. ADAMS. Only that he proceed through legal means.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Is that specifically stated to him when he is employed?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Are most informers paid on the basis of a regular fee or regular salary, or are they paid on the basis of the information they gather?

Mr. ADAMS. Even those who are paid on what you could say a salary that salary is determined on a COD basis as to the value of the information furnished. In other words, in a criminal case for instance you could have a person come in and give you the identity of three individuals who just robbed a bank. You might pay him a lump sum amount, and never go back to him. In the security field where informants do finally manage to work into a revolutionary type organization, their continued activities on our behalf do set up more of a program for payment.

Senator HUDDLESTON. If information that may be supplied to you happens to be of a sensational nature or of a surprising nature, do you ever question the informer on how he obtained it?

Mr. ADAMS. I am sure this takes place. In any handling of an informant over a sustained period of time, you do have a rapport which they don't just come in and say Joe Blow said this, Joe Blow did that. There is a conversation that goes through, which I feel certain would if it looked like he had something that came from some improper source, I think the agent would say, "Where did you get this?"

Senator HUDDLESTON. If you found it had been taken improperly or if some improper action had been taken, would it be put in the files?

Mr. ADAMS. If he violated the law, we would have an open investigation if it were within our jurisdiction.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Now the Bureau disseminates this information on individuals that is collected in various ways. How many other agencies can request, for instance, an individual check that would result in your supplying to it information from these personal intelligence files?

Mr. ADAMS. Every agent in the Federal Government under the employee security program has an obligation to check with the FBI doing name check search of our files to see if there is any subversive derogatory information which might militate against appointing that individual to a Federal position.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Do you take any precautions as to how they will use that information once it is supplied to them by your agents?

Mr. ADAMS. All we do is indicate to them on the report that it is the property of the FBI and is not to be disseminated outside their agency.

Senator HUDDLESTON. You have no way of knowing whether or not indeed it is?

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir, we do not.

Senator HUDDLESTON. What internal precautions do you have against the Bureau itself misusing information that it gains from other agencies?

Mr. ADAMS. Strong prohibitions. First, we don't allow access to files except on a need-to-know basis. Any employee of the FBI knows that if he improperly divulges information or leaks information out of the files, he will be subject to administrative action. We had a case where an agent obtained an identification record and made it out improperly, and I think that agent was separated from the rolls. But we had asked, and of course we share in CIA's request to this extent, that there be a criminal penalty attached to misuse of information and leaking it or making it available outside of an agency. This is another issue before Congress.

Senator HUDDLESTON. There is also an instance that the committee has evidence of, where the Bureau at least proposed taking information gained from the Internal Revenue Service and drafting a letter, a fraudulent letter, over a forged signature of a civil rights leader, mailing it to the contributors of that organization indicating that there was some tax problem and hoping to discourage further contributions. Did this in fact happen, to your knowledge?

Mr. ADAMS. I am not familiar with that case. I can easily say it would not be proper.

Senator HUDDLESTON. But you don't know whether it happened or whether the act was carried out?

Mr. ADAMS. I do not know.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Mr. Adams, getting on to another subject, one of the techniques used very frequently by the Bureau in its attempt to discredit individuals was to utilize the press. It was customary to send anonymous letters on many occasions to editors, broadcasters, commentators, and columnists around the country containing information, or suggesting information, about an individual that the Bureau wanted to discredit in some way. There is also some evidence that the Bureau utilized within the press itself, on a regular contact basis, certain columnists or broadcasters for the purpose of disseminating information that the FBI wanted to get out about individuals. How extensively was this utilized?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't believe it was very extensive. In fact, I think there were probably very few incidents where untrue information was put out. That is my recollection. On disseminating public source information there were a number of instances of that which is still proper to date under our guidelines. I just don't know of many instances where untrue information was used, and I do not know of too many instances overall where that was done.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Do you know of any instances—how many actual journalists or practitioners were regular disseminators of FBI information?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't know of any today that are, in that regard. I know there have been situations where it happened and people still do. They come to us and say, we would like to do an article on organized crime. Can you be of assistance? And if we can be of assistance within the guidelines established by the Attorney General, we do assist. We have a pull and a tug over privacy acts and freedom of information and also the need to know, but we try to satisfy.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Do you know of any at the present time or in the past who have been paid by the FBI for their services?

Mr. ADAMS. Not personally. I don't know of any.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Not personally? Do you know of any evidence that indicates that?

Mr. ADAMS. That's what I mean. I don't have any evidence that indicates that.

Senator HUDDLESTON. I think it would be helpful to our inquiry if we could review, or you would review, the files and make a determination as to whether or not it might be the case, that the FBI has paid journalists who are amenable to disseminating information supplied by the FBI.

Mr. ADAMS. I am told we have. I don't know what files we have reviewed, but we have reviewed them and we haven't found any.

Senator HUDDLESTON. You haven't found any. What is the mass media program of the FBI?

Mr. ADAMS. To try to get the truth out, to get a proper picture of the FBI's jurisdiction, its activities.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Is it also to suppress other publications or other commentators or journalists who might be disseminating other views?

Mr. ADAMS. No.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Did the FBI not take some action against a number of newspapers, most of them student newspapers that they thought should be suppressed?

Mr. ADAMS. We may have in the past. I don't recall any specific case. You are talking about some of the "Weatherman" support papers or Black Panther paper. I don't know of any in that regard, but I'm not saying that such action was not taken.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Are you familiar with the special correspondence list?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

Senator HUDDLESTON. What is this list?

Mr. ADAMS. My recollection is that the special correspondence list was a list of individuals that had requested from time to time various Bureau publications and were kept on a continuing list and such communications were mailed to them.

Senator HUDDLESTON. It was a list that was considered to be friendly towards the FBI view?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes. I would say anyone on that list would normally be friendly.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Do you have knowledge of a number of instances in which the Bureau carrying out its COINTELPRO activities utilized the existing press in order to attempt to discredit some individual?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't have an idea of the number, but I don't think there were very many.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Do you have a list of the instances in which the Bureau attempted to discredit other publications?

Mr. ADAMS. No; I don't know.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Do you know that they did occur?

Mr. ADAMS. I can ask. I get, "No," as far as any knowledge in that regard.

Senator HUDDLESTON. As far as knowledge.

Mr. ADAMS. That means knowledge of what we have come up with in our current review, I would assume.

Senator HUDDLESTON. It seems to me that this is an area in which we are particularly troubled and rightly should be. If there is any right that is specifically called for in our Constitution, and has been upheld and reaffirmed in court decision after court decision, it is the right to publish in this country. The first amendment speaks not only of freedom of speech, but also freedom of the press. And yet it seems that we have a pattern here of the chief law enforcement agency of the country attempting to suppress that very right.

Mr. ADAMS. I haven't seen—I think any effort to manipulate the press of this country, I just don't see any possibility in that regard, and I don't see the logic of anyone even attempting such.

Senator HUDDLESTON. But it did happen.

Mr. ADAMS. It may have happened in—

Senator HUDDLESTON. In a rather extensive field.

Mr. ADAMS. I disagree with that rather extensive field. I just don't know the extent that you are talking to here.

Senator HUDDLESTON. We are talking about the cases where—

Mr. ADAMS. Are you lumping in cases where we disseminated public source information? Are you lumping in a case where we may have gone to a—

Senator HUDDLESTON. I think disseminating public source information is somewhat different from furnishing a TV commentator with derogatory information about a specific individual, who has been targeted as one that apparently the Bureau thinks is dangerous or that his ideas ought to be suppressed.

Mr. ADAMS. Is that manipulating the press, though? Here you have a situation where an individual is going around the country advocating off-the-pig or kill-the-police or something like that. And a newspaperman was furnished, say some background information on him which would have been in the area of public source material which he could use in an article. Are we really, if the information is true, the final decision, it would seem to me, would be the newspaperman as to whether he would use any such information.

I think if we concealed our motives from the newspaperman, or furnished false information, which I think we did in one anonymous letter or something that I saw in all of this, I would say that was improper.

Senator HUDDLESTON. Or—

Mr. ADAMS. I think newsmen have sources. I think—

Senator HUDDLESTON. Or convincing a cartoonist, for instance, to draw a derogatory cartoon about a college professor who certainly did not constitute a threat to the violent overthrow of the Government.

Mr. ADAMS. If anyone accuses us of having any great success in trying to influence the press, I think that their objectivity stands very high.

Senator HUDDLESTON. I think the point is not whether there was success or not, there was an effort made. I'm glad to hear you acknowledge now that it is almost an impossibility. But more than that it seems to me at the beginning when these type of techniques were used, it seemed to indicate a lack of confidence, or faith in the American people to believe that they could not hear ideas that might be contrary to their own without being seriously damaged. One of the great freedoms we have is the freedom of hearing other ideas, whether we agree with them or not. I think this is an area that we are concerned with and one technique which I hope is being discontinued and one that will be, by the time these hearings conclude, and by the time proper legislation is drawn.

Mr. ADAMS. Well, I think you can be assured that any such techniques in that area died with COINTELPRO in 1971.

Senator HUDDLESTON. That is comforting.

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN [presiding]. Thank you, Senator. I have been forced in and out by virtue of votes and other committee business. I am not sure which Senators have had their opportunity to question and which have not.

Senator Goldwater, were you next?

Senator GOLDWATER. I will not take much time. I apologize for not having been here in the last 2 days. It is going well, I have heard. We have heard testimony regarding the voluminous records, I believe 500,000, maintained by the Bureau. How in your view have these records come to be kept? For what purpose have they been kept, and has the Bureau ever undertaken to destroy or prune down any of these records?

Mr. ADAMS. We have a number of records. We are a businesslike organization. We record our activities. And as the staff knows, they had access to a lot of recorded material that is the product of what the FBI has done over the years. When we conduct an investigation, we maintain the results. We do have destruction procedures where, after the passage of certain time limits approved by the Archives authority, we are allowed to destroy certain files. Other information we are required to put on microfilm. There is a regular standard procedure for the destruction of FBI files. This has been suspended, of course, during the initiation of these hearings and our files probably have increased considerably during this period because we are not allowed to destroy anything since the committee commenced its hearings. But we do have procedures for destruction of files. They are approved by the Archives. A problem inherent in that is maintaining information. What should we keep? What should we obtain during an investigation? What should we record? In the past we have been pretty consistent in recording everything we thought was relevant to the investigation. The passage of the Privacy Act put certain restrictions in. We cannot collect or maintain anything unless it is relevant to an ongoing matter of which we have investigative jurisdiction.

But beyond even the Privacy Act, the Attorney General instituted a guidelines committee in this area that we have been meeting diligently with every day and hopefully have tried to avoid this idea that we are for no good reason maintaining gossip, scandal, unnecessary, and irrelevant material. So once these guidelines are in some sort of final form, not to be adopted, then the Attorney General has indicated that he is going to take it up with the various congressional committees to get their input into it, after which they will be published.

Senator GOLDWATER. Well, now these dossiers, I think you can call them that probably.

Mr. ADAMS. I prefer not to, but I accept the fact that that is how they are referred to.

Senator GOLDWATER. What do you call them?

Mr. ADAMS. I call them files. To me, I guess we all have our little hang-ups, but to me that is usually used in some sinister connotation. It is probably not to you. But I will use whatever terminology you want to use on this.

Senator GOLDWATER. I hope what you have on me is not called a dossier.

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir; it's a collection of material.

[General laughter.]

Mr. ADAMS. Of which you are aware.

Senator GOLDWATER. That's right. Now let me ask you, the information you have would probably be on computer tape?

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir.

Senator GOLDWATER. It's not. Information that IRS would have, is that computerized?

Mr. ADAMS. It may be. I'm not familiar with the extent of theirs. We do have certain computer activities, such as the National Crime Information Center, or we have, I guess, 7 or 8 million records. This is not the usual file material. This consists of individuals concerning whom a warrant is outstanding, stolen property, material such as this, and also some documented criminal history information in the nature of prior arrest history, but not what I think you are referring to in the way of file material, reports, intelligence, this type of information.

Senator GOLDWATER. What I am trying to get at, is there a central source of computerized material that would include your information, the information that IRS may have gathered, information that had been gathered off of personnel records of the Pentagon?

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir.

Senator GOLDWATER. There's no such list that you know of?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't know what other agencies have, but the FBI does not have such a list, does not have such capability to interface with such a list, if such a list exists.

Senator GOLDWATER. Do you feel rather safe in saying then that no agency of Government has put together such a computerized total of all the information on the people that you have surveilled?

Mr. ADAMS. Oh, I think it is safe to say I don't know of any. Today I am not saying what does exist or doesn't exist elsewhere.

Senator GOLDWATER. In addition to the 500,000 records that you have, would I be correct in saying that you have 50 million data cards and that there's $82 million spent on intelligence in the fiscal year 1975 to maintain this library?

Mr. ADAMS. No; I don't think that is correct. I think the figure of $82 million is what our budget people have drawn up as being the total cost in a given year of our intelligence operations, security, criminal, organized crime, the whole intelligence field. But I don't relate it to the maintenance of any data cards.

Senator GOLDWATER. Now one other area, and I think it probably, according to the records, goes back to 1970. How did the Bureau come to place the so-called Women's Lib movement under surveillance, and I say so-called because I think we discovered that there was no such organized movement.

Mr. ADAMS. There were a lot of movements. It is my recollection—I have not reviewed the file in detail, but it is my recollection that the case was originally opened because of indications that certain groups were attempting to infiltrate or control the Women's Liberation movement. The investigation was conducted and was terminated several years ago, as far as I know.

Senator GOLDWATER. Do you know of any actions that were taken by the Bureau as to the women's liberation movement except to monitor it?

Mr. ADAMS. No. And the monitoring was for the purpose of determining the infiltration, and I don't know of any actions taken against them.

Senator GOLDWATER. That's all I have, Mr. Chairman. Thank you.

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you, Senator Goldwater.

Senator Hart, have you had an opportunity to question?

Senator HART of Colorado. No; I have not.

The CHAIRMAN. Senator Hart.

Senator HART of Colorado. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. In the testimony yesterday developed by the staff concerning the last few days of Martin Luther King's life, we learned that the Bureau in March of 1968 developed information to be given to the press criticizing Dr. King for staying in a white-owned and operated hotel, the Holiday Inn in Memphis, instead of the Lorraine.

At some point during Dr. King's stay in Memphis, he moved from the Holiday Inn to Lorraine. To your knowledge, Mr. Adams, was that information ever given to the press? [See footnote p. 21.]

Mr. ADAMS. I have been unable to determine that. This question was raised to me by the Civil Rights Division of the Department. Apparently, they had had some inquiry along the same lines several months ago. But my recollection of it at the time, we saw that this action had been proposed and the memorandum bore the initials, I believe it was the initials, statement handled, and the initials of the agent in the external affairs division who assumed the responsibility of saying handle it and initiated it. They contacted him and he said that he had no recollection of the matter but the fact that he did say, "handled" didn't mean that he was able to do anything with it. He was just clearing that memorandum so it would show action was taken, and he doesn't know if he gave it to anyone or not.

Senator HART of Colorado. Well, suffice it to say that the facts are that subsequent to the time the Bureau developed this information to pass on to the press, it did appear in the local papers in Memphis.

Mr. ADAMS. There was some statement in the local papers, not according to the terminology of the proposed statement that was to be given to him. There was some comment made, if I recall, that Martin Luther King gave a press conference following the riots that followed one of his appearances, and that he gave that press conference in a hotel, the Holiday Inn Hotel. But it didn't have any, at least the newspaper article itself didn't have any direct relation to acts taken.

Senator HART of Colorado. Well, according to some historians and people who have commented on the circumstances, they were fairly explicit in stating that the local press was critical of him during that period of staying in the white hotel, but I don't want to make a big issue out of that. What was the name of the agent that you talked to?

Mr. ADAMS. I didn't talk to him personally. People in the Bureau that were working on this did and I believe his name was Linbaugh.

Senator HART of Colorado. If you could provide that name to us, I would appreciate it.

Mr. ADAMS. I would be glad to.

Senator HART of Colorado. Mr. Adams, was any effort made during this entire COINTELPRO period to objectively define what the "New Left" meant? What was your understanding of the "New Left?"

Mr. ADAMS. They did have a definition of the New Left distinguishing it from the Old Left. It was primarily to distinguish it in the area that the New Left was trying to separate itself from the old hide-bound policies of the Communist Party or some of its links to the Communist Party. Perhaps Mr. Wannall has a better definition of that.

Senator HART of Colorado. It very definitely included those who were opposed to the war, organized groups that opposed the war and felt strongly about racial injustice in this country, leaving the Communist Party aside.

Mr. ADAMS. People involved in the New Left movement were, of course, also involved in the anti-Vietnam war effort.

Senator HART of Colorado. What do you mean also? That's what I'm trying to get out. What was the New Left? If you didn't oppose the war and you weren't involved in civil rights groups, who else might you have been?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, the New Left did involve a revolutionary philosophy. It wasn't related solely to the anti-Vietnam effort.

Senator HART of Colorado. Thomas Jefferson embodied a revolutionary philosophy.

Mr. ADAMS. That's right. And the New Left activity exceeded Thomas Jefferson's philosophy in that it did fit in with the basic Communist philosophy.

Senator HART of Colorado. Every group that was placed under the efforts of the COINTELPRO supported the violent overthrow of this country?

Mr. ADAMS. The concept of COINTELPRO was directed toward those organizations. I would have to refresh my memory on each one of the organizations that were targets of it, but they were basically New Left, Communist Party, Social Workers Party, black extremists, white hate groups, those were the five basics.

Senator HART of Colorado. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference?

Mr. ADAMS. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, I don't know if it was involved specifically in COINTELPRO. Three minor actions were taken against the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Senator HART of Colorado. Well, its leader, I think you could say, for 8 years was subject to a lot more than three minor actions.

Mr. ADAMS. That's right, and that gets into the other area that the activities taken against him were primarily COINTELPRO-type activities but weren't really under the control of—Senator HART of Colorado. You're saying that basically every organization and individual that was swept into the five COINTELPRO nets supported the violent overthrow of this country?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, not just the violent overthrow of the Government. It would have been organizations that were threatening and fomenting violence. I don't believe it had to be related to the actual overthrow of the Government.

Senator HART of Colorado. Is a street demonstration violent?

Mr. ADAMS. It depends on where you are in relation to what is taking place. If there are a lot of activities in connection with street demonstrations that are not violent, and there are a lot of street demonstrations that have resulted in deaths, so it just depends on the activity taking place and the circumstances. Our problem is we are given the responsibility by the Attorney General to monitor demonstrations which have the potential of violence. The question is, how do you find out, at what point do you get in any monitor demonstrations to determine if that has a potential violence?

Senator HART of Colorado. Well, obviously we have received testimony to the effect that the FBI went out of its way to foment violence itself, to encourage disruptions internally, to encourage hostilities and conflict between and among these groups in the hope that violence would occur. Therefore you could go back to the Director or the press or whomever and say, look, this is a violent group.

Mr. ADAMS. I accept the allegation but I don't accept the fact. The conclusion, from what I have seen in reviewing these files in connection with our investigations, is that we don't foment violence. We don't permit as a matter of policy our informants to act as provocateurs to engage in violence. I am not denying it may have happened, but the FBI does not foment violence, and the FBI, you know, has no—

Senator HART of Colorado. You are using present tense verbs.

Mr. ADAMS. We didn't then. I don't agree that our actions in any event were designed to foment violence.

Senator HART of Colorado. I think there is plenty of documentation of the attempt to set the Black Panthers against the Blackstone Rangers in Chicago.

Mr. ADAMS. Well, I don't consider that plenty of evidence. I think the evidence to the contrary is that one of the organizations, when we got word that the Black Panthers versus United Slaves, we notified the local police that this activity was going to take place, and the individual, so that we would prevent the killing, which had come to our attention and was going to take place, and then the turndowns of various COINTELPRO actions, there were specific statements made, that this action will not be approved because it might result in harm to an individual, physical harm, and we have no indication from any of these actions under COINTELPRO that any violent act occurred, and I have not been presented with any by the staff from their far more extensive inquiry.

Investigation does it say that that agency should be forcing any educational institution to defend itself?

Mr. ADAMS. I know of none.

Senator HART of Colorado. You would say this is stepping beyond the bounds of your authority?

Mr. ADAMS. I would say—I'm not familiar with the total action of what was there, but just on the surface I don't see any basis for it.

Senator HART of Colorado. It is my understanding that field officers participating in COINTELPRO activities were required to send results in status letters and in annual reports. Is that correct?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

Senator HART of Colorado. What kind of results generally were you looking for? What was considered success?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, it would be considered success, if in one instance an action was taken to create factionalism in the highest level of the Communist Party, and the results were that we were advised that the Communist Party influence declined appreciably as a direct result of factionalism created at that level. That to us was a concrete result. We had other results that you get in various degrees. The above is an extremely favorable degree. We had others, I think one was alluded to yesterday or today where a letter went out setting up marital strife on the part of someone. I don't see any basis or justification for that. I think that is the other extreme. I think in the middle there were ones that fell into a different degree. The only thing that I feel is we had 3,000 actions recommended. I don't know if the document shows whether this Antioch one was approved or not. I doubt that it was approved.

Senator HART of Colorado. I believe it was. We can document that.

Mr. ADAMS. OK. Because there would be one. I would say that the judgment in approving is in question. But out of 3,000 recommended, the fact that 2,000 approved shows that there was some concern to try to keep these to a proper level, and I think the actual number of grossly improper activities fortunately is rather small. I think there are a lot in there. The whole program, we feel, should have been discontinued, and we don't have a program like it now, and we wouldn't institute a program like it now.

Senator HART of Colorado. It would be helpful to us if now or in the future you could recommend what steps we should take, both as the committee and this Congress, to make sure that doesn't happen, aside from just the assurances we are being given here.

Mr. ADAMS. Well, the main recommendation I make is that we don't wind up on the point we have been on in the past years, that one time in our history Congress is saying we ought to be doing something to stop violence in the streets, murders, blowing up of buildings; and at another time they are saying you shouldn't have done what you did, and that we make a mistake when we react and try to identify one area and say that is the voice of the people. What we need is a legislative mandate which is the will of Congress in order to tell us what our role should be in this area. I think that the main thing that would come out of all of this, I hope, is some more definitive guideline where we all know what the will of the people is as expressed by Congress.

Senator HART of Colorado. I believe my time is up.

Senator TOWER [presiding]. Mr. Adams, to return to the business of informants which I initiated and was interrupted by a vote, who selects an informant?

Mr. ADAMS. The basic responsibility is on our special agent personnel who develop informants, the agent on the street.

Senator TOWER. Does the special agent in charge in a given area have control over the activities of an informant or a veto on the use of a particular informant?

Mr. ADAMS. Not only the special agent in charge, but FBI headquarters. We maintain the tightest possible control of the utilization of informants. We require Bureau approval to utilize a person as an informant.

Senator TOWER. The special agent in charge has the power to veto the use of an informant?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

Senator TOWER. Does headquarters know who all the informants are?

Mr. ADAMS. Absolutely. We do not allow hip-pocket informants. We require—

Senator TOWER. You don't have the agents informed by their own special informants?

Mr. ADAMS. Absolutely not.

Senator TOWER. Are the criteria different for paid and for nonpaid informers?

Mr. ADAMS. We have some informants over the years that have refused to accept payment, but generally the criteria for both, I mean for ones that are paid, is that it must be on a c.o.d. basis, evaluated as to the value of the information.

Senator TOWER. What protections are afforded to informants?

Mr. ADAMS. Protections afforded them individually?

Senator TOWER. Yes.

Mr. ADAMS. The greatest protection in the world we can afford them is to maintain the confidential relationship which they have adopted with the FBI, and the fact that those citizens of the United States who, for whatever reason, decide to cooperate with the FBI and cooperate with their Government in the criminal and security field, have that confidentiality maintained. Beyond that confidentiality we are unable to afford them any protection, any physical protection. We have had informants murdered through disclosure. We have had them subjected to other violence and criminal activities, and the only protection beyond maintaining the confidentiality is once we have used them or had to expose them for some purpose, we do have procedures for relocation and maintenance of them, which is utilized quite frequently in the top hoodlum and the Cosa Nostra-type investigations.

Senator TOWER. It is my understanding now that 83 percent of all cases involve some use of informants, so that means that the use is pretty widespread and apparently very essential. What kind of guidance does the FBI give to these informants? Do you give them any special training? Could you describe that kind of relationship in terms of guidelines, control, authority that you have?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, when an individual is being developed as an informant, our main concern is whether he provides reliable information and that the information he collects is collected by legal means. We don't permit an informant to engage in any activity that an agent couldn't do legally himself. In other words, you can't have an extension of the agent out here engaging in illegal acts, and the agent saying I abide by the law. This creates some problems, of course, in the criminal field where you don't recruit informants from Sunday schools. You recruit informants in areas where they do have knowledge of criminal activities. But we even had to open investigations and prosecute some of our informants, because we do not bend from this, that they are not going to enjoy favorite status as a result of their relationship with us. So the agent covers all of this with an informant during the discussions.

We secure background information on the informants. We do this to insure, as best as possible, we are dealing with a reliable, stable individual even though he may be engaged in an unstable activity. We go through this period and consider them more or less, in different terminology, probationary, potential, verifying information that he furnishes us, and everytime when they report on the status of an informant, they have to tell us what percentage of his information has been verified by other means, by other informants or sources. So we do have a continuing indoctrination which is supervised at FBI headquarters.

Senator TOWER. You said you don't recruit your informants from Sunday school class. Being an ex-Sunday school teacher, I resent that, but—

Mr. ADAMS. I am talking in the criminal field. Many of our security informants come from a very fine background.

Senator TOWER. But this leads me into this. Sometimes, then, you might recruit people that you know have committed criminal acts.

Mr. ADAMS. That's true.

Senator TOWER. Do you promise him immunity from future prosecution in many instances to secure their cooperation?

Mr. ADAMS. No. Now, the only exception to that would be we may have an ongoing, it is what you call an informant—I believe your question is addressed to someone that we are actually considering in an informant status.

Senator TOWER. Yes.

Mr. ADAMS. We do have situations where during an investigation we target on one individual, the lower rung, and the U.S. Attorney and the Department offer immunity. We don't. And say, you cooperate, and we go up the ladder to the next level, and in some of these cases we have gone up through successive stages until we get the main honcho who we feel is the proper target of our investigation.

Senator TOWER. Getting on another subject, does the FBI still request bank audits?

Mr. ADAMS. Bank audits? Do you mean do we still have access to bank records?

Senator TOWER. Yes.

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir, we do.

Senator TOWER. And do you obtain access with or without warrants?

Mr. ADAMS. We obtain access without warrants.

Senator TOWER. Without warrants?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

Senator TOWER. Is the subject notified in advance by the FBI when you obtain one without a warrant?

Mr. ADAMS. No, sir.

Senator TOWER. Are they notified by the bank, or is he notified subsequently by the FBI?

Mr. ADAMS. No. We do get subpoenas in many cases, not warrants, but we do get subpoenas in many cases, but in some cases a bank will make available to us records without subpoena. When it comes time for utilizing that information we do issue a subpoena for the information.

Senator TOWER. Do you have legal authority to gain access to these records?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir, we do.

Senator TOWER. Without a subpoena, without a court document?

Mr. ADAMS. There is no law that I know of that forbids us access.

There have been several court decisions, including some circuit courts that disagree with each other, but I think the current finding is that the bank records are the records of the bank and this does not violate any first amendment or other amendments in connection with it.

Senator TOWER. Do you make similar requests of S. & L.'s and others, and credit unions and other financial institutions?

Mr. ADAMS. I would assume the same would provide there.

The CHAIRMAN [presiding]. Thank you, Senator Tower.

I just have a question or two. We are going to try to conclude this morning because the committee has a hearing, a business meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon and for the information of the members, that meeting will take place in room 3110 of the Dirksen Senate Office Building. And while I am making announcements, I think I should say that tomorrow between the hours of 9 o'clock in the morning and 1 o'clock in the afternoon, the committee will report its findings and make its recommendations to the Senate in connection with our investigation into alleged involvement of the United States in certain assassination plots, and attempts directed against foreign leaders.

The committee, as you know, has made an exhaustive investigation of this issue. It has taken some 6 months, 75 witnesses have been interrogated, over 8,000 pages of testimony have been taken, mountains of documents have been analyzed and digested, and the report will be a detailed accounting to the American people of that evidence, together with the findings and recommendations of the committee. Initially these disclosures will be made to the Senate in secret session, after which the report will be made public as previously approved by committee vote. Therefore, it is anticipated that at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon in this room, the caucus room, following that secret session of the Senate, the committee will meet with the press for the purpose of answering such questions as the press may wish to address to the committee on the assassination report.

Now, the last few questions I would like to put to you, Mr. Adams, have to do with some confusion in my mind concerning the purpose of the FBI in monitoring the women's liberation movement. What was the purpose of that surveillance? Why were you involved in monitoring that movement?

Mr. ADAMS. It was basically, as I recall, I have not reviewed the files, but from the information that I have acquired, it would indicate there were groups that were believed to be infiltrating and attempting to exert control over it. That investigation was based or initiated on this fact.

The CHAIRMAN. But you never found, did you, that the Women's Liberation Movement was seriously infiltrated, influenced, or controlled by Communists.

Mr. ADAMS. No, and the case was closed. I would put them in the position of comments we have made earlier about the press, that I don't think anyone is going to dominate or control. That is a very independent group.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, we are trying to keep the country that way.

Mr. ADAMS. That's right.

The CHAIRMAN. And the kind of thing that disturbs me is what the documents reveal. If you will turn to exhibit 7.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. Then, if you will turn to where you find the caption "Origin, Aims, and Purposes," a description of the Women's Liberation Movement in Baltimore, Md. I call your attention to this because it seems to typify the whole problem of this generalized kind of surveillance over the activities of American citizens. Here is the report. If you will read with me this paragraph:

The women's liberation movement in Baltimore, Md. began during the summer of 1968. There was no structure or a parent organization. There were no rules or plans to go by. It started out as a group therapy session with young women who were either lonely or confined to the home with small children, getting together to talk out their problems. Along with this they wanted a purpose and that was to be free women from the humdrum existence of being only a wife and mother. They wanted equal opportunities that men have in work and in society. They wanted their husbands to share in the housework and in rearing their children. They also wanted to go out and work in whatever kind of jobs they wanted, and not be discriminated against as women.

Now, can you find anything in that report that in any way suggests that these women were engaged in improper or unlawful activity?

Mr. ADAMS. Not in that one. I believe there was another report, though, giving the origin of it, which went into a little more description of what our basic interest was.

The CHAIRMAN. Can you tell me, because this is the report I have.

Mr. ADAMS. Well, I am given here—

The CHAIRMAN. What other, if there was some sinister activity connected with this group that isn't laid out in the document—

Mr. ADAMS. I was given a workpaper here which read:

Women's Liberation Movement. Investigation of captioned movement was initiated by our New York Office in April 1969, as the Women's Libber movement is described as a loosely structured women's movement comprised of individuals with varying ideologies from liberal to New Left persuasion, some of whom had exhibited an affiliation with and/or sympathy for several organizations of investigative interest to this Bureau: namely, the Students for a Democratic Society, Black Panther Party, the Vietnam Peace Parade Committee, Venceremos Brigade, the Socialist Workers Party, with its youth group the Young Socialist Alliance.

The CHAIRMAN. May I stop you at this point?

The CHAIRMAN. You are reading from a paper which has to do with the origination of an investigation coming out of New York, are you not?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. I am reading from a document that relates to the Women's Liberation Movement in Baltimore, and the findings concerning it in the summer of 1968. My question hasn't to do with whatever original purpose the FBI sought by initiating this kind of surveillance in New York, but with a finding made concerning the Women's Liberation Movement in Baltimore which I have just read to you. I think you would agree with me that women do have the right to get together to talk about humdrum existence and equal opportunities with men and equal opportunities for work in our society, don't they? That is not a subversive activity.

Mr. ADAMS. Well, but what you have here is the set up of our investigative activity. We had New York, which was the office of origin of the investigation. You have other offices that were checking to determine what influence there was. In addition, in New York—to the New York office, lay the fact that interwoven with the Women's Liberation Movement goal for equal rights for women, there was an advocacy certainly of militancy and violence in achieving their goals. Now, Baltimore is one office, and I believe that even there in one of the reports—

The CHAIRMAN. You keep taking me back to New York.

Mr. ADAMS. Right.

The CHAIRMAN. And I keep taking you back to Baltimore. And the reason I do that is because if you turn 2 pages back from this particular report, which has to do with the Baltimore organization, the question is whether based upon that finding the investigation should continue of the Baltimore group, and the decision is that you will continue to follow and report on the activities of the group. And I just wondered why?

Mr. ADAMS. This is a problem that we have, that we do have organizations where sometimes the—the Women's Liberation group is not a good example because that was washed out, but we do have organizations where—

The CHAIRMAN. What was washed out? Not the Women's Liberation Movement?

Mr. ADAMS. No, the investigation indicated there was no concern or no reason to be concerned about it. But where you do have an organization that has branches in many areas of the country, and you start with one place and it looks like you have a subversive organization, you do have to see, well, is this carried out throughout the organization or is it just one chapter or one group? In other words, not even an organizational problem.

The CHAIRMAN. But you see, the trouble with that is in this Baltimore organization you say in your own report that it was independent, there was no structure or parent organization, no rules or plans, so it isn't a part of a nationally controlled and directed organization by your own admission.

Mr. ADAMS. I believe this report had some subsequent pages that aren't included in here that did show some additional activity or influence.

The CHAIRMAN. I am told by the staff that this summary is accurate, and the only other thing contained was that these women had affiliations with an organization that had protested the war in Baltimore.

Mr. ADAMS. I think there were some other items.

The CHAIRMAN. That is the only other association that we have been able to determine. Apparently the women's liberation movement is no longer under suspicion by the FBI and the case has been closed. What happens when the case is closed? Are those women's names still left in the files? Are they forevermore contained?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. In the system?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. Pretty soon you will have us all in the system. If there is no way, even after surveillance has been terminated, to eliminate the references of individuals through the files of the system, you will one day have us all, won't you?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, I would say as part of a normal business record, when we do make a judgment that an organization should be investigated and we investigate it, and then we find activities but we make a conclusion that there is no additional problem here, this is a record of our official action. Now, if we destroy it, at what point do we get into a situation of being accused of doing things and then destroying things to keep from showing what we do? The critical thing is whether we are able, and we do set up safeguards, where information in our files is not misused at a later date, and that is what these guideline committees are all about.

The CHAIRMAN. Do you have any idea of how many names of Americans you keep in your files all as a result of the cumulative effect of all these surveillances in all of these cases?

Mr. ADAMS. No; I don't.

The CHAIRMAN. It's in the millions, isn't it?

Mr. ADAMS. We have 6½ million files.

The CHAIRMAN. You have 6½ million files?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. And there are surely names of more than one person typically in a file, aren't there?

Mr. ADAMS. But it is a rather large country.

The CHAIRMAN. That's a large number of files to start with, and if you have multiple names in them, you are quickly up into 20, 30, 40 million.

Mr. ADAMS. Right. But many of these files are applicant files. They are not all subversive files. They are not all criminal files. We have a million crimes of violence each year. There is a million people.

The CHAIRMAN. I wish you had more time to spend on those crimes of violence.

Mr. ADAMS. I do, too.

The CHAIRMAN. There we agree.

Mr. ADAMS. Right.

The CHAIRMAN. What I worry about is this. You say there's no way to know when to close a file. These were surveillance files, originally opened to determine whether organizations might have subversive connections. There are names in these files, so some demagogue comes along and says that the name of some public figure is contained in a certain file to be found in the subversive files of the FBI, and there it is. He has not made a misstatement at all. But to the American people that man's name and reputation have been scarred.

Mr. ADAMS. And I hope this committee recognizes that and recommends legislation that would enforce strong punitive or criminal violations against misuse of information in the files. We feel this way, CIA feels this way. We recognize we have a lot of sensitive information in it. We fire our employees if we find them misusing information. We feel we need additional sanctions in this area. I don't think we can ever stop the accumulation of information. I don't know an investigative agency in the world, a law enforcement agency, that does not have to accumulate information. And we are working on guidelines as to how to get rid of the irrelevant information, how to eliminate material that really does not need to be kept. We hope we will be able to come to Congress with these guidelines before too long, which will help address itself to just some of these problems.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, you may be assured that the committee shares your objective in this regard and we will be working with you and the Department of Justice and others to try and change the laws to give a greater measure of protection to the first amendment rights of the American people.

I have no further questions. Are there any other questions?
Senator Mondale?

Senator MONDALE. Mr. Adams, earlier, in inquiring about the basis for investigating Dr. King, I thought I heard two basic justifications. One was suspicion and fear of Communist influence or infiltration. The second was, "that he constituted a threat to the success of the Negro movement." Did I understand that second basis?

Mr. ADAMS. No. The first I was talking about was not suspicion but information indicating Communist influence. The second was on this question of motivation that you have raised. I don't know what their motive was to get to some of these other activities in order to discredit and remove him, but it was a question. Apparently they must have felt that he was a threat to either, as shown in the files the President and Attorney General expressed concern about the civil rights movement and his continued affiliation with some of these people.

Senator MONDALE. Would you agree that it would not be a proper basis for an investigation for the FBI or any other Government official to be concerned about the success of the negro movement?

Mr. ADAMS. I have no problem.

Senator MONDALE. All right. So let us take the one ground that appears to have justified the investigation of Dr. King and the investigation of the women's liberation movement—the fear that "dangerous influence might infiltrate these organizations." Suppose it is true. Suppose that a Communist did have influence over Dr. King, or suppose an SDS member infiltrated and became a dominant influence in a chapter of the women's liberation movement and you established it as a fact. What would you do? Assuming that we can't get into this harassing and so on, you agree that that no longer has any validity. What do you have?

Mr. ADAMS. We have potential violations which might arise, which rarely come to fruition and haven't for many years, but we do have an intelligence responsibility under the directives from the President and the Attorney General. That is, when a revolutionary group, like the Communist Party, has taken over control of a domestic group and the Communist Party is operated by the Soviet Union. We would furnish that information as we do. Every copy of our reports goes to the Department of Justice.

Senator MONDALE. Right; but I just want to use the King case because, as I understood, he was being investigated for the reason that it was feared that a Communist or those who were suspected of being Communists, or known to be Communists, were gaining influence over him. Suppose you established that. What present use or need is there for that information?

Mr. ADAMS. I feel that the President, the Attorney General, the executive branch, needs to know the extent of a foreign-directed Communist organization, its influence and effect on the United States of America.

Senator MONDALE. All right; so if such information is valid, and an investigation to seek it is necessary, is there any limit on the investigative authority of the FBI?

We have just heard about the women's liberation movement where we were fearful that New Left, SDS types might have an influence. That justified that investigation. We now have your statement that we were fearful that some Communists might have influence over Dr. King, and therefore, he was thoroughly investigated. Are there any limits then on who can be investigated?

Mr. ADAMS. Well, the only limits are that we must relate it to a statutory basis of one of the Presidential guidelines we have or the criteria we have, which criteria are receiving scrutiny at the present time by Congress. They have in the past by the Department of Justice, and this is the area of guidelines. This whole area of domestic scrutiny is what we need guidelines in.

Senator MONDALE. Right; and you would agree, we talked about this earlier, that being a Communist is not a crime.

Mr. ADAMS. No, it has not been a crime.

Senator MONDALE. So that the whole basis for this has to apparently stem from a Presidential directive which you think has tasked you to do this.

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

Senator MONDALE. Just a few other points. In 1970, November 6, 1970, a telegram from Newark to the Director went forth proposing that the following telegram be sent: [Exhibit 31.1]

Word received food donated to party by anti-liberation white pigs contains poison. Symptoms cramps, diarrhea, severe stomach pains. Destroy all food donated for convention suspected of poison, however, still required to meet quota. Signed, Ministry of Information.

This was a telegram that was to be sent from Oakland, Calif., to the Jersey City, N.J., headquarters. The telegram went on further.

It is suggested that the Bureau then consider having the laboratory treat fruit, such as oranges with mild laxative-type drug by hypodermic needle or other appropriate method, and ship fruit as a donation from a fictitious person in Miami to the Jersey City headquarters.

The answer then from the Director of the FBI—

The Bureau cannot authorize the treating of fruit to be shipped to Jersey City because of lack of control over the treated fruit in transit. However, Newark's proposed telegram regarding food collected for the Revolutionary People's Constitutional Convention has merit.

How did you ever get to a point like that?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't know. What was the response from Newark and then the final answer taken?

Senator MONDALE. It was turned down because they couldn't control transit, but they thought it was a good idea. Do you think that's a good idea?

Mr. ADAMS. No; I don't. I think that—

Senator MONDALE. How did we ever get to the point that this kind of insane suggestion was considered, a suggestion which violated everyone's civil liberties and was based on Government-sponsored fraud? How does anyone ever consider something like that?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't know.

Senator MONDALE. One final point. When we interviewed one of your former employees, he referred to something I never heard of before called a no-contact list. He did it jokingly, because he said, when the Pope agreed to see Martin Luther King, he was sure he would be put on the no-contact list thereafter. Can you tell me what this list is?

Mr. ADAMS. Not in any specific detail. I know that at one time there was a, there would be a list that if an agent interviewed an individual and this individual created a storm or a ruckus and we didn't want some other agent stumbling out there and interviewing the same person, that we would make sure that they were aware of the fact that further contacts of this individual would result in a problem.

Senator MONDALE. All right. Now in a memo to Clyde Tolson, it refers to a conference on August 26, 1971, with certain—it looks like about 10 members of the FBI. And this is what it says: [Exhibit 32.]

Pursuant to your instruction, members of the conference were briefed concerning recent attempts by various newspapers and reporters to obtain information about or from FBI personnel. Members were specifically advised that there would be absolutely no conversations with or answers from any of the representatives of the Washington Post, New York Times, Los Angeles Times, CBS and NBC. The only acceptable answer to such inquiries is no comment.

Now Senator Huddleston earlier asked about efforts to influence newspapers and media outlet. Does a decision not to answer questions from certain selected media outlets trouble you?

Mr. ADAMS. It is not the policy today. I think this has been aired in the past. There was a period of time wherein Mr. Hoover, in reacting to criticism from some of these newspaper men, where he felt he hadn't been given a fair shake, or for some other reason, that he felt that they should be told no comment, and he instructed they be told no comment. The motivations I am not in a position to discuss, but I can tell you that there has been no such policy in the last several years that I know of.

Senator MONDALE. If you could submit the no-contact list for us, if you can find it, I would appreciate it.

I have some other questions I will submit for the record, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. Very well. I just have one final follow-up question on Senator Mondale's interrogation. I continue to be somewhat fasminated by how long these investigations go, and when, if ever, they are stopped. Apparently they never come out of the files, whatever is found. But Senator Mondale raised the point of a suspicion that in the Martin Luther King case, that he was getting advice from a person who had or was thought to have Communist leanings. And so without using the name, because we are trying to protect privacy as we conduct this investigation—

Mr. ADAMS. I think we have a little more problem than that, too, Senator.

The CHAIRMAN. I am using a Mister X in place of the name. What I am trying to get at is what the criteria is for pursuing an investigation, and this is the kind of a statement that leaves me so perplexed. This has to do with a reply to the New York office by headquarters here in Washington. The part I read to you is as follows:

The Bureau does not agree with the expressed belief of the New York office that Mr. X is not sympathetic to the party cause. While there may not be any direct evidence that Mr. X is a Communist, neither is there any substantial evidence that he is anti-Communist.

And so the directions are to continue the investigation of this matter. In cases of this kind, do you pursue the investigation until you prove the negative?

Mr. ADAMS. No. I believe in that particular case, if it is the one I am thinking about, that there was evidence that at one time he had been a Communist and that there was a question of whether the office felt—well, it's like we have had some situations where a person comes out and publicly disavows their former leanings. Do you take them at words right away after they have been engaged in violent activities, or do you wait until you determine that they really have carried through the disavowed practice? That's a gray area. This one seems that on the wording itself, would seem like an extreme philosophy, leaning toward everyone has to prove in the United States they are not a Communist, and I can assure that is not a policy of the Bureau and does not fit into the criteria of our general investigative matters.

I just feel that there is more to it than just that brief paragraph.

The CHAIRMAN. That particular kind of philosophy has come up in our life from time to time. I remember during the days of McCarthyism in this country, we came very close to the point where people had to prove that they were not now nor ever been a Communist in order to establish themselves as patriotic citizens.

Mr. ADAMS. That's right. That's true.

The CHAIRMAN. And when I see standards of this kind or criteria of this kind emerging, it worries me very much.

I have no further questions. I want to thank you both. If there are no further questions, I want to thank you both for your testimony this morning. It has been very helpful to the committee, and the committee will stand adjourned until 2 p.m.

We will stand adjourned in public session. Our next public session will be 2:30 tomorrow afternoon for purposes of press questioning on the assassination report.

[Whereupon, at 1:07 p.m., the committee adjourned, to reconvene at 2:30 p.m., Thursday, November 20, 1975.]

NEWS CONFERENCE OF CLARENCE M. KELLEY
DIRECTOR, FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
JULY 14, 1975

MR. KELLEY:

Good morning. I have very few statements to make as an opening. I just want to say that this is a further attempt on my part to be a little more available. Frankly, it is something which I hope we can continue and I have not in the past been premeditatively evasive nor reluctant to appear before you. But, frankly, I've been pretty busy with a number of other things. I want to let you know that we're continuing our efforts to try to improve the rapport between us. We will continue to do some things and hopefully, in the future we can get together more frequently on the basis of some of our past meetings which I think have been very fruitful. So now I'll throw it open for questions and these lights are a little bit strong but I'll try to be able to identify you. Do you have any questions?

QUESTION:

Do you have any evidence, sir, or any information leading you to suspect any CIA Agents have been planted in any manner or form in any executive agencies for the purpose of transmitting evidence back to the CIA about that agency?

MR. KELLEY:

I have no evidence whatsoever brought to my attention and I certainly know of none.

QUESTION:

Sir, do you have ongoing programs trying to check out that sort of thing? Do you look for it?

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED
HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED

DATE 3-16-82 BY SP4 JRM/cal

R. KELLEY:

We have no ongoing programs whatsoever and have had no reports that it has occurred and this is something new to us.

QUESTION:

Sir, there have been complaints repeatedly in recent days from Congressmen and Senators on the Hill who are charged with investigating the FBI and its domestic surveillance in past years that they are not getting the information that they need. We heard from Senator Church maybe yesterday. Can you respond to that?

R. KELLEY:

The allegation has been made to the effect that the FBI is dragging its feet, so to speak, and slow to respond to the requests of the Church committee for information relative to past abuses by the FBI in the intelligence field and it's even been said from time to time that this reluctance is reflective of an effort to preserve the image of Mr. Hoover. First, I want you to know that in giving instructions in this matter, it has been consistently my policy to say that we should be completely candid and forthright. And we should respond in whatever manner we can consistent, of course, with some restrictions--those being a matter of confidentiality and right to privacy. Insofar as dragging our feet, the letter which was sent to us was dated May 14, 1975. We immediately embarked on a program to try to respond. In May, 1975, I remember it w the last half of May, we devoted 323 man days to try to respond and to date have added another over 400 hours and it's a total dedication of personnel--of 102 of our people. We have 102 people who are responding to this request. The reason why it has taken this much time and this great amount of manpower is that we must go through all of this material very carefully to preserve, of course, the privacy of those who may be mentioned and also to assure that matters of grave import are not so disclosed. We are trying at best we can to resolve in favor of making them available. I think this number 102 is very significant inasmuch as in the work of the Freedom of Information, there are also over 102, about 105 people, dedicated to fulfilling our obligations there. So, we have almost 210 people engaged in these two enterprises and this has a great impact upon our capabilities. Does that answer your question?

QUESTION: Can you tell us why Senator Church would be complaining?

MR. KELLEY: Why he what?

QUESTION: Why he would be complaining?

MR. KELLEY: No sir, I don't know. Some of these things, of course, may be thought to be too slow and it's thought perhaps that all you have to do is to remove the material from the file and send it on up. We have already submitted a great deal of it and intend within the next 10 days to complete the entire matter.

QUESTION: Is in any of that material now in the Justice Department awaiting approval of the Attorney General?

MR. KELLEY: Yes, some of it is in the hands of the Department ready to be transmitted. That's our first step--after we make our survey, to ship it over to them, they review it and then send it on through.

QUESTION: Well, has it been there for a while?

MR. KELLEY: I can't tell you exactly what length of time but I can say that within about 10 days, we'll have ours completed and you can gauge thereafter what type of delay is experienced through the Department.

QUESTION: Mr. Kelley, Senator Church says that you won't allow him and his staff to interview FBI Agents and that's one of the complaints he makes about the lack of cooperation. Is that true that you will not allow the Senate staff to interview FBI Agents?

MR. KELLEY: We have gone through a procedure whereby ex-FBI Agents may have available to them our people in order to consult with them as to any matter which might be thought to be violative of some of the confidentiality provisions; and we have not, to my knowledge, denied the right of anyone presently employed to be interviewed with, of course again, the requirements that if they want to consult with us they may do so.

QUESTION: Well, in other words, you're saying that FBI Agents can be interviewed by the Senate staff. Is that correct?

MR. KELLEY: Let me just check that. Mr. Mintz, is that correct? Have we denied any?

MR. MINTZ: We have not denied any. We've not indicated to anyone we would not let them be interviewed.

QUESTION: What was that Mr. Kelley, about ex--I didn't understand, about ex-FBI Agents?

MR. KELLEY: Ex-FBI Agents, when called, and we're advised, are informed that one of our people can be present outside the interview room for consultation by that interviewee with our people to determine whether or not a certain question is beyond the purview of his capability, and we do not say to him that he cannot answer but we do say here are the rules the regulations, the law and you can be guided in accordance with your own dictates. But we make available to him a consultant, so to speak.

QUESTION: Is that a requirement or..?

MR. KELLEY: That's an agreement between us.

QUESTION: In other words, when an ex-Agent goes up, he has to have somebody?

MR. KELLEY: No sir, he does not have to have, but we inform him that he may have if he so desires.

QUESTION: During your confirmation hearings two years ago, you advocated or said that you would like to see more Congressional oversight of the FBI. You think now that there's too much, just about right, or not enough oversight?

MR. KELLEY: It is true that I said during my confirmation that I do not object to FBI Congressional oversight. One has been established and I have met with them on several occasions to set an oversight committee. There is also a House so-called oversight committee--it's the House Judiciary Committee--there are others who may by virtue of their jurisdiction feel that they, too, have oversight. We do not oppose House oversight. Frankly, I would like to have a joint committee of oversight so that we can know precisely to whom we should report and they, in turn, know precisely to whom any oversight problems can be referred. Basically, in other words, I do not object to oversight--I do think that it would be much better if we could have it well-structured so that it will be clearly understood by all parties concerned as to what they are going to do and how they are to do it.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, do you feel the oversight being conducted now between the Senate and House is probing too deeply into the FBI--do you feel that any of the operations of the FBI have been hurt by the investigations going on now?

MR. KELLEY:

I do not construe the activities of the oversight groups as having delved too deeply into the work of the FBI. We on occasion feel that perhaps some matters need protection particularly those involving national security, but I have no objection in the exchange in oversight groups of any matter in which we are engaged. I think, as a matter of fact, that this is a proper balance insofar as keeping us in line and I also welcome it inasmuch as it gives us an opportunity to explain just what and how we do things. I do not object to the exchange, in other words.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, you said that you're not attempting to preserve the image of J. Edgar Hoover and, apparently, you know what will be in the information that is to go out of your office in 10 days. Can you tell us, when that information gets up to the Hill and assuming it's made public, are there going to be some more bomb shells about the FBI that we haven't heard about or is this all information which has generally been made public?

MR. KELLEY:

I don't know of any bomb shells, so to speak. In the new media, there have been many things discussed, many reports made, and in those matters I think that just about everything that we know about has been already, at least to some extent, discussed and, to some extent, publicized. I am convinced that in these matters where there might be some criticism, there is an underlying intent to do that which is good for the Nation. I have not come across any activities which I would construe as being illegal, being directed toward personal gain or to enhance the reputation of anyone. I see nothing untoward in these activities, in other words, as they will be reviewed by the various groups.

QUESTION:

Now, Mr. Kelley, Mr. Sullivan said about a week ago, that he assumed there had been some national security break-ins over the years and I'm just wondering if there have been national security break-ins, say in the last five years roughly what number are we talking about and why are they illegal? What's the legal authority?

MR. KELLEY:

There have been statements made about surreptitious entries and the latest was that statement made by Mr. Sullivan who just retired as the Assistant Director in Charge of the Los Angeles Office; and there have been, of course, reports in the media that the Department of Justice has been inquiring into allegations that our people have engaged in surreptitious entries, as they are sometimes termed, burglaries. Yes, the FBI has conducted surreptitious entries in securing information relative to the security of the Nation. However, in 1966, all such activity was terminated with the exception of a small amount of actions which were conducted in connection with foreign counterintelligence investigations which we felt had a grave impact upon the security of the Nation. And again, as I just said, I feel that the FBI personnel participating in or approving such activities acted in good faith with the belief that national security interests were paramount and their actions were reasonable. I'm always mindful of a story I heard many years ago about two neighbors who started some arguments which, obviously, were going to terminate into difficulties. One of the neighbors started a campaign to build himself up with shadowboxing, punching the bag and so forth, and it appeared very likely that he was going to be in pretty good shape in order to beat up his neighbor and so the neighbor, thereafter, concerned as to what would happen to him, started to defend himself. You don't wait until the climax which could be the putsch--you start preparing yourself and so I think that the FBI and its officials construed this as paramount again in the protection of the country.

QUESTION:

You said that in 1966, there were a small amount of burglaries. I'm just wondering how small is small and who gave the OK. Did this come from President Johnson or President Nixon or was this a decision made by Attorney General....

MR. KELLEY: This matter will be discussed in subsequent hearings and in reports, and further than what I have stated, I cannot comment.

QUESTION: Mr. Kelley, were these directed against Americans or foreign persons?

MR. KELLEY: I would prefer not at this point to make any comments further and particularly not in particularity as to who may have been the ones against whom they were directed.

QUESTION: Well, were they all conducted in this country or were some conducted overseas?

MR. KELLEY: I know of none overseas.

QUESTION: Sir, going back to prior to 1966, why was the procedure changed in 1966?

MR. KELLEY: By virtue of the feeling of Mr. Hoover that, under the then-prevailing philosophy and the feeling that possibly in the context of the times, this was not a viable procedure--they were stopped. It was Mr. Hoover's decision.

QUESTION: Sir, can we infer that there were quite a number, a large number, of burglaries prior to 1966, but fewer since then?

MR. KELLEY: You cannot infer anything because I have not told you of any number. I can only say that they were stopped in 1966. As to the number, I cannot actually tell you how many nor can I say that it's quite a number or very few.

QUESTION: | Why can't you tell us the number?

ANSWER: | Because we're going to make reports to our Congressional groups and to the Department of Justice and, frankly, I can't tell you the number myself. We don't have any....

QUESTION: | They did not entirely stop in 1966? There were some that did get, you say, a small number after 1966?

ANSWER: | There may have been some after 1966 which were, of course, in the field of foreign counterintelligence, and such that it would make a grave impact on our...

QUESTION: | Before that, they were not with the field of foreign counterintelligence?

ANSWER: | Oh, yes, there were some in that field also.

QUESTION: | There were others that were not in the field of foreign counterintelligence before 1966?

ANSWER: | You recall that I said in the context of the time, it may well have been that prior to that time national security or counterintelligence or whatever terminology you might want to use could have included other areas. But, then you began to compartmentize various types of activities and then it became evident that the area of foreign counterintelligence national security certainly should be differentiated from domestic security.

QUESTION: | But, Mr. Kelley, what policy have you followed in the time that you have been Director? Is this type of activity, has it been permitted? Is it policy now to conduct this kind of activity?

ANSWER: | I have not had a single request to conduct such activity since I have been made Director. If ever anything of this type comes up, and I can't foresee this need, but, if it ever did come up and it became a matter of grave concern, a matter which is to be solved only through such activity, I would present it to the Attorney General and would be guided by his opinion as to such activity. Frankly, I have not had any such request since I have come aboard.

QUESTION: Is that in the foreign field, Mr. Kelley. Is that limited to the foreign field when you say such activity?

ANSWER: Yes, sir. Foreign intelligence, counterintelligence, national security, whatever terminology you want to use.

QUESTION: Back prior to 1966, were any of those in say organized crime investigations?

ANSWER: I know of none.

QUESTION: Would you characterize, Mr. Kelley, what areas they were in, please. What areas the pre-1966 burglaries took place? Characterize the kinds of investigations they concern?

ANSWER: I can not at this point characterize them because I just don't know how they were to be characterized. But, it could be that, I would guess, that the great majority of them are what we now term counter-foreign, counterintelligence, or national security. I would say that in all probability the great majority of them were in that area. That's where the grave concern is.

QUESTION: * Have you reviewed them from a legal point of view to determine whether any of them at all were conducted without proper legal authority?

ANSWER: We have discussed them with the Department, and will place them in their hands and they will make such a review.

QUESTION: I wanted to ask you if this goes back to World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, the Cold War or all of them?

ANSWER: They will go back to World War II, I'm confident.

QUESTION: Is it possible to get court authorization by warrant or whatever means for surreptitious entry as distinguished from an ordinary search warrant?

ANSWER: Inherent in the request for a microphone installation there is a matter of surreptitious entry. So, therein you have a natural concomitant. You do have that permission. There is some dictum to indicate, at present, that this may be brought up later. But, I know of no authorization which can be obtained per se for a surreptitious entry. And, at this point, of course, the feeling is that these confined as they are to foreign counterintelligence it flows from presidential authority as it applies also to the warrantless wiretaps.

QUESTION: Weren't the civil rights groups, Mr. Kelley, among some of the organizations who were burglarized?

ANSWER: I'm not going to say anything about where they were, or against which organizations they were directed, only to say that they were, Mr. Nelson, and I hope that will satisfy you, and I hope that if there is any revelation to be made later that they can be as complete as possible because, again, we feel that the intent was a very good one and there was no illegality concerned. And the impact of it was to protect the country.

QUESTION: Sir, how can you say that there was no illegality concerned if the Constitution says that you have to have a search warrant to make an entry and without, as I understand it, even checking this with the Attorney General, these Agents burglarized private premises?

ANSWER:  The resolution of the problem which you now present is up to the Department and the courts, and I, of course, will not engage in anything except to say that in the defense of the men who authorized and participated, that they had this intent and within every criminal violation there is a necessity that there be the ingredient of intent and there was none here as far as I can determine.

QUESTION: Mr. Kelley, would you say, sir, that most of these requests for surreptitious entry flowed from presidential authority? Is that what you said, sir?

ANSWER: No, I did not say that. I did not give a complete outline as to what the authorization was. And, this again will be a matter which will be discussed in the reviews of the Department and the various Congressional committees.

QUESTION:

Sir, would you say that the Cubans who burglarized Daniel Elzberg's psychiatrist's office should not have been convicted then since they thought that they were on a national security mission? They didn't intend to violate any laws. That was their testimony.

ANSWER:

I have no judgment insofar as that because my province is in presenting the facts and for the review and determination by the courts and if such an inference was made it was not intended by me to give them any sanctuary. I'm trying to keep in the area of our facts and that particular thing as to whether or not they had any intent or whether or not it is a viable defense is up to the courts.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, did you twice mention that you expect some resolution to this question in the courts? How is it going to get into the courts?

ANSWER:

I don't know. It possibly will be some sort of a defense, rather some sort of a presentation to the courts by the Attorney General. He has indicated that perhaps this being a Constitutional question--it being a matter of the executive privilege of the presidential power--that it might well be necessary to have such a review to determine.

QUESTION:

* Were all of these break-ins conducted with the permission of either the Attorney General or the President at the time? Or were there any that were conducted without such approval?

ANSWER:

I cannot, at this point, give you any particulars about the program. I just say, as I did before, and this....

QUESTION:

Because you don't know or because you're withholding comment?

ANSWER:

I'm withholding comment.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, I'm still unclear about distinction between break-ins before 1966 and afterward. Is the reduction in number the only change that was made or was there change in the limitations on the targets that were used?

ANSWER:

There was a change insofar as the targets just being in the subsequent area confined to those matters which were concerned in foreign counterintelligence.

QUESTION:      You imply then that the others concern domestic security or did it go beyond that?

ANSWER:        This implication is yours, Mr. Rogers, but....

QUESTION:      I'm trying to recall what you said initially.

ANSWER:        I said that..., the question was asked me whether I included domestic intelligence, and I said I was confident that the great majority was in the area of foreign intelligence or foreign counter-intelligence, whatever you want to call it. And there may have been. I don't know.

QUESTION:      Mr. Kelley, you said that you have not received a request for any type of activities such as this since you have been in office. When did the last one take place?

ANSWER:        I do not know. I do not know.

QUESTION:      Will the material you turn over to the Church Committee include full details of everyone of the break-ins?

ANSWER:        It will be a matter which will be completely presented to the Attorney General, and, insofar as full disclosure by him, that's a question which only he can answer. We will report those about which we know.

QUESTION:      Mr. Kelley, you said it was also for the good of the country that Agents send letters to school boards and principals and others to damage the reputation of people working who have had connections with groups the FBI had infiltrated. Was that also for the good of the country?

ANSWER:        Your statement, was that also for the good of the country to do that, to damage the reputation, was not the issue. As you pose your question, you answered substantially my response that would be made. Yes, I think that the purpose here was to do something that would ultimately end to the benefit of the Nation. In other words, I think in the so-called COINTEL Program, which you mentioned, that the intent there was one which had adequate basis. As to the programs, now, individually activities within those programs may be suspect. I have said and repeated that some of those activities I would not feel are proper today. I wasn't there during the time that all of these programs were developed, nor certainly the approval of the various activities within those programs. Were I to have been there, there is some that perhaps I might have said, "No I don't think this is proper." I have the benefit of hindsight. I have the benefit of experience in local law enforcement which, I think, prepares me to better understand perhaps the impact of some of these types of things. They are not at all unknown in the field of law enforcement. In some degree or another almost all the law enforcement has engaged in some similar types of activities. Not perhaps to the sophistication as the COINTEL Program, but the context of the time is felt necessary in the present day. We realize that different standards should be applied and they are and we do not engage in those activities now. Since April, 1971, we cut them off.

(NOTE TO CORRESPONDENTS AND EDITORS: The preceding comment by Mr. Kelley concerning local police use of efforts similar to COINTELPRO may be open to misinterpretation. At his direction the FBI later issued his clarifying statement: "I had in mind that law enforcement agencies have used methods designed to create disunity among the criminal element, particularly in organized crime and hoodlum gangs. Probably most common was labeling a crime figure as a police informant to discredit and destroy his criminal influence. These activities to pit one crime figure against another have achieved success in neutralizing the criminal element.")

QUESTION:

You said that you disagreed with some of the activities, that they were not proper programs. Alright, does that mean that there are variations of COINTEL Programs still going on?

ANSWER:

In the first place, we delineate certain programs. That's the overall structure of the full system. Within each of these programs there were some activities, individual activities. I feel that the setup of the programs certainly was directed properly, that is, with the intent to preserve the Nation. Insofar as some individual activities, yes, I feel that some were, in today's context particularly, imprudent and that they were not, again in the present context, the type of thing that certainly I would approve. Be that as it may, we stopped them in 1971 and we have no intention to continue them."

QUESTION: Mr. Kelley?

ANSWER: Yes, sir, Joe?

QUESTION:

When you were an Agent did you engage in any break-ins or were you aware of any break-ins?

ANSWER:

Insofar as the matter which you are now discussing, I think that we can give substantially the same answer to this. This is a matter which is being investigated by the Department and is being investigated by the various committees, particularly the Select Committee of Congress and, I'm not saying that Clarence Kelley engaged in such activities, or did not engage in these activities. I'm merely saying that these have been presented for review and they will, thereafter, be discussed at some length and any publicity that might be given them will be that which will be given by those more knowledgeable than I.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, to your knowledge have any members of the FBI been involved in the planning or execution of assassinations?

ANSWER:

No, sir. I know of none.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, how about the break-in of embassies here in Washington. Have any members of the FBI gained surreptitious entry into any embassies in Washington?

ANSWER:

Without naming or designating victims or institutions, I can only say that there were a few concerned with counterintelligence--foreign in nature--subsequent to 1966. Further than that I cannot say.

QUESTION:

A few is 10, 20, 100? When you say few, I'm sure that I'm lost as to how few is a few.

ANSWER:

Not many.

QUESTION:

Was a lot of this done in Washington as opposed to other cities in the country?

ANSWER:

There were not a lot, I'm confident of that. And, frankly, I don't think that all of the few were confined to Washington, D. C., but I can't tell you absolutely that that is true.

QUESTION: Mr. Kelley, were any of these done in conjunction with the CIA? With their knowledge?

ANSWER: I know of none. Now, subsequently, perhaps there may have been information which did go to them but, not insofar as the origin of the information, I'm confident of that. We were not in partnership with CIA.

QUESTION: How about the NSA? Were there any of these break-ins done to help benefit the NSA in its code-breaking programs?

ANSWER: That is a matter which will be developed and will be presented and, it's better for them to comment than I.

QUESTION: Mr. Kelley, the Rockefeller Commission report said that, in discussing the CIA's mail cover operations, said the FBI only learned about this about five years after it was in the works. In 1958, I believe. Mr. Colby's report to the President said the FBI knew about it from its conception. Which is correct?

ANSWER: It is my understanding it was 1968.

QUESTION: 1958?

ANSWER: 1968. Wait a minute, 1958, 1958. That's right, 1958.

QUESTION: Mr. Kelley, in the last 50 years, as I understand it from FBI officials, there has never been an FBI Agent prosecuted for any kind of corruption or crime in connection with his official duties. Is there any agreement with the Justice Department either in writing or any other kind of agreement not to prosecute people who may stray from or commit crimes but, rather to handle it with internal discipline?

ANSWER: Mr. Kelly, spelled K-E-L-L-Y, there is no such agreement. I would not abide by such an agreement. I vehemently oppose any such arrangement and would not operate under such arrangement. No, there is none. Yes, anyone that, within the FBI, will be prosecuted if there is evidence leading to that conclusion. I can assure you absolutely that this is my policy, is the policy of the Bureau, and that we will pursue them as vigorously as we possibly can. There's nothing worse in my estimation than the betrayal of trust and that's what we have when one of your own people defects and gives sanctuary and assistance to the criminal world.

QUESTION:

How do you account than for the fact that there has been no one who has strayed across the line in all these years? It's almost unhuman.

ANSWER:

Well, I appreciate your compliment, Mr. Kelly, which I agree with, there has been none. There have been, of course, some allegations made from time to time, all of which have been pursued and found to be groundless. I think that it's inherent in an organization which is closely scrutinized, an organization which has a strong inspection system but, more than anything else, is the choice of people who are not susceptible to this type of thing. Unquestionably, in such a screening process some might get through. But, than, within the FBI is a built-in system which further prevents this possibility and that is a tremendous pride in this very matter. That is, that there has been no corruption. And, I am confident that Agents working with one another, although, will, of course, on occasion be sympathetic to an Agent who possibly may be drinking too much or may possibly, for other reasons in the area the morals might digress to some extent, they absolutely will not countenance corruption or defection to the criminal element or otherwise contaminate that splendid reputation of the Bureau. It's a unique situation. It's difficult for some to understand. But, it's a built-in barrier to an extension of this type of activity and, something of which we will have tremendous pride and I personally would not hesitate one second to pursue any allegations such as this, feeling that although it may get wide publicity, although it may, to some extent, harm the credibility of the FBI, it must be done. And, I assure you, will be done. Unusual perhaps, but nonetheless, it is present and we will persist with this type of activity. We don't ask our Agents to squeeel on one another, we point out the splendid reputation that is inherent within our tradition and is one of the finest traditions you can possibly build.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, earlier you spoke of the advantages and limitations of hindsight. After having examined the records of the break-ins and other surreptitious activity, you observed that you thought it was well intentioned, I believe, in most cases. Did you also observe that there was any gross misuse of authority in the process of that?

MR. KELLEY:

I do not note in these activities any gross misuse of authority. I see a consistent thread of well-intentioned activities. Perhaps now in the present society, and in the context of now and in those times. I do not feel that it was a corruption of the trust that has been placed in us. As now we have determined a valuation that perhaps could be wrong, but in those days there was no intention to engage in activities which were prohibited, illegal, or otherwise wrong.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, why wouldn't an act like the bugging of Martin Luther King's hotel room have been a betrayal of trust? These Agents took an oath under the Constitution and that was prohibited by Federal law at that time.

MR. KELLEY:

There have been a number of articles written about this situation. In reviewing this situation, I feel that the authority stemmed from the proper source. It was a matter which was construed in those times as of considerable concern to the country, and the FBI acted in accordance with the request which was made that it be installed.

You say that it was a matter which was then a violation of the law. Within the warrantless wiretaps under ordinary circumstances they could conceivably be construed as a violation, but under the umbrella of the protection of the country they have been authorized, so I don't subscribe to the feeling that they knowingly, in such an installation, violated the law with the intent to violate the law.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, do you still--does the FBI still--compile personal information on the personal behavior of Members of Congress, members of the press, and other people?

MR. KELLEY:

The FBI receives a great deal of information from time to time. We are charged when we have a complaint to write up that complaint. We feel that not only are we following the archival rules that such must be recorded, but also we feel in discharge of our duties we should record it because such information might well dovetail with some investigation that we are conducting.

People come to us to tell about these things for reasons--not just to spill out gossip and rumor and to possibly put someone on the spot. We inform them, for example, at the time they submit this information a record will be made of this but if it is outside the jurisdiction of the FBI we so state. They know before they leave, for example, that nothing will be done about it other than to record it.

QUESTION: But it is put in the files?

MR. KELLEY: Yes, it is put in the files. Yes sir.

QUESTION: Whether it has to do with sex activities, or drinking too much, or what have you?

MR. KELLEY: The allegations within the complaint are put into the complaint and are put into the file no matter what they might be. Yes.

QUESTION: Government officials, Members of Congress and the press, and what have you?

MR. KELLEY: Yes sir. The Department of Justice and the Bureau are now engaged in a mutual venture to set up guidelines as to our activity in this regard. We will abide by those guidelines. We do want it known, however, that some of this information might very well be helpful to us in later investigations. The abuse is the publication of this information, and I know of no abuse, Jack, which we can point to.

QUESTION: Has it been used at times to try to get a person's job?

MR. KELLEY: I know of none.

QUESTION: You know of none?

MR. KELLEY: Now you say to try to get a person's job? Now I don't know of all of the activities that were involved in--and I say to you, Jack, that yes there have been some accounts as to this effect. I feel that actually were there any such activity it was on the basis of a feeling that these things were true and that they were of such importance that they should be passed on. Some of these, of course, are in the COINTEL Program. I was not privy to some of these allegations. I assure you that this will not continue to the present time. I have been asked what about your own feeling about such information. Since I have arrived I have not had a bit of gossip or a bit of rumor sent to me and this is over two years. I have not reviewed files to find out about reporters, Congressmen or other public figures. I do not subscribe to that type of thing. I have a file on me. It is a quite lengthy file. It includes the investigation conducted about me at the time I was being considered. I understand it is quite voluminous. I assure you that I have not read that file. I do not know who made complimentary statements about me. I don't know who made derogatory statements. Perhaps, maybe, some of you may have made such statements. I don't want to be colored in my opinion about you by some statements which you may have made in good faith, and I think this substantially is what it is all about. The confidentiality and the privacy of individuals. If you, Joe Lastelic, want to make a statement about me, you should. I think you should be given that right, and I think that the proper forum is in one of confidentiality. I have not read those so-called gossip, rumor, or other objectionable types of materials. I am not going to read them, and I certainly do not sponsor any move to revive anything such as may have once existed.

QUESTION:

Those files will remain? Rumors, gossips--gossip, whatever is in it?

MR. KELLEY:

Yes sir.

QUESTION:

You said that you don't question the motives of people who come in to give you information. Do you ever check out the information that was given to you about the people?

MR. KELLEY:

If it is within our jurisdiction and makes allegations which may mount into a violation, yes, we check them out. But a mere allegation that so and so is a sex deviate or that he is going around conducting himself other than in a gentlemanly manner and so forth, no, we do not just on the bare gossip stage check that out.

QUESTION:

But, nevertheless, that remains in file. You don't check that out, that remains in the person's file unevaluated and raw. Is that correct?

MR. KELLEY:

That's right. Now the implication is that you should possibly clear the man. In so doing you would, of course, be violating your charter which is that you do not investigate matters of this type. You might also by virtue of this give it some degree of statute by investigating it. But more than anything else if we have no business in it we shouldn't be checking it out and we do not.

QUESTION: If you have no business in it, why are you in it at all?

MR. KELLEY: We did not enter into it.

QUESTION: Is this a file that is a part of the FBI records?

MR. KELLEY: Yes sir.

QUESTION: You won't always be the FBI Director?

MR. KELLEY: That's right. I am confident of that. I am with you a thousand percent.

QUESTION: Mr. Kelley, can you tell us when you first learned of the files that Mr. Hoover kept that were called his confidential or OC files and whether or not anyone within the Bureau knew about those files and failed to tell you about them?

MR. KELLEY: Jack, that's a long answer, but I will try to brief it. I first learned of the possibility that these files existed in January, 1974. I then was presented a list of some of the files and called in one of the Assistant Directors and said what is this all about. Should they be integrated into the general file system, and I mean by that that we have a general file system. We have a section of our files which are kept in a separate room because we don't want everyone to have the capability of going into them. The man who was charged with the responsibility of looking into this then within a few months retired. The next stimulation of this situation arose after a statement appeared in the paper mentioning these files and we immediately talked about this. Still I did not look at the files. I then instructed that our Inspection Division go over them and make a listing of them, categorizing them. Some of them, of course, were purely administrative, some included information as outlined by Mr. Levi. Such a listing was made and was turned over to the Department. Thereafter Mr. Silberman looked them over and thereafter Mr. Levi looked them over and I made a rather cursory check of them myself. Why did I not look these files over in the first place? I did not construe them as being within the realm of the so-called dossiers that had been mentioned before and during, certainly, my confirmation. I said I did not subscribe to the preparation or retention of dossiers on Congressmen nor members of the Senate. I still persist in that and we have not. My references were about those which were declared improper during Mr. Gray's administration and they were at that time stopped. These were dossiers that were prepared on candidate for Members of Congress and those who failed in their venture were destroyed. Those which were successful were put into the general files. We no longer do that and frankly, in my opinion, this is what was referred to. I feel that these files should be maintained confidential. I still have not given them a close review. I have not done so for the very reason as I mentioned about my own file. I don't think it will benefit me to go over them. Under archival rules they must be preserved. In the guidelines which are to be established, I will welcome any reasonable guideline which says we either do or do not preserve them. I am anxious for us to do our work the way it should be done. More than that, I cannot say.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, there have been suggestions that your absences from Washington for family reasons have prevented you from getting the kind of control of the Bureau that you would have if you were here all the time. I am wondering how you respond to that kind of suggestion?

MR. KELLEY:

My response is that I feel that I have been able to maintain control. I am certainly in constant touch. I have telephone calls that are relayed to me when I have made such trips. I am confident that the executive staff of this Bureau is solidly behind me. I say this inasmuch as I have somewhat a feeling such as may be implied in your question. I must as a result of conditions that you know about make these trips. If I feel that in so doing it will endanger my administrative control and my capability of doing that which I think should be done, I will leave.

There is no question whatsoever because that which I say applies to others should also apply to me. But, I do feel that I have control of the organization. I have known of no disruptive tactics that might have been launched to unseat me and again were there any evidence of that and found, in my opinion, to be one which is well grounded, I would immediately leave.

QUESTION:

Mr. Kelley, if I can return for the moment to the subject of break-ins. You said that conditions of national security and foreign intelligence--there may have been other areas. I wonder if you can be a little clearer on whether there were any break-ins that were not related to foreign intelligence or national security?

MR. KELLEY: I know of none.

SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES

Reference is made to your memorandum dated April 21, 1976, captioned "Surreptitious Entries," which requested that certain material and files be made available for review by representatives of the Civil Rights Division.

Category B of this memorandum concerns the Socialist Workers Party (SWP), its members, candidates and officials. Question 10, Category B, concerns [REDACTED] who was investigated as a member of the Detroit Chapter of the SWP. A Security of Government Employees (SGE) investigation was also conducted during 1973 based on her employment with the U.S. Department of Interior.

As you are aware, the Detroit SGE report dated April 18, 1973, contains a letter dated March 29, 1971, addressed to "Dear Comrade," and signed by [REDACTED]. The concluding sentence in Question 10, Category B, of your letter reads "State specifically how the Bureau obtained possession of the March 29 letter."

It is also noted that during the hearings before the Select Committee on Intelligence, U.S. House of Representatives [REDACTED] submitted an affidavit on November 14, 1975, wherein she alleged that the above letter was obtained through a burglary of the SWP Office in Detroit during the Fall of 1971.

On November 12, 1975, and again on May 13, 1976, Detroit [REDACTED] advised that the Agents who handled the investigations of [REDACTED] in 1971 were Special Agent (SA) [REDACTED] who wrote the SGE report containing the above letter, and SA [REDACTED] who placed the letter in the exhibit envelope of the security file. According to SA [REDACTED] SA [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] claimed the letter was definitely not obtained from a "black bag" job or a "mail intercept" and they also feel certain it was furnished by a security informant, who provided coverage of the SWP in Detroit.

The Detroit security file regarding [REDACTED] reveals that the letter was received from an anonymous source on November 2, 1971, and was placed in this file by SA [REDACTED] who has since been transferred to our Charlotte Office.

The SGE investigation in Detroit was handled during 1973 by SA [REDACTED] who continues to be assigned in our Detroit Office.

The file concerning the above informant was reviewed and it contained no information indicating that SA [REDACTED] had received this letter from that particular source.

In order to respond to your request, the Special Agents in Charge of the Charlotte and Detroit Offices were instructed on June 7, 1976, to interview SA [REDACTED] of the Charlotte Office and SA [REDACTED] of the Detroit Office as to knowledge either may possess concerning this matter.

On June 23, 1976, the above-mentioned security informant was shown the above-mentioned letter signed by [REDACTED]. This source stated that he has no recollection of the letter and has "no idea" who may have furnished it to the FBI.

Attached for your information are two copies of a Letterhead Memorandum prepared at Charlotte dated June 14, 1976, and two copies of a Letterhead Memorandum at Detroit dated June 10, 1976.

The above information reports the results of contacts with the three persons who might logically know the source of the letter and these contacts do not resolve the matter. If you wish additional investigation to be conducted, please advise the nature and scope of investigation you desire.

3879 Reference memorandum A. B. Fulton to Mr. T. W. Leavitt, 7/14/76, captioned "Surreptitious Entries." (Copy attached)

PURPOSE:

To record for information a conversation on 7/9/76 between Departmental Attorney William L. Gardner and Intelligence Division (INTD) [REDACTED] concerning the subject of referenced memorandum; for approval to provide Mr. Gardner, for his approval, a copy of attached nitel to all field offices; for approval to send attached letter to the Assistant Attorney General, Civil Rights Division.

SYNOPSIS:

On 7/8/76, Mr. Gardner advised he would consider the Bureau's proposed survey; on 7/9/76, Mr. Gardner advised he had no objection to the survey. Mr. Gardner asked that he be furnished a copy of the communication being sent to the field, and a copy of the survey results. On 7/20/76, Legal Counsel recommended that the communication going to all field offices be provided for advance approval to Mr. Gardner.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

DETAILS:

Memorandum A. B. Fulton to Mr. T. W. Leavitt, 7/14/76, captioned "Surreptitious Entries," outlined a conversation on 7/8/76 between Departmental Attorney William L. Gardner and INTD [REDACTED] concerning a Bureau proposal to canvass all field offices for a review of symbol number indexes. The purpose of such review is to determine whether or not there exist symbol numbers assigned to surreptitious entries which have not yet been brought to the attention of Headquarters and the Department.

On 7/9/76, Mr. Gardner said he would have no objection to this proposed action. He asked that he be furnished a copy of the communication being sent to all field offices; however, that it was not necessary that the communication be furnished to him in advance. He asked that a copy of the communication be furnished to the special task force conducting the Surreptitious Entry Investigation.

On 7/20/76, Legal Counsel recommended that a copy of the communication being sent to the field be approved in advance by Mr. Gardner.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE INQUIRY INTO MATTERS INVOLVING SURREPTITIOUS ENTRY, AND THE SEARCH FOR DOCUMENTS RELATING TO POLICIES, PROCEDURES, AND ENTRIES THEMSELVES, IT IS BELIEVED NECESSARY THAT FIELD OFFICE INFORMANT SYMBOL NUMBER INDEXES BE SEARCHED TO DETERMINE WHETHER OR NOT ALL SYMBOL NUMBERS ASSIGNED TO SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES HAVE BEEN BROUGHT TO THE ATTENTION OF FBI HEADQUARTERS AND THE DEPARTMENT.

ACCORDINGLY, YOU SHOULD SEARCH APPROPRIATE INFORMANT SYMBOL NUMBER INDEXES (SECURITY, CRIMINAL, EXTREMIST) FOR THE PERIOD 1960 TO THE PRESENT. ELIMINATE THOSE NUMBERS WHICH CAN BE IDENTIFIED POSITIVELY AS LIVE INFORMANTS, TECHNICAL SURVEILLANCES, MICROPHONE SURVEILLANCES, OR TRASH OR MAIL COVERAGE, AND FURNISH TO FBIHQ THOSE NUMBERS WHICH YOU CANNOT IDENTIFY AS ONE OF THE AFOREMENTIONED, INCLUDING SYMBOL NUMBERS ASSIGNED TO "HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL SOURCES," AND "ANONYMOUS SOURCES."

Reference is made to a July 9, 1976, conversation of Mr. William L. Gardner and a representative of the Intelligence Division wherein Mr. Gardner interposed no objection to an FBI Headquarters (FBIHQ) proposal to canvass certain indices, in all field offices, in a further effort to identify surreptitious entry activity.

Enclosed for your files is one copy of a field-wide communication entitled "Surreptitious Entries," dated July 22, 1976. This communication has been reviewed by Mr. Gardner.

For your information, each field office maintains an index of informant symbol numbers assigned to technical surveillances, microphone surveillances, trash and mail covers, and live informants. This index, for security purposes, is maintained separately from the field office general indices. When an office assigns a symbol number to an informant, this number is communicated to FBIHQ where it is recorded in an appropriate index.

During the course of our response to Departmental inquiries concerning surreptitious entries, we have consulted appropriate symbol number indices at FBIHQ to develop information about entries. We have not, except in specific cases, consulted informant symbol number indices fieldwide.

We are presently unaware of any evidence suggesting that a canvass of each office's symbol number index will uncover entry activities not already known to FBIHQ, or reported to the Department or plaintiffs in the Socialist Workers Party civil action; however, we believe in the interest of completeness that such a survey would be appropriate.

You will be advised of the results of this survey July 28, 1976

By "JUNE" airtel dated 4/17/72 under the [REDACTED] caption Chicago set forth results of inquiry regarding the address in question and requested Bureau authority to conduct a survey to determine the feasibility of a MISUR installation. Authority to conduct the survey was granted in Bureau airtel dated 4/21/72. Chicago airtel dated 5/1/72 set forth results of a survey conducted 4/28/72 involving an extremely brief entry. Chicago recommended against installation of a MISUR but noted a TESUR was feasible. A subsequent request for TESUR was rejected since one could not be justified merely for the purpose of apprehending fugitives.

A nine point summary of pertinent data follows:

1. Date of entry - 4/28/72.

2. Location and nature of premises entered -
A second floor apartment in a converted two story wood frame house located at [REDACTED] Chicago, Illinois.

4. The group which was target of this inquiry was the Weatherman underground.

5. The purpose of the entry was to conduct a survey to determine feasibility of MISUR coverage.

6. The survey determined a MISUR was not feasible. No materials were obtained. Entry was very brief.

7. No organization other than the FBI participated

8. Approval for the survey was given in Bureau airtel dated 4/21/72. Identify of approving Bureau official unknown in Chicago although recollection not supported by records indicated Assistant Director MILLER, Division 5, desired survey made. Field office approval was handled

On today's date I made a further review of the contents of SAC safe at Philadelphia. Within this safe there was an item which I had not previously noted. It is a plain file type folder with no file numbers or distinctive markings thereon except words on the cover "Investigative Techniques." There are two "serials" in the folder which are blockstamped but not serialized. On the possibility these items might be pertinent to the instant inquiry, copies of the two "serials" are being enclosed herewith.

Memorandum

TO : File

DATE: 3-22-63

FROM : SAC

SUBJECT: INVESTIGATIVE TECHNIQUES

Today I talked to Assistant Director AL BELMONT who advised that the Bureau is extremely interested in the full utilization of all investigative techniques, including those of "bag jobs."

He stated that it is the responsibility of the SAC, ASAC, or the Supervisor in Charge to advise the Assistant Director involved and request authority for this investigative technique. He said briefly set out the facts of the case and the potential value of the operation and be sure there is no fishing expedition. We should be satisfied that proper planning has been put into effect in that the individual in the field who is making this recommendation is fully assured of complete security.

When such technique is used an informal memo should be filed in the SAC's office which will be available to the inspection staff, after which they can be destroyed. The same information should be sent to the Bureau in order that the proper officials can become cognizant.

Only stable and dedicated agents should be utilized on this type of technique.

Reference is made to your memorandum of August 19, 1975, captioned "Surreptitious Entries," in which you asked for certain information concerning surreptitious entries performed by Bureau personnel since January 1, 1966. Further reference is made to our memorandum of April 30, 1976, captioned as above, reporting results of a canvass of all Bureau field offices for documents relating to surreptitious entries.

On August 2, 1976, our Philadelphia Office advised that as a result of a further review of the contents of the Special Agent in Charge's (SAC) office safe, two unserialized documents were located in a folder marked "Investigative Techniques." Copies of the documents, as described below, were forwarded to FBI Headquarters (FBIHQ).

The second document is a memorandum dated March 22, 1963, captioned "Investigative Techniques," which details a conversation on the same date between SAC, Philadelphia and Assistant to the Director, Alan W. Belmont, concerning use of all investigative techniques, including "bag jobs." This memorandum outlines the procedures to be followed by a field office in requesting approval to conduct a "bag job," and in handling memoranda relating to the technique on the field office level.

Reference is made to your memorandum of August 19, 1975, captioned "Surreptitious Entries," in which you asked for certain information concerning surreptitious entries performed by Bureau personnel since January 1, 1966.

In a communication of July 29, 1976, our Chicago Office advised that during a review of a closed file in that office, information was located showing an April 28, 1972, entry in connection with a survey for microphone installation.

ALL

[REDACTED]

The April 28 survey determined that a microphone installation was not feasible. No materials were obtained during the survey; no organization other than the FBI participated.

The FBI Headquarters (FBIHQ) file relating to [REDACTED] indicates that the use of a microphone installation was suggested to Chicago by FBIHQ. The Chicago Office recommended the survey and requested authority to conduct same in a communication of April 17, 1972. Authority to conduct the survey was communicated to Chicago in an airtel of April 21, 1972.

SURREPTITIOUS ENTRIES

Reference is made to your memorandum of August 19, 1975, captioned "Surreptitious Entries," in which you asked for certain information concerning surreptitious entries performed by Bureau personnel since January 1, 1966. (u)

As you are aware, from time to time we have located certain files and documents indicating surreptitious entry activity not previously brought to your attention, and falling within the scope of your inquiry. Recently, one section of an FBI Headquarters (FBIHQ) file came to our attention which, because it concerns the assignment of informant symbol numbers and informant coverage, warranted review to determine whether or not any of the numbers therein might have been assigned to entry activity. (u)

HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED EXCEPT WHERE SHOWN OTHERWISE.

The "Security Informant Program" file, 66-2542-3, is maintained to account statistically for the informant coverage in all field offices, and to show additions to, and deletions from, informant programs in each office. The file consists of monthly, quarterly and other periodic submissions from each field division. There are two sections of this file: the main file, and the "JUNE" file. (u)

On April 30, 1976, in connection with Intelligence Division (INTD) responses to requests of your Division, the "JUNE" section of the "Security Informant Program" file was reviewed for all offices. In the "JUNE" sub-file for our New York Office were located several memoranda showing New York's assignment of symbol numbers to "highly confidential sources." Each symbol number located was carefully checked against material previously furnished to you, i.e., entry activity subsequent to January 1, 1966, and it was determined that symbol numbers in the file had either been furnished to your office or had occurred prior to January 1, 1966. (X)

On July 28, 1976, in connection with a recent INTD-initiated survey of all field offices to determine whether or not their respective informant symbol number indices contained numbers assigned to surreptitious entries, the New York Office consulted INTD as to the identity of certain symbol numbers which that office could not identify. The following INTD search located a reference to the main file, "Security Informant Program." (X)

A review of the New York Division main case sub-file "Security Informant Program," showed a number of memoranda showing assignment of informant symbol numbers to "highly confidential sources." This review was made on July 30, 1976. No symbol numbers for New York were located in this file which fall within the scope of your inquiry, or which have not been previously furnished to you. (X)

The standard filing procedure for memoranda dealing with highly sensitive confidential sources calls for filing in the "JUNE" section of the main case file. As mentioned above, the "JUNE" section of "Security Informant Program" was reviewed on April 30, 1976. To insure that our search for memoranda dealing with "highly confidential source" symbol numbers was thorough, on August 2 and 3, 1976, an in-depth review was made of the "Security Informant Program" main case file for all other offices. This review failed to disclose memoranda showing assignment of symbol numbers to "highly confidential sources," however, one symbol number was located which falls within the scope of your inquiry. Re Bureau teletype 8/9/76 and Philadelphia

As indicated in my teletype 8/9/76 we are enclosing two Xerox copies each of two serials which are the entire content of Philadelphia file [REDACTED]. Also at this time, as indicated, we located a Sub A to this same file and are enclosing two copies of the single serial which is the content of this Sub A section of the main file.

SA [REDACTED] is the agent who prepared and dictated serial two dated 6/27/72. The case was opened "dead" and never assigned to SA [REDACTED] whose only apparent association with the source file was to prepare serial two. SA [REDACTED] memo is attached.

The Supervisor at the time at Philadelphia was [REDACTED] now retired. The informant was apparently handled by SA [REDACTED] who would be the person most knowledgeable about the source. This agent is not currently assigned to this office and his office of assignment is not known here. Would suggest [REDACTED] be contacted by the Bureau for further explanation of this matter, if further facts are required.

On 8/19/76, at approximately 3:30 pm, SA [redacted] CI-1 Section, Intelligence Division, was looking in a file cabinet in Room 4204, which is the outer office for CI-1 Section, for a leave schedule folder to make up a new weekend duty roster. He noticed a folder marked "Sensitive Programs." As the file cabinet in which that folder was stored is secured only by a [redacted] lock, he pulled the folder to see if it contained material which should be retained in a more secure location. In examining the folder, SA [redacted] saw the original of a memorandum from W.A. Branigan to E.S. Miller dated 5/31/72, entitled "Major Intelligence Programs," and also a memorandum from W.A. Branigan to E.S. Miller dated 6/6/72. In view of the information in that memorandum, he brought it immediately to my attention. Xeroxed copies of the material contained in the folder are attached.

The program was first initiated in New York and was later expanded to Washington, D. C.; Seattle, Washington; Los Angeles, California; and to Detroit, Michigan. It was suspended in all offices except New York and Washington, D. C., in 1963 and was discontinued there in July, 1966. X

Our decision to discontinue these surveys came indirectly as a result of a Senate Committee's (Senator Edward Long's committee) probe into the subject of mail covers. During these committee hearings which took place in March, 1965, our coverage came close but was not dragged into the hearings; however, Senator Long had indicated to the then Attorney General, "There were some Bureau Agents as potential witnesses and that they would take the Fifth Amendment rather than testify as to any national security matter." ## PURPOSE:

To show results of review of available material concerning surreptitious entries for information relating to allegations in captioned article that around 1957 the Director, while Special Agent in Charge (SAC), Birmingham, approved a request to conduct a break-in.

SYNOPSIS:

Captioned Washington Star article alleged that while serving as SAC, Birmingham, Director Kelley approved a request seeking FBI Headquarters (FBIHQ) authorization for a break-in, between 1957 and 1960, possibly against a communist or Ku Klux Klan group in the Birmingham, Alabama, area. Review over the past 12 months of numerous files, indices and other material relating to surreptitious entries failed to locate any information indicating such action as alleged occurred.

Re: Washington Star Article
"Kelley Asked Break In OK As Agent"
August 26, 1976

DETAILS:

In an article entitled ~~Kelley Asked Break-In~~ <sup>WASH</sup> OK As Agent," Washington Star Staff Writer Jerry Oppenheimer reported on August 26, 1976, that a "knowledgeable source" said that while SAC, Birmingham, during the period 1957 to 1960, Director Kelley had approved a request seeking FBIHQ authorization for a break-in, possibly against a communist or Ku Klux Klan group.

INTD conducted reviews of numerous files, indices and other material over the past 12 months for information concerning entries and no information has been located indicating the Birmingham Office ever communicated to FBIHQ a request to conduct an entry against any group.

A review of FBIHQ file (66-2542-3) dealing with confidential informants, showing assignment of symbol numbers to all types of informant coverage including "anonymous sources" and "highly confidential sources," failed to show the assignment by the Birmingham Office of any symbol number to activity which could be interpreted as possibly involving surreptitious entry.

A review of informant symbol number indices maintained by the CI-5 Section of the INTD which records the assignment of symbol numbers to sources other than live sources (predominantly electronic surveillance matters) failed to locate any informant symbol number card for the Birmingham Office which could possibly be interpreted as referring to a surreptitious entry. Informant symbol number cards for the Birmingham Office in this file begin as early as 1943.

Fieldwide surveys of March 18, 1976, and April 13, 1976, for SAC knowledge of entry activity and for documents pertaining to entry activity, respectively, met with negative responses from the Birmingham Office.

Re: Washington Star Article

      August 26, 1976

While review of available FBIHQ records failed to show any indication that the activity as alleged in the Star article took place or came to the attention of FBIHQ, the procedures and practices in recording information concerning entries were such that the lack of information at FBIHQ does not necessarily indicate that information concerning the activity does not exist.

KELLEY ASKED BREAK-IN OK AS AGENT

Acted as Head Of FBI Office In Birmingham

By Jerry Oppenheimer

Washington Star Staff Writer

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley says he cannot recall asking bureau permission in the late 1950s to conduct an investigative break-in.

—Associated Press

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, while serving as special agent in charge of the Birmingham, Ala. field office in the late 1950s, requested authorization from Washington headquarters for at least one break-in, according to a knowledgeable source.

The source, who formerly held a high position in the bureau, said that Kelley approved the request for authorization that went to headquarters, based on a recommendation from the agent heading the investigation.

The source said he could not recall the investigative reason for the surreptitious entry request from the Birmingham office. But he said it was made between December 1957 and November 1960 when Kelley was special agent in charge there.

ONE REASON FOR the request, a bureau official speculated yesterday could have been that in 1956, about a year before Kelley took over the Birmingham office, the FBI initiated its controversial counterintelligence operation, Cointelpro. Its first target was the Communist party-U.S.A. and the official speculated that the Birmingham office might have been investigating a Communist group in the area. The FBI was also active against the Ku Klux Klan during the period.

Break-ins were among the investigative techniques used by the bureau during Cointelpro — a concerted effort to harass, discredit and disrupt organizations that were considered threats to the country. Cointelpro was ended in 1971.

Kelley, through a bureau spokesman, did not deny the source's assertion yesterday, but said he could "not recall" requesting a surreptitious entry while serving in Birmingham. But, Kelley emphasized, "If I did have a recollection I would have no hesitancy in admitting it."

At the time of the alleged request the source said, Kelley was "wholeheartedly in favor" of break-ins as an investigative technique in intelligence investigations. "He was traditionalist. He never objected to those techniques when he was a SAC."

The source said that, during his time in the bureau, "there never was a special agent in charge who didn't understand and approve of surreptitious entries. No one ever complained, they all approved. Kelley was fully cognizant of those operations and he approved."

THE ASSERTION by the former bureau official concerning Kelley's past activities is the first that links the director to the past abuses instituted and authorized by the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Hoover ostensibly ended the use of surreptitious entries in 1966, but the Justice Department is now probing break-ins carried out by agents in 1972 and 1973.

For the period prior to 1966, few if any records are believed to exist that could prove or disprove Kelley's alleged involvement in requesting authorization for a break-in.

Standard procedure at the time was to destroy all documents relating to surreptitious entries within a year. Within that year, according to findings of the Senate Intelligence Committee, the "Do Not File" procedure called for holding the records in the office safes of special agents in charge.

A bureau official, discussing the source's assertion that Kelley requested a break-in, said:

"In those days, prior to 1966, all of the people in the field (including Kelley) felt that if Hoover authorized it (break-ins), he got authority from higher up, such as an attorney general. They (agents) thus felt it to be a legal and valuable technique."

The Senate Intelligence Committee concluded that there was no indication that any attorney general was informed of the so-called "black bag jobs."

WITH KELLEY identified as having allegedly requested approval for a break-in, the two top officials of the beleaguered bureau have been linked to what are considered to be the wrongful past abuses of power authorized during the Hoover reign.

Richard G. Held, named by Kelley last month as the bureau's No. 2 man, headed the Minneapolis field office in the late 1960s and early 1970s when that office targeted Cointelpro activities against groups there.

As a result of news reports concerning those activities, Held issued a statement accepting responsibility for all actions "good or bad" that flowed from the office. But Held emphasized that, "I was not in any decision-making positions when this program was instituted, nor did I direct it while the program (Cointelpro) was active."

He laid the blame for any possible wrongdoing on headquarters officials who "instituted and directed" Cointelpro and contended that "it was our responsibility to implement" it.

It was understood yesterday that Kelley, who was said to have approved Held's statement, takes a similar view for any such activities in which he was involved while serving in the field for 21 years before retiring from the bureau in Oct. 1961. After serving as chief of the Kansas City police department, he returned to the bureau as director in 1973, a year after Hoover died.

KELLEY HAS NEVER acknowledged participating in break-ins while serving in the field. "I'm not saying that Clarence Kelley engaged in such activities or did not engage in these activities," he said at a July 14 press conference.

But Kelley characterized the areas in which surreptitious entries were used prior to 1966 as those involving counterintelligence or national security.

Earlier this year Kelley publicly apologized for past FBI misdeeds and subtly criticized Hoover for allowing the abuses. But Kelley did not list the activities he considered wrong.

Kelley consistently maintained until the 1972-73 break-ins came to light that such activities ended with Hoover's 1966 directive. Earlier this month, however, Kelley charged that he had been deliberately "deceived" by aides who withheld from him knowledge of the later break-ins.

Reference is made to our memorandum of July 23, 1976 captioned "Surreptitious Entries," in which we advised of our proposal to canvass all field offices' informant symbol numbers to determine whether or not there exist instances of surreptitious entry falling within the scope of your present inquiry which had not been brought to your attention.

We have completed the fieldwide canvass and, with the below exceptions, have been unable to identify surreptitious entries within the scope of your inquiry which have not been brought to your attention.

Attached to yellow are responses of each field office to our nitel of 7/23/76, in which we asked that symbol number indices be reviewed for evidence of numbers assigned to entries. INTD has made an effort to identify each symbol number brought to our attention by field offices, and marginal notations on field responses (attached to yellow) show the extent of these efforts. Most such numbers represent entries occurring before 1/1/66, after 1/1/66, and already brought to Department's attention, or after 1/1/60, and not in connection with the Socialist Workers Party civil suit. A copy of Philadelphia airtel, 8/10/76, regarding [REDACTED] is attached to Mr. Long's tickler. Original material filed in 66-8160 (JUNE).

Armed Forces, the National Security Agency, F.B.I., C.I.A., and Department of State, and more specifically, a wiretap or interception by C.I.A. or National Security Agency agents or any other Government agency of one William Ayers, which tap or interception indicates contact with the Government of North Vietnam.

It would appear that classified national security material and information, including that of a sensitive compartmented character, may become subject to disclosure in this matter. In accordance with Title 28, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 17.55, I am reporting this possible compromise of classified material to you and, by a copy of this memorandum, to the Chairman of the Department Review Committee. ADDENDUM BY LEGAL COUNSEL: JAM 6-10-77

This memorandum was referred to me for comment at 9:34 a. m. on June 10, 1977, by Mr. Revell, Executive Assistant to the Associate Director.

Title 28, Code of Federal Regulations, Section 17.55, provides for a report to be made to the Security Officer of the Division (FBI); to the Security Officer of the Department; and to the Department Review Committee concerning possible compromise of classified national security information or material. There is no provision in that section calling for specific notification of the Attorney General of possible compromise of such information or material. Further, the three items described in the memorandum (Ayers case; Chicago memo 8-20-76; and Kearney's Discovery Motion) apparently have been made available to the Department previously. My opinion is that if this memorandum is intended merely to comply with the provisions of 28 CFR 17.55 it need not be addressed to the Attorney General in order to accomplish that purpose. If the memorandum has some other purpose which justifies it being sent to the Attorney General, such other purpose could be more clearly expressed in order to avoid possible misconstruction by the Attorney General.

Pursuant to the Director's instructions, this summarizes the Bureau's policy on wiretaps and microphone surveillances.

Concerning wiretaps, the Director, since 1924, opposed the use of wiretapping as a general practice and has openly stressed for years that wiretaps, where necessary, should be limited and tightly restricted. In 1940 President Roosevelt authorized wiretaps when the national security was affected. Since that date, every Bureau request for a wiretap has been presented to the Attorney General in writing for approval. This policy continues to date.

Attorneys General Kennedy, Katzenbach, and Clark were clearly informed of the Bureau's policy concerning wiretaps at the time they took office. Kennedy expressed an interest in increased [REDACTED]

(3) Furthermore, at his urging, telephone surveillance was placed on Martin Luther King. In addition, he personally approved request for telephone surveillance on a case involving racial violence. Katzenbach, while Deputy Attorney General, requested the FBI to consider placing telephone surveillance on the parents of a Mississippi civil rights worker. The Director reluctantly agreed to this wiretap in view of potential embarrassment. On 3/30/65, the Director advised Katzenbach that back under the administration of Attorney General [REDACTED] 29 1965 Clark, he, the Director, recommended that all Government agencies refrain from wiretapping unless there was specific approval in each instance by the Attorney General and this had been repeated to subsequent Attorneys General. The Director added he was the only head of an investigative agency who did not have the authority to authorize a wiretap. respond to Bureau's inquiry of July 2, 1968, concerning effect the Omnibus Crime Bill would have on the Bureau's electronic surveillances in the internal security field.

Since 1938, Bureau authority has been required for microphone surveillances. Over the years, the Bureau sought legal advice from the Department concerning microphone surveillance and admissibility of evidence obtained from them. In 1952, Attorney General McGranery authorized their use in security cases even though trespass may be committed. Attorney General Brownell also permitted their use in internal security cases and advised that relative to criminal cases, they should be used in only the important investigations.

The Bureau's policy regarding microphones in criminal cases was furnished to Attorney General Kennedy's Deputy Attorney General White. Kennedy attempted to deny knowledge of microphones in criminal cases. The facts repudiated his claimed lack of knowledge. On 3/30/65 Attorney General Katzenbach informed the Director that he desired that authority for microphone surveillance be obtained from him in similar manner as in wiretap cases. On 7/12/65 he requested that all microphones be discontinued in view of hearings by Long Committee. Commencing 1965, microphone surveillances were again used and under authority of the Attorney General. When Clark became Acting Attorney General on 10/3/66, the Bureau was operating one microphone surveillance. On 2/29/68 he gave written approval for another microphone surveillance, which involved penetration of communications equipment at a diplomatic establishment.

A review of policy concerning wiretaps and microphones discloses that Director's policy has been on a sound basis.

Memorandum C. D. Brennan to Mr. W. C. Sullivan
RE: ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCES
66-8160

DETAILS:

Wiretapping Policy (Telephone Surveillances)

The Director, since he was appointed head of the FBI in 1924, has consistently opposed the use of wiretapping as a general practice. He stressed that wiretaps, where necessary, should be used under the most limited and tightly restricted conditions. His views, openly expressed over the years, were made known to Congress, to Government officials, and to the various Attorneys General.

On December 2, 1929, the Director presented the Bureau's policy to Congress before the House Appropriations Committee. He testified, "...We have a very definite rule in the bureau that any employee engaging in wire tapping will be dismissed from the service of the bureau." He also testified, "While it may not be illegal, I think it is unethical...." As early as 1931 the Director informed the then Attorney General William D. Mitchell that as a matter of policy any request for a wiretap will be forwarded to the Department for their approval. In 1940 President Roosevelt by an historic memorandum authorized and directed the then Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, in such cases as he approved, to utilize wiretaps on "persons suspected of subversive activities against the Government of the United States, including suspected spies." From the time of the Presidential Directive of 1940 to this very date, each request for a wiretap has been presented to the Attorney General in writing for his specific authorization. In 1946 President Truman reaffirmed Roosevelt's policies and procedures involving wiretapping in security cases. It is noted that the then Attorney General Tom C. Clark prevailed upon President Truman to modify the rules to include criminal cases where human life was in jeopardy, such as kidnapping and extortion. As a result, President Truman modified the existing directive to include certain criminal cases.

Policy Under Robert F. Kennedy

Robert F. Kennedy took office as Attorney General on January 21, 1961, and resigned on September 3, 1964. Prior to taking office, the Director furnished him with an outline of the FBI's policy and procedure on wiretapping. This outline set forth the basic authority contained in President Roosevelt's Directive of May 21, 1940, and traced the development of policy through 1960. Included in this outline was the following:

"Under our present policy we request specific authorization in writing and in advance from the Attorney General before any technical surveillance is utilized. This is the policy followed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation under the direction of each Attorney General for over twenty years, since President Roosevelt's memorandum of May 21, 1940."

On January 3, 1962, Attorney General Kennedy mentioned, in a conversation with Assistant Director Evans, that the Director had furnished him information which had obviously emanated from

(S) [REDACTED] and said he had passed it on to President John F. Kennedy who had commented on its great value to him. Because of this, the Attorney General wanted to be certain that any information of this type which might be of interest to the President would be given to him to bring to the attention of the President. The Director, by memorandum dated January 8, 1962, assured Mr. Kennedy that this had been the practice in the past and that it would be the practice in the future.

On January 20, 1962, Mr. Kennedy expressed an interest in increased that he desired to see Assistant Director Courtney Evans. On July 16, 1963, Kennedy told Evans that he was considering the possibility of a telephone surveillance of King because of King's communist associations. He was advised by Evans that since King was in travel status practically all the time, the productivity of such a surveillance was doubtful and he was asked to consider the repercussions if it ever became known that such surveillance had been instituted on King. Mr. Kennedy said he was not concerned about possible repercussions and that he thought it advisable to have as complete coverage as possible in view of the possible communist influence in the racial situation. He was told that the feasibility of such coverage would be determined and an appropriate recommendation would be submitted to him. On July 25, 1963, Mr. Kennedy informed Evans he had changed his mind concerning his request and thought it ill-advised at that time, but on October 7, 1963, a request for authority to place a telephone surveillance on King's residence was sent to Mr. Kennedy. On October 10, 1963, he authorized this surveillance and a surveillance on any future residence of King by his written signature. This telephone surveillance was installed on November 8, 1963, and was discontinued on April 30, 1965.

Four small Negro children were killed on Sunday morning, September 15, 1963, when the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church in Birmingham, Alabama, was bombed. Attorney General Kennedy personally approved the FBI's request for technical surveillances on seven suspects, and an attorney known to have knowledge of acts of racial violence. These wiretaps were requested because the FBI "believed that additional activity on the part of those who are responsible for the bombings could easily lead to more rioting, bloodshed and loss of life, materially affecting the security of the United States."

Civil rights workers Michael Henry Schwerner, Andrew Goodman, and James Earl Chaney disappeared on June 21, 1964, at Philadelphia, Mississippi. Prior to the time their mutilated bodies were discovered buried beneath an earthen dam, Deputy Attorney General Nicholas deB. Katzenbach, in the absence of Attorney General Kennedy requested the FBI to consider placing a technical surveillance on the parents of Schwerner. Mr. Katzenbach was concerned that the disappearance of the three civil rights workers might be a hoax and that Schwerner's parents, who had a Communist Party background, might attempt to exploit the disappearance. On June 30, 1964, Mr. Katzenbach personally approved this technical surveillance.

The Director reluctantly agreed to this wiretap, because the Bureau might be embarrassed if the disappearance were not a hoax and the wiretap became publicly known. The Director noted that he was requesting approval for this technical surveillance "only because Katzenbach has forced the issue."

Policy Under Nicholas deB. Katzenbach (9/3/64 to 10/3/66)

In a discussion between the Director and the Attorney General on March 30, 1965, Mr. Katzenbach stated that he would like to set up a procedure, similar to that in effect concerning technical surveillances, whereby he would be advised by the Bureau of microphone surveillance installations. On the same day, the Director sent a confirming memorandum to the Attorney General which contained the following comments concerning wiretapping:

"With reference to the proper controls over wiretapping and the installation of microphones, you will recall that I advised you that back under the administration of Attorney General (Tom) Clark I recommended that all Government agencies refrain from wiretapping unless there was specific approval in each instance by the Attorney General who is the chief law officer of the Government. I repeated the same recommendation to each successive Attorney General following the administration of Attorney General Clark.

"I have always felt that there was a very lax control in the handling of wiretapping by Government agencies. I am the only head of a Government investigative agency who does not have the authority to authorize a wiretap, but under the system which I personally set up. Therefore, requests for wiretaps are sent by me to the Attorney General for his approval or disapproval. I know that no such system is followed in other branches of the Government and, in fact, in many instances subordinates quite far down the line of authority tap telephones without the specific approval of the head of the agency and certainly without specific approval of the cabinet officer in charge of the department.

"I still feel quite strongly that no Government agency should tap a telephone unless it is specifically approved in each instance by the Attorney General. This would certainly circumscribe promiscuous wiretapping on the part of Government agencies and would centralize in one place, the Attorney General's office, a record of any phone taps which have been placed by a Government agency.

Memorandum C. D. Brennan to Mr. W. C. Sullivan
RE: ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCES

"As you are aware, in the case of the FBI we do not request phone taps except in cases involving kidnaping and espionage. This has been predicated upon my theory that when the life of an individual or the life of the Nation is in peril a phone tap is justified for intelligence purposes as any information obtained over a phone tap cannot be used in the trial of a criminal case."

On July 30, 1965, FBI representatives and Departmental attorneys conferred regarding a Presidential memorandum, dated June 30, 1965, which dealt with technical and microphone surveillances. This memorandum, addressed to all heads of executive departments and agencies, established strict guidelines for the use of technical surveillances, principally the obtaining of approval from the Attorney General. It also required the submission of a complete inventory of all mechanical and electronic equipment capable of intercepting telephone conversations.

Because the Bureau obtained authority from the Attorney General and consulted with the Department regarding the use of these surveillance techniques, the Departmental representatives stated that the Bureau was already complying with the Presidential memorandum and that it would not be necessary to submit an inventory of equipment.

In early 1965, the Senate Subcommittee on Administrative Practice and Procedure, headed by Senator Edward V. Long of Missouri and popularly known as the Long Committee, began inquiries into Federal encroachments on citizens' privacy. In view of these inquiries, it was necessary to severely restrict and, in many instances, eliminate the Bureau's use of these techniques.

Since the Bureau's heavy responsibilities for investigative results continued, the Director, in a memorandum dated September 14, 1965, expressed to the Attorney General concern that undue limitations on special investigative techniques would make it far more difficult to combat subversion and organized crime. The Attorney General, in a memorandum dated September 27, 1965, agreed with the Director and authorized the resumption of several special investigative techniques. In this memorandum the Attorney General commented, "...I am aware that such techniques have been judiciously used in the past, and while they may have been abused by other agencies, I do not believe they have been abused by the Bureau in any instance."

Policy Under Ramsey Clark (10/3/66 to 1/20/69)

Acting Attorney General Ramsey Clark by memorandum to the Director dated October 10, 1966, returned approvals for nine telephone surveillances. The memorandum contained a request that Mr. Clark be advised of all existing telephone and microphone surveillances.

On October 13, 1966, Mr. Clark was briefed by Assistant to the Director C. D. DeLoach with the Director's approval. Mr. Clark indicated he felt all the surveillances were entirely justified.

By memorandum 493 dated November 3, 1966, Acting Attorney General Ramsey Clark transmitted to all United States Attorneys instructions that they be alert as to each prosecutive case for evidence that might be tainted because of the use of electronic devices during the investigation.

A letter to all Special Agents in Charge dated November 1, 1966, Number 66-72, quoted Mr. Clark's memorandum of November 3, 1966, and instructed that if any inquiries were received from United States Attorneys, the Bureau should be immediately advised.

By memorandum dated November 28, 1966, the Director informed Ramsey Clark that the Director had given orders to reduce the number of telephone surveillances being operated by the Bureau in view of the President's feelings concerning the use of electronic devices as well as Clark's question as to the actual value of the same. The Director pointed out that this was being brought to Clark's attention in the event possible inquiries or protests are received from State Department and [REDACTED]

Memorandum of May 26, 1967, from the Director pointed out to Ramsey Clark that from time to time the Bureau receives [REDACTED] agencies should submit their requests directly to the Attorney General.

By memorandum dated June 1, 1967, Clark replied that although the Director was correct in his observation, he, Clark, did not believe that the requesting agencies should bypass the Bureau and communicate directly with him.

Memorandum of July 2, 1968, from the Director requested the Attorney General's views and statement of policy concerning the effect the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 would have on our past, present, and future electronic surveillance in the internal security field. No reply was received from Clark in spite of follow-ups having been sent on four occasions prior to his leaving office.

Microphone Surveillances Policy

The early use of microphones by the FBI is not recorded in any detail. It appears that they were used in the late 1920's and early 1930's to obtain intelligence in criminal cases. Prior Bureau authorization of microphone installations was first required in 1938 and since that time, Bureau headquarters has maintained tight control over the field in the use of these devices. Over the years, the FBI continually sought legal advice from the Department concerning microphone installations and the admissibility of evidence obtained from them. In the early 1940's the Department relied on a Supreme Court decision in Goldman v. U.S. which held that a microphone surveillance was not equivalent to an illegal search and seizure prohibited by the Fourth Amendment. On this basis, the Department advised that evidence from a microphone surveillance would be admissible. In 1946, the Department, recognizing the unsettled state of the law in this area, continued to maintain their position even though Bureau officials continued to be concerned about the admissibility of evidence obtained from microphones involving trespass.

In 1951, the overall issue of microphones involved in trespass was presented directly to the Department. The Department ruled that they would not approve any installation of microphones involving trespass, an illegal activity. This presented a problem because under the then existing law it was difficult to determine what actually constituted trespass. Faced with this situation, the Executive Conference of May 5, 1952, unanimously recommended that microphones be installed without trespass and that if this is not possible and the intelligence to be gathered is a necessary adjunct to the investigation in select cases, consideration be given to authorizing a microphone. In 1952 Attorney General McGranery authorized microphone installations in security cases even though trespass may be committed. Attorney General Brownell in a memorandum dated May 20, 1954, allowed the use of microphones in internal security cases. Relative to criminal cases, it was noted that he was "not as strong but he takes cognizance of the need for microphone surveillances in cases affecting the national safety and indicates they should be used in only the more important investigations."

The Executive Conference on June 20, 1959, considered whether the Bureau should seek approval from the Attorney General before instituting microphone surveillances in specific criminal cases. The Executive Conference unanimously agreed, and the Director approved, that the Bureau should continue as in the past to rely upon the authority contained in Attorney General Brownell's May 20, 1954, memorandum. This policy was still being followed on January 21, 1961, when Robert F. Kennedy became Attorney General and launched an intensified Federal drive against organized crime.

Policy Under Robert F. Kennedy

Early in 1961, Attorney General Kennedy had agreed to testify concerning proposed wiretap legislation being considered by the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee.

To assist the Attorney General in this regard, the Bureau delivered a memorandum to Deputy Attorney General White dated May 4, 1961. This memorandum stated that the Bureau's views on the use of microphone surveillances in FBI cases were being furnished in connection with the Attorney General's contemplated appearance before the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights. Moreover, it spelled out that the Bureau had interpreted Attorney General Brownell's letter of May 20, 1954, to give it authorization for use of microphone surveillances in criminal cases.

In a memorandum dated July 6, 1961, Mr. Evans noted that there was serious question as the result of a conference held on that date as to whether the Attorney General was aware of the difference between a technical and a microphone surveillance, and asked for permission to discuss this subject with the Attorney General. The Director approved, and Mr. Evans saw Mr. Kennedy in regard to this matter on July 7, 1961. Mr. Evans recorded this discussion with the Attorney General in a memorandum dated July 7, 1961.

A memorandum on FBI stationery, classified "Top Secret," dated August 17, 1961, enclosed a proposed letter to the telephone company in New York City requesting [REDACTED] was (S) delivered to Mr. Kennedy on August 17, 1961, by Assistant Director Courtney Evans. This memorandum for the Attorney General requested his approval for the use of [REDACTED] as an adjunct (S) to the Bureau's microphone surveillances in security and major criminal cases in New York City.

On March 30, 1962, Mr. Kennedy summoned Mr. Evans to his office and told him that Joseph Volpe, formerly Chief Counsel for the Atomic Energy Commission, had informed the Attorney General that he had learned on the "highest authority" that Volpe's office had been covered with a microphone surveillance during 1953 and 1954. Mr. Kennedy asked Mr. Evans if this had been an FBI microphone surveillance. Mr. Evans later reported to the Attorney General that this was not an FBI microphone surveillance.

On March 19, 1963, Mr. Kennedy was briefed on organized crime investigations in the FBI's Chicago Office. This briefing was attended by other Departmental officials, including William Hundley, Chief of the Organized Crime and Racketeering Section. After Special Agents of the FBI told them about the corruption of local law enforcement officers by Chicago hoodlums, a tape recording from an FBI microphone surveillance was played for them.

On another occasion, Mr. Kennedy visited the New York Office of the FBI for a briefing on organized crime. Participants in this conference, held November 4, 1963, were Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Ed Guthman of Mr. Kennedy's staff, Assistant Directors Courtney Evans and John F. Malone, and approximately 25 FBI Special Agents assigned to the New York Office. At this conference, a tape recording taken from an FBI microphone surveillance was played for Mr. Kennedy

Subsequently, on May 24, 1966, United States Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall filed a memorandum before the Supreme Court advising the Court that there was an electronic surveillance of Fred Black, a Washington lobbyist, and that conversations between Black and his attorneys had been intercepted.

On July 13, 1966, Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall advised the U. S. Supreme Court that under Departmental practice, in effect for a period/years prior to 1963 and continuing into 1965, the Director of the FBI was given authority to approve the installation of microphones for intelligence purposes when required in the interest of internal security or national safety including organized crime, kidnapping, and matters wherein human life might be at stake.

On July 16, 1964, the Director, in a telephone conversation with the President, discussed the FBI's investigation of events surrounding the murder of Negro educator Lemuel Penn on a Georgia highway. During this telephone conversation, the Director told the President that the FBI had installed a microphone in a building next to the garage where Klansmen gathered in Athens, Georgia.

Policy Under Nicholas deB. Katzenbach

Attorney General Katzenbach, in a conversation with the Director on March 30, 1965, stated that he would like to set up a procedure, similar to that in effect concerning technical surveillances, whereby he would be advised by the Bureau of microphone surveillance installations. On the same day, the Director sent a memorandum to the Attorney General which contained the following:

"In line with your suggestion this morning, I have already set up the procedure similar to requesting of authority for phone taps to be utilized in requesting authority for the placement of microphones."

The Attorney General, on July 12, 1965, informed the Director that he would like to have all microphone surveillances suspended at that time, because of the pressure being brought to bear, particularly on the Internal Revenue Service, by the United States Senate Subcommittee on Administrative Practice and Procedure headed by Senator Long of Missouri. The Attorney General said that he wanted to be in a position to state that the FBI had no microphone surveillance coverage.

In response to several requests from the Bureau for guidelines in the use of special investigative techniques, Attorney General Katzenbach, by memorandum dated September 27, 1965, advised that microphone surveillances should be restricted to the internal security field. After the Attorney General again granted the FBI authority to use microphone surveillances to gather intelligence in national security matters, the Bureau, following the procedure established by Mr. Katzenbach to obtain his authorization, reactivated microphone surveillance in selected cases.

In a memorandum dated January 13, 1966, Attorney General Katzenbach referred to the relationship between former Attorney General Kennedy and the FBI in regard to the use of microphone surveillances in the investigation of organized crime. Mr. Katzenbach stated that Mr. Kennedy had informed him that he was unaware that the FBI used microphone surveillances against organized crime. Mr. Katzenbach stated, however, he believed, "that the actions of the FBI in this area were in any event justified on the basis of understandings between the Bureau and prior (pre-1961) Attorneys General. I am prepared to stand behind those actions."

Policy Under Ramsey Clark

At the time Clark became Acting Attorney General on October 3, 1966, the Bureau was operating only one microphone surveillance. This was at the request of the [REDACTED] and under the written approval of the Attorney General.

OBSERVATIONS:

A review of policy concerning wiretaps and microphone surveillances discloses that the Director's policy has always been on firm and sound basis. He has continually publicly stressed that, where wiretaps are necessary, they should be limited and tightly restricted. He has always acted under the rules set down by respective Presidents and Attorneys General.

For your information, following several conferences, the Bureau has been contacted with respect to a problem which has arisen concerning the handling of June matters. (u) 9/2

Up to the present time, each time that material is utilized in a letter or in a report, which material emanated from a highly confidential source, it has been necessary for the Agent preparing the communication to also prepare a memo for the June file setting forth that he has utilized this information and the identity of the file in which the data was utilized. (u)

Inasmuch as numerous names and other data are developed from confidential sources, a high volume of these JUNE memoranda have been routed into the June file. (u)

The Bureau has instructed that it is appropriate for us to assign a permanent symbol number when a highly confidential source will be used as the basis for information being set forth in future reports. [REDACTED] c

The Bureau has been advised that this procedure will be followed and that the symbol numbers will be designated as [REDACTED] for those pertaining to security matters and [REDACTED] for those pertaining to criminal matters. (u)

At the time the memorandum is prepared setting forth details concerning the development of a confidential source there should be an accompanying letter to the Bureau under the JUNE caption advising Bureau of the symbol number which will be utilized. This symbol number should be secured from [REDACTED] (u)

The above instructions apply not only to anonymous sources developed in the future but also to anonymous sources developed in the past in connection with which data secured therefrom is being utilized in our outgoing communications. (u)

In the future, therefore, no memoranda should be prepared for the JUNE file as previously setting forth that data from anonymous source is being utilized in a particular outgoing communication.

If the utilization of material from an anonymous source developed years ago becomes necessary, at that point a communication should be prepared informing the Bureau of the symbol number assigned to that confidential source.

The above instructions are effective on Friday, August 27, 1954. (u)

When information has been secured from the same confidential source on several different occasions, the same symbol number will be used but the specific date should be indicated for the receipt of the information. (u)

When information is included in a communication which emanates from a confidential source of another field division, a T symbol should be utilized and the administrative page should describe the informant as an anonymous informant of the --- office as reflected in --- letter (or other communication) dated ---. No symbol will be assigned by this office for such sources. (u)

You should immediately discuss the above with your supervisory staff and in turn the supervisors should very promptly advise all Agents of the new procedures initiated, which will be effective Friday, August 27, 1954. (u)

Office Memorandum

TO : SAC, NYC

FROM : [REDACTED]

SUBJECT: "JUNE" MATTERS

DATE: 5/20/54

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

NOT CONTAINED HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED EXCEPT WHERE SHOWN OTHERWISE.

It is suggested that determination be made of following aspects of JUNE program so that uniformity may prevail so far as NYO file concerned:

I. Whether trash covers constitute investigative techniques which under "JUNE" classification. If so this would affect maintenance both pending and closed files concerning trash covers.

II. Bag Jobs - Three different means of handling this operation as recording in file performance of bag jobs have been observed, follows:

- (2) Based on same, dissemination memo prepared (see memo 9/10/53, 100-68221; memos 9/1/53, 100-95890; memo 8/10/53, 100-92919)
- (3) When information included in report, June memo prepared to support identity of anonymous source - example: rpt. 9/2/53, 100-92919 June memo submitted.
- (1) Preparation of memo by ASAC recording approval by Bureau official of performance of bag job.
- (2) Preparation of memo by Agent recording performance of bag job with addenda reflecting Bureau official advised of successful completion.
- (3) Preparation of memo for case file re exhibit secured from source stated as anonymous; (Examples: 100-7689- 3/29/54, 62-10026)
- (4) Preparation of June memo identifying anonymous source in case file under step (3); (Examples: 4 dated 3/29/54, 62-10026) (It is noted in one matter several memos, each describing separate piece of material were prepared, in same file, date, and individual June memos were prepared for each memo, containing identical info and which identify source set out in step (2) above);

(In another matter, various memos were prepared for June file, 62-10026, ostensibly to identify anonymous source, but instead of setting out info as in memo (step 2 above) these memos state that identity of anonymous source can be found in memo in June file dated -- .) Example: lt. to Bureau 5/7/54, 100-87235 and June memo, 62-10026, 5/7/54, captioned CENTRAL RESEARCH MATTERS.

[REDACTED]

(b)(1) [REDACTED]

III [REDACTED]

However, it is felt that ALL such proposals and later abandoned matters are not placed in this file in view of the lack of uniformity in handling those which are performed.

IV - It is also possible that lack of uniformity exists re source to which exhibit material in various case files is attributed, since several "performance of bag job" memos state that photos of material will be maintained as exhibits in pertinent case file. No check has been made of files re this.

V - There seem to be varying interpretations of need for June memos to support anonymous sources referred to in letters to other divisions regarding material obtained from bag jobs - examples lt. 9/8/53, 100-92919, which has no June memo, and lt. 5/7/54, which has one [REDACTED] (c)

(b)(2) [REDACTED] I have in past suggested that symbol be assigned bag jobs, in order to alleviate preparation of numerous June memos on theory that source can simply be identified in report as [REDACTED]. However, I have been advised that Bureau does not desire assignment of symbol to such bag jobs since to do so would require maintenance of records of such [REDACTED] (273)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Preparation of one and sometimes two memos reflecting contact with Bureau officials re bag jobs would seem to be contrary to their reported desire to avoid maintenance of records which might at some time prove embarrassing, in that it shows cognizance on their part of an illegal entry. If there has been a change in Bureau feeling or instructions along this line, so far as I know that fact has not been generally disseminated, due to the three different methods of handling this operation as above outlined, nor has memo to this effect been placed in file.

CONFIDENTIAL ANONYMOUS SOURCE

JUNE

In view of the material now being channeled into the JUNE file concerning the above-captioned matter, it is recommended that a separate sub-file be set up for all matters under the above caption. This of course would facilitate location of any needed material in this connection, and would prevent the JUNE file from becoming too conglomerated.

If you approve this recommendation, it is believed desirable to have the JUNE file reviewed for what would appear to be a reasonable period of time under the circumstances so that serials could be extracted and placed into the sub-file. It may be determined that it is not necessary to go back for too long a period of time, but in any event it is recommended that we go back at least to January 1, 1954, or preferably December 1, 1953, which would take us back to a period covered by the last inspection of this office.

DATE: 4/26/54

SUBJECT: SURVEY - MANPOWER NECESSARY TO CONDUCT AVERAGE CONFIDENTIAL
ANONYMOUS INVESTIGATION

A survey of confidential anonymous investigations reveals that these investigation are handled in three phases:
(1) the survey which includes file reviews, indices checks and background investigation; (2) the actual assignment, and
(3) processing information obtained on the assignment. (u)

[ I. SURVEY ] (u)

The survey entails file reviews and indices checks on occupants of the apartment or office involved. In cases wherein there has been a previous investigation, this phase of the confidential assignment is limited to the review of the files pertaining to the subject. However, where there is no file on the subject, considerable background information has to be developed as well as an exhaustive indices search. (u)

In each case it is necessary to develop confidential sources at the apartment or building involved. In the average case this requires developing the superintendent and/or some other occupant of the building who is in proximity to the subject's apartment. Following the development of a source at the residence, the next problem is to set up a plant or cover apartment where photographic equipment can be operated and where possible movements of the subject can be physically observed. (u)

The manpower required in the survey, the initial phase of the confidential assignment, on the average requires two agents to conduct the necessary file reviews, indices checks and to develop the sources and establish plant or cover apartment. The two agents take on the average of from one to three days on this phase of the assignment. (u)

Once the cover apartment or plant has been established it is necessary to conduct a physical surveillance prior to the actual assignment to determine the activities and movements of the subject and other occupants in the office or apartment which he is located. The manpower to be expended is dependent upon the number of persons involved in the subject apartment or office and the size of the building in question. The average assignment requires four agents and a period of from three to five days.

MEMO:

II. ACTUAL ASSIGNMENT

X(u)

Following the preliminary survey and the establishing of a plant and prior to the actual assignment itself, a conference is called to brief all agents assigned. Specific assignments are made and instructions given. In the average case, three to four agents are on the actual assignment. One of the men assigned, a supervisor, mans the handy-talkie, which is in direct contact with agents on surveillance covering the immediate apartment. Depending on the size of the assignment, two to three agents make the actual search. Two agents are assigned to the cover apartment; one agent is in charge of photographing material, the other agent assists in assuring that material to be photographed is not misplaced from its original location. X(u)

Depending on the building involved, the number of offices or apartments and the number of exits involved, additional agents are needed to assure the security of the agents on the assignment. It is also necessary to have the subject and the other occupants of the apartment or office located and under surveillance. The average number of agents assigned to surveillance in connection with the assignment is approximately eight to ten men. X(u)

III. PROCESSING INFORMATION RECEIVED

X(u)

In the average assignment approximately 500 separate photographs or exposures are realized. These are developed by the office laboratory. X(u)

The first review of the material obtained is made by the two agents who conducted the initial file review for the assignment. The purpose of this first review is to check address and appointment books for any obvious "meets" or immediate leads requiring prompt action. X(u)

The writer today in discussing confidential techniques with Assistant to the Director L. V. BOARDMAN, presented a matter to him, and he stated that it should be presented to Assistant Director A. H. BELMONT by ASAC MOORE of Division IV, and that thereafter the matters can be handled in that fashion. He advised me it would no longer be necessary for me to contact him directly, but that we should be absolutely very, very, very certain that we have basic security. (&) (u)

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

DATE: 5/10/55

JUNE

SUBJECT: [CONFIDENTIAL TECHNIQUES] (u)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Assistant to the Director L. V. BOARDMAN telephonically contacted the writer today at 12:30 p.m. and stated that some Agent in Washington in a classroom made the remark that bag jobs were unconstitutional. This information was immediately brought to the attention of Mr. TOLSON and Mr. BOARDMAN and he stated that in view of this situation, hereafter no bag jobs would be authorized unless there were present exceedingly unusual circumstances with a guarantee of results and that none would be authorized without the exact specific recommendation of the SAC, who was to make his recommendation to Mr. BOARDMAN. He reiterated there must be very unusual circumstances. He pointed out that the Bureau has lost confidence in New York. (u)

I asked Mr. BOARDMAN whether this Agent is a New York Agent who made the remark because if it was a New York Agent, I would take immediate steps to determine how friendly he was with other Agents on that squad and to determine whether or not he had ever worked such a technique, the thought being that his mental outlook might be present among other members of that squad. Mr. BOARDMAN stated he would attempt to find out and let me know. (u)

6/16) This information was immediately given to ASAC DONALD E. MOORE, Supervisor [redacted] and SA [redacted]. I requested [redacted] to prepare a list of Agents who actually enter upon the techniques as well as the names of the surveillance Agents, the thought being that a study should be made to determine which of these men should be retained on this type of activity and which should be deleted. CONFERENCE NOTES - CLASSIFYING INFORMANTS - JUNE

FROM ASAC D.E. Moore

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

(6)(6)

At 5:30 P.M. 3/30/55, I discussed with SA [redacted] Bureau, SAC Letter 55-26 (E) and particularly that section on page 4 of the SAC Letter captioned "CLASSIFYING INFORMANTS." I asked [redacted] as to the classification on technical surveillances, microphone surveillances, anonymous sources [redacted] and asked him if these informants should be classified as "who has furnished reliable information in the past." I pointed out that in some cases this might be the initial contact with the anonymous source or might be the initial receipt of information from a tech, mike or [redacted]

At 11:15 A.M. 3/31/55 [redacted] said he had taken this matter up with Mr. Belmont and he said that information received from the mentioned informants (techs, mikes, anonymous sources, and [redacted]) should be classified as "who has furnished reliable information in the past" unless they are being initially contacted or we are receiving information from them at the beginning, and in such cases they should be classified as "who is in a position to furnish reliable information"

A confidential anonymous source was developed at the residence of UNSUB [REDACTED] believed identical with [REDACTED] on 2/9/55. The subject's room was in a neat orderly condition and the only evidence of her Communist activity was found in a locked overnight bag. This bag contained four brown envelopes, each envelope containing copies of the DAILY WORKER. One of the brown envelopes bore a notation "Current". It is believed that this identical envelope was in the possession of [REDACTED] on Feb. 8, 1955, at which time a highly confidential anonymous source was developed concerning the material [REDACTED] possession. Each of the above-mentioned envelopes contained DAILY WORKERS of no apparent significance. It was noted, however, that the WORKERS appeared to be in a fixed order and may have been so placed to make it possible for the subject to detect if anybody had been tampering with her effects. Extreme caution was taken in handling this material so that our activity could not be detected. It should also be noted that none of the clothing she maintains at her apartment has any identifying labels or other indications as to her true identity or past whereabouts. It was noted, however, that she retains two room rent receipts under the name [REDACTED] (u)

RE: DEVELOPMENT OF HIGHLY
CONFIDENTIAL SOURCES (u)

In order to have uniformity in the memoranda prepared with reference to the development of highly confidential sources, it is requested that the memos contain the following information in the form set out hereinafter: (u)

The title of the case under which the source is being developed should be in the title of the memorandum. There should be a sub title listing the name of the person on which a highly confidential source is being developed, together with the character, the Bureau file number and the New York file number. Under the file number should be listed whether or not subject is an S.I. subject. This, of course, should be a "June" memorandum.

The balance of the memorandum should be broken down under sub headings as follows: (u)

Time: Under this sub heading should be a statement as to when it is anticipated the source will be developed.

Residence: This should set out the address and the apartment number where the source is to be developed. Also the identity of anyone else who may be living with the subject.

Employment: Under this heading should be listed the employment of the subject, as well as that of the spouse.

Reason for Developing Source: Under this sub heading should be stated briefly why we are developing this source and what is expected to be gained.

Security Aspects: Under this heading should first be set out in one paragraph a description of the premises, such as whether or not it is a private home or apartment, what floor the apartment is on, how many other apartments are on the floor, whether or not we have a cover apartment, the location of the cover apartment, whether we have a key to the subject's apartment, etc.

The second paragraph should list the names and positions of those persons cooperating with us to effectuate the development of the source. Included in this paragraph should be listed specifically the investigation conducted and the results thereof of these individuals. Example would be criminal record check negative, indices New York Office negative, etc. The identity of the agent responsible for this investigation should be set out.

The next paragraph should set out what security precautions are being taken in connection with the development of the source. An example of this would be a statement that anyone in the immediate apartment will be kept under surveillance at the time the source is being developed.

The next paragraph should contain a certification by the immediate Supervisor preparing the memorandum as to the security aspects of the development of the source.

Miscellaneous: Under this heading should be set out the name of the agent to whom the case is assigned; the name of the agent responsible for the development of this source and the name of the agent and/or Supervisor who will be on the job having immediate responsibilities for its operation.

With reference to the remainder of the personnel actually assigned on the job, it will not be necessary to set this out in the above memorandum but they should be listed in the next memorandum prepared setting out the results. Prior to securing Bureau authority for development of such a source, the SAC must approve and the Bureau be advised. (S)(u)

HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL AND

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

INTERNAL SECURITY - C.

In connection with the development of highly confidential and anonymous sources, there has been utilized successfully by the New York Office a new and practical investigative technique, which may prove of value to other offices in the development of these sources in their territory. (S)(U)

The technique involves the use of "booties", which is a type of shoe cover commonly used by window dressers in their trade. These "booties" are used by window dressers in order to allow them to walk around a display window without leaving shoe or dirt marks on the floors, rugs or other material used in the display. The "booties" are slipped on over their shoes and obviates the necessity of removing their shoes. (S)(U)

It should be noted that the "booties" are comparatively small in bulk and can easily be folded to handkerchief size and carried in the pocket of the user. The very practical and advantage use of the "booties" in connection with the development of highly confidential and anonymous sources is realized on snowy and rainy days when shoes become wet or muddy. On such days, these "booties" can be easily and quickly slipped over the wet shoes just prior to entering the particular apartment, office, etc. and will allow movement within the premises without leaving "telltale" stains or smears. Upon exit they can be removed just as easily and placed in the user's pocket thus affording a higher degree of security and a greater degree of movement while in the premises. (S)(U)

It was ascertained too, during this operation, that the use of the "Boeties" also cut down considerably the amount of usual and ordinary floor noises made by walking on floor boards, linoleum, etc. and permitted a much quieter movement within the premises. This indicates a definite additional advantageous use of the "Boeties" even on dry days where silent movement is of the essence in maintaining a high degree of security. (S) u

The New York Office has purchased a half dozen of these "Boeties", which are currently being used by the agents engaged in this activity, and one pair is being forwarded to the Bureau with this letter for examination and by way of explanation. (S) u

The "Boeties" were purchased in New York from a shoe supply wholesale house at a cost of 25¢ per pair. They also can be purchased through any retail shoe store at probably a slightly higher cost and should be accessible through these outlets to any of the Bureau offices. (S) u

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : SAC, NEW YORK (66-61823)

DATE: 12-27-55

FROM : [REDACTED]

SUBJECT:

It is requested that a symbol number be assigned for use in reporting information obtained from [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] on 12-16-55: q u

ALL
(6)(7)(C)
(6)(2)
(6)(7)(D)

The information consisted of approximately 1,000 3" X 5" cards which were used for seating guests at a dinner sponsored on 12-15-55 at the Capital Hotel, NYC, by the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee. The cards bore the name of each guest and, in some cases, the name of the table holder. They were obtained by the [REDACTED] on 12-16-55. u

Three photostat copies were made of the three by five cards. One photostat copy together with the original cards were returned to [REDACTED] on 12-22-55 by SA [REDACTED]. One copy is being placed in the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee file (NY 100-107419) and one copy will be used for dissemination purposes. u

[REDACTED] Also advised that the letters "s.v.", which appear on some cards, apparently mean "seated with", followed by the name of the person at whose table the individual whose name appears at the top of the card was seated. The table holder's name appears at the top of the card. [REDACTED] stated whether or not the person whose name appears at the top of the card attended the dinner. On three cards where the name of the individual at the top is followed by several names, the sources related, it is believed that this individual was a table holder at the 12-15-55 dinner, and the listed persons were seated at his table. u

TO : SAC, New York

FROM : ASAC D. E. Moore

SUBJECT: HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL SOURCES

JUNE

At 11:45 a.m. this date Inspector J. A. Sizoo of the Bureau telephonically advised that with regard to authority for continuing sources the Bureau was setting up a uniform date for memos to be received at the Bureau. He stated that offices east of the Mississippi are to submit the material to arrive at the Bureau no later than the 8th of the month, and offices west of the Mississippi no later than the 18th. He said in all cases the material on continuing jobs should be UACB except for the first request on a continuing basis.

Mr. Sizoo said that we should send the material in in the same way as in the past, and should send it all to the personal attention of Assistant Director Belmont.

DATE: 9/9/55

FROM : ASAC E. J. McCABE

SUBJECT: DICTATION OF MATERIAL OBTAINED FROM HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL SOURCES / *QU*JUNE

ALL (416)

[redacted] Training and Inspection Division, Bureau, on 9/9/55 telephonically advised that the LA office had a procedure whereby only three stenographers working full-time were assigned to copying and transcribing all material obtained from highly confidential sources. In many instances, this procedure resulted in non-compliance with the five-day transcription rule. The LA office, in justifying this procedure, has advanced the following reasons: QU

1. The stenos handling this work exclusively become familiar with names, locations, etc. and can handle more work.
2. The material itself is highly confidential and for security reasons it is better that the dictation be limited to the selected stenos.

[redacted] requested that NY advise as to its procedure and requested that he be telephonically recontacted as soon as possible. QU

After discussing this matter with Supervisor [redacted] who was acting for ASAC MacLennan, Supervisor [redacted] who was acting for ASAC Moore, and ASAC Simon, the writer advised [redacted] that in the NYO when the material is obtained from a highly confidential source and the symbol number is identified with the location, the material is dictated only to the secretaries of the supervisors. However, when the material is identified with the symbol number and the location is not set forth, the material is given to any of the stenos. QU

As to Misurs and Tesurs, it was pointed out that in the NYO we have a June Unit handling this matter [redacted] was advised that we have three stenos regularly assigned to handling the dictation and typing of the confidential material. In this instance,

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : SAC, New York

DATE: 8/4/55

FROM : ASAC D. E. Moore

JUNE

ALL

At 5:20 p.m., 8/2/55, I telephonically communicated with Inspector V. P. Keay of the Bureau and referred to his conversation with Supervisor [REDACTED] on July 29, 1955. I asked Mr. Keay whether the monthly memorandum in this matter should be submitted based on the date of approval, July 29, 1955, or based on the date the memoranda were submitted. I pointed out that we had not been contacting these sources on a regular basis without the approval and therefore we would have little or no information to report unless we used the date of July 29, 1955. Mr. Keay said that this would be correct and that we should submit our monthly memorandum on the four approved contacts to reach the Bureau by August 29, 1955. Q U

I also asked Mr. Keay with regard to the information concerning security factors whether it would be necessary to repeat the information if the security factors remained the same as previously set out. He said it would not be, and that if the security factors were the same as previously set out in our memoranda we could just state in subsequent memoranda that security factors remained the same. Q U

DATE [REDACTED]

Rememo of SA [REDACTED] dated 12/15/54, captioned
as above.

Reference memorandum sets forth a survey of the office building located at 160 Fifth Avenue, wherein in Room 911, the headquarters of the subject organization is located, for the purpose of developing a highly confidential source. On 12/14/54, Assistant Director ALAN H. BELMONT approved the utilization of the source with which contact was made on 12/15/54 and assigned symbol number [REDACTED]

Regular contact has been made with [REDACTED] since then, through whom the development of [REDACTED] was made possible. He is reliable and fully cooperative [REDACTED]. With his assistance it is proposed that [REDACTED] be recontacted.

The doors of the building are locked at 9 PM after which time no one can gain admittance. Any tenants who arrives prior to that time must leave the building at 10 PM, unless specific arrangements were made with [REDACTED]. The [REDACTED] ordinarily remains on the first floor and he will be instructed to do so; guard the entrance and admit no one. Indices contain no references on [REDACTED] the [REDACTED] who has been previously described by [REDACTED] as being thoroughly reliable and in his employ for approximately 10 years.

[REDACTED] and [REDACTED] regularly occupy the ELF office. They will be surveilled away from the office and kept under surveillance until it is obvious that they do not contemplate return to it.

Accordingly, it is suggested that SA [REDACTED] the writer, and a designated supervisor be authorized to recontact [REDACTED] subsequent to 10 PM on 5/18/56, such contact probably lasting for 2-4 hours. Necessary surveillances to be conducted by [REDACTED] and additional agents, commencing at 4 PM. As a further precaution, a Bureau radio car will be stationed near the entrance of the building and a Handie-Talkie will be taken into the building maintaining continuous radio contact with one another, should any unforeseen incident arise.

Re: airtel, 12/17/53 concerning effects of [redacted]
stored at the [redacted] NYC. U

It will be recalled that [redacted] resided at the [redacted] NYC, from [redacted] 1945, to [redacted] 1947. Among the telephone calls charged to her at [redacted] was one to the [redacted] NYC. U

Inquiry at the [redacted] in July, 1950, disclosed that [redacted] maintained personal effects in storage at the warehouse. U

[redacted] then an official at the [redacted] extended his cooperation on July 26, 1950, and Special Agents of the NYO examined the material in the warehouse. At that time photographs were made of material considered pertinent. U

On 3/15/56 the material stored by [redacted] was again examined through the cooperation of [redacted]. U

Concerning the possible attitude of [redacted] officials should disclosure be made that such cooperation was extended by [redacted] employees, the following is noted: U

In 1954, in another case associated with the NOCASE, the same type of cooperation (examination of the stored effects of another subject) was requested of another warehouse in NYC.
On that occasion an official of that warehouse refused to extend cooperation citing the legal duty to their depositor, and the adverse effect to the warehouse if such an examination possibly became known to the depositor or to the public, despite assurances that any cooperation would be most confidential.

On this occasion the warehouse suggested that a subpoena be served on it, if the stored articles were to be examined. U

[REDACTED] was recontacted on 6/6/57 and advised that from a review of photographs taken by the informant the following changes were noted in the room indicating that someone has returned to the room since the last contact with the informant on 5/22/57. The changes noted, all of which were on the work bench, are as follows: 44

A book was moved from the table to the top of the speaker adjacent to the Hallicrafter set. A safety match box which was on the work bench was moved. An adhesive tape box and self-retracting measuring rule were moved from the left to the right side of the table. Cellophane envelopes have now been placed on top of a Saran Wrap box whereas they were previously underneath the Saran Wrap box. A pair of scissors has been moved from its previous location five or six inches to the left on the work bench. A small box containing color slides was missing. Informant was unable to definitely check photographs but from a recollection it appears that the coat which hung on the closet door has been removed. 44

A check of the Hallicrafter radio set revealed that it is an SX71 set with serial number AB475506, also bearing the number 31A430. The speaker, which has been placed on top of the Hallicrafter set, bears the serial number 671742 and also bears the number NC373. It was noted that an aerial is attached to the Hallicrafter set and runs out of the window. 44

RE: [redacted]
Anti-Racketeering
(NY [redacted])

ALL (6)(7)(C)

At 8:25 AM, the writer telephonically contacted Assistant to the Director L.V. BOARDMAN, and requested authority to develop a highly confidential source at the residence of [redacted] NY, NY Apartment [redacted] which is located on the [redacted] floor.

Mr. BOARDMAN was informed that [redacted] was contacted by agents, was cooperative, and did not know the identity of the agents who contacted him as agents. It was developed that [redacted] had been gone from their apartment for the past [redacted] weeks and it was believed that they were in [redacted]. It was ascertained that some individual, identity unknown, picks up the [redacted] mail periodically at infrequent intervals of every week or so. It was ascertained that there are three other apartments on the [redacted] floor of these premises, and that the persons occupying the apartments are out most of the day.

Mr. BOARDMAN was advised that we have two agents who know [redacted] and if his wife and he appeared in the area, they would contact him on the street and interview him. It was anticipated that we would have sufficient personnel in operation and through the use of wackie-talkies, would be able to notify the agents who were developing the confidential source, SA [redacted] being in charge of this assignment.

Mr. BOARDMAN was assured that we guarantee security and that we hoped to obtain information concerning contacts [redacted] and a photograph of him since one was not presently available. Mr. BOARDMAN was advised that it was anticipated that this development would take place about 9:30 AM today.

Mr. BOARDMAN authorized the development of this confidential source, requesting that he be advised later if there were any significant developments.

I. BACKGROUND

HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED
DATE 10-1-82 BY [unclear]

The CHLA was chartered in 1933 to render legal and protective services to its members who operate laundries in the New York City area.

[redacted] advised on June 20, 1957 that the CHLA was infiltrated and controlled by Communists during the 1930's and most of the Communists who gained control of the CHLA are still in control of it at the present time.

A confidential informant who has furnished reliable information in the past on March 25, 1955 advised that when he was last conversant with such activity in 1952, a group of persons within the CHLA, whom he described as Communists, had as their purpose the furtherance of Chinese Communist interests in the New York City area by operating through the CHLA.

The October 12, 1949 issue of the "China Daily News" (CDN) reflected that at a meeting held at CHLA headquarters in New York City on October 9, 1949 to celebrate the founding of the "Peoples Republic of China" as well as to celebrate the Chinese National holiday the five star flag of the "New Government" was flown and expressions of loyalty and support thereto were voiced by speakers.

II. LOCATION

The CHLA is located at 191 Canal Street, New York City, and utilizes the entire second floor of that loft building.

The highly confidential and anonymous source will be contacted at that address.

III. SECURITY ASPECTS

The building at 191 Canal Street is a six story brick loft building structure. The CHLA occupies the entire second floor. The other occupants of the building are as follows:

1739

1st floor: OSMAN BROS. JEWELRY STORE.
 MANHATTAN OPTICAL CO.
 ( both of the above are on ground level facing Canal Street and have their own entrances separate from the CHLA entrance)

2nd floor: CHLA

3rd floor: GEE FAMILY ASSOCIATION.
 PINE MACHINISTS CO. (storage)
 LILLIAN GUINTEA CO.

The fourth, fifth, and sixth floors are vacant.

OSMAN BROS., MANHATTAN OPTICAL CO., and the LILLIAN GUINTEA CO., have burglar alarm systems; however, they are individual systems and operate separately and individually. There is no alarm system for the CHLA or for the building itself. The street door of the building has a lock on it; however, a key is available.

It has been determined through surveys that all business activity ceases at 191 Canal Street no later 9:00 pm. The only maintenance personnel on the premises is the elevator operator who ceases work and leaves the building at approximately 5:00 pm. The main business activity in the area ceases at approximately 6:00 pm, and virtually all business activity terminates at about 2:00 am in the surrounding area. Surveys have indicated that traffic, both vehicular and pedestrian, is at its lowest ebb between 2:30 am and 5:00 am.

From June 13, 1956 through June 26, 1956, pretext telephone calls were made to the CHLA at various times in the early morning hours between 1:00 and 6:00 am and no answers were received.

The main activity of the CHLA is centered on the weekend periods, mainly on Sundays. Surveys have indicated there is usually no one in the main rooms of the CHLA after 9:00 pm at night and a source has advised that the CHLA usually opens around 11:00 am on weekdays.

A survey conducted on the night of August 1-2, 1957 from 9:00 pm on August 1 to 8:30 am on August 2, 1957 indicated that the CHLA was unoccupied during that period. No activity at all was noted.

A survey of the CHLA was conducted on the evening of August 5-6, 1957 and it was conducted from 8:30 pm on August 5 to 8:00 am on August 6, 1957. At the beginning of the survey it was noted that a light was on in the back of the CHLA and the windows were open.

At 10:40 pm a Chinese male was observed closing the windows. He did not close them completely but left them slightly open.

A minute or so later, the light went out and at 10:45 pm three Chinese males emerged from the street entrance at 191 Canal Street and walked west along Canal Street.

From then until the end of the survey the CHLA was in complete darkness and no further activity was noted.

It is contemplated that physical surveillances will be placed on the CHLA from 9:00 pm until 8:00 am for two days prior to the development of the contemplated source, and from 9:00 pm on the evening before up through the development of the source. Spot telephone calls will be made to the CHLA at various times in the early morning hours in order to determine if anyone is in there.

It is believed that the best for the assignment to take place is between the hours of 2:30 am and 4:00 am, on a weekday morning.

Security will be assured prior to entry on this operation.

IV. PURPOSE OF THIS ASSIGNMENT

It is expected that the highly confidential and anonymous source will make available both membership and financial statements of the CHLA. It is also expected that the official relationship between the CHLA and CDN as well as the general Chinese Communist activity in the New York area, will be established. It is also felt that this source will establish that liaison exists between the "Peoples Republic of China", and the pro-Communist element in the United States. This source may also disclose any official connection between the CPUSA and the pro-Communist Chinese groups in the United States.

V. PERSONNEL

71(c) Special Agents [redacted] and [redacted] have been responsible for developing the contemplated source.

The CHLA investigation in the New York Division is assigned to SA [redacted]

The Special Agents who are expected to take part in the assignment are:

[REDACTED]

Special Agent [REDACTED] will be present on this assignment and in charge of this operation.

The operation will take place between 2:30 am and 3:30 am on Friday, August 9, 1957.

At about 8:00 pm on August 8, 1957, or as soon as it is dark SAs [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] will go up to the roof top plant across from 191 Canal Street with one handy talky and a pair of field glasses. They will keep the CHLA under constant surveillance.

At about 1:00 am the rest of the agents will move into the area in radio cars staying away from 191 Canal Street until advised by the agents on the roof that the CHLA is empty.

A pretext telephone call will be made to the CHLA at this time. At about 1:30 am SA [REDACTED] will replace SA [REDACTED] on the roof. SA [REDACTED] will use the field glasses to keep track of pedestrians on Canal Street. SA [REDACTED] will handle the handy talky.

The following is a summary of the attempts to develop highly confidential anonymous sources and misur coverage in connection with the Top-Hoodlum Program.

As the Bureau is aware [redacted] was developed and contacted on 12/13/57 at the apartment residence of [redacted] [redacted] resulted in the obtaining of valuable information in that case. At the time of the development of this source consideration was given also to the possibility of misur coverage of the apartment, however, it was ascertained through pretext interview of the building superintendent that the latter, although not hostile, was uncooperative and could not be relied upon to render any assistance whatsoever either in developing a highly confidential anonymous source or in effecting misur coverage. The highly confidential anonymous source was developed without the cooperation or even the knowledge of the superintendent and the presence within the premises therefore necessarily was and would have to be of a short duration. This circumstance together with the unreluctant superintendent and the fact that there is no available close-by suitable apartment which could be utilized as a plant suggests the possibility of a misur at this time. However, consideration will be given to an additional future contact of [redacted] and in the event of changing circumstances to future misur coverage.

Attempts were made to develop a highly confidential anonymous source at the apartment residence of [REDACTED]. A pretext interview was made of the building superintendent. It was determined that the superintendent was very cooperative and volunteered [REDACTED] apartment was the [REDACTED]. He pointed out that [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] is also indicated that during the past few weeks while [REDACTED] away a [REDACTED] very often stationed himself on the [REDACTED] apartment and apparently was watching for any activity there. Upon the return [REDACTED] to their apartment discreet surveillances will be set up in an effort to determine the pattern of their activities in an attempt to develop a highly confidential and anonymous source at their residence.

An attempt was made to develop a highly confidential anonymous source at the apartment residence of [REDACTED]. It was determined that the building is serviced by a [REDACTED]. A pretext interview disclosed that the [REDACTED] and probably is receiving [REDACTED]. An apartment could not be made, under the present circumstances, which would be discreet or secure.

In an effort to develop a highly confidential anonymous source at the apartment [REDACTED] pretext interview revealed that this building is serviced by a [REDACTED]. The superintendent is not hostile and is somewhat cooperative, however, he has indicated [REDACTED] and treats the building [REDACTED] personnel well. A discreet and secure entry here does not appear to be too practical, however, efforts are continuing to develop further possibilities at the building.

In connection with the development of highly confidential anonymous sources and the effecting of misur coverage discreet surveillances of Top-Hoodlum subjects have been conducted on a continuing basis. As a result of these surveillances several hang-outs of the subjects surveilled have been determined as well as associates identified through car registrations. Information concerning these results has been set out in the weekly summary airtels. In addition, information concerning their employments and business establishments has been obtained and this data is being checked for the possibility of developing highly confidential anonymous sources at these places.

The surveillances have revealed that [redacted] almost daily uses his [redacted] in travelling from his residence in New Jersey to his hangouts in and around [redacted] New York and is often accompanied in the car by various hoodlums. In connection with the use of his car consideration was given to the possibility of installing an in-car transmitter and a survey was made in this regard. It was determined [redacted] purchased his car at [redacted] NYC, and that the agency usually services his car as they did with his previous cars. A potential confidential informant [redacted] of the [redacted] of the owner was developed and was in a position to assist in the setting up of this installation. However, he recently had [redacted] [redacted] however, expects to be rehired in the [redacted] near future and close contact is being maintained with him in order to set up the above possible installation.

Surveillances have also revealed that [REDACTED] operates a [REDACTED] sedan which is registered to the [REDACTED] New York City, which is his place of business. It was determined from these surveillances, however, [REDACTED] keeps this car in [REDACTED] in the vicinity of his apartment house and during the past two weeks has used it [REDACTED]. The present indications are that little or no activity is carried on in this car. The surveillances have indicated, however, that during the past week [REDACTED] picked up in a [REDACTED] registered to [REDACTED] New York, and was driven to his place of business. In the event future surveillances show a continuous or periodic use of this car consideration will be given to the possibility of an in-car transmitter.

Surveillances on [REDACTED] revealed that he has been picked up [REDACTED] in the past two weeks in a [REDACTED] registered to [REDACTED] N.Y. Re memos 10/14 and 10/24/58.

As pointed out in my memo of 10/24/58, a highly confidential and anonymous source [REDACTED] was initially contacted and developed at the residence of the subjects at Apartment [REDACTED] NY, NY. The contact proved to be an excellent one and the material obtained was current and of great interest in nature. & u

It is anticipated that a recontact will be made with this source on 11/5/58. Bureau authority was obtained for the initial development of this source, and is again necessary for its recontact. Appropriate correspondence will be prepared and submitted as of 11/8/58, requesting the Bureau's authority for a continuing contact of this source. & u

I. BACKGROUND

The National Office, the New York Local, and various publishing ventures of the Socialist Workers Party (SWP) have their headquarters on the second, third and fourth floor of 116 University Place, New York City. Party records, correspondence, membership lists, etc. are maintained on these premises. The Bureau has recently instructed that all offices with active SWP branches under investigation should intensify their investigations in view of the recent examples of the SWP seizing the initiative from the CP in some fields.

II. SECURITY ASPECTS

The building at 116 University Place is a four story building with the Sherbee Antique Shop occupying the ground floor (with its own entrance) and the SWP occupying the upper floors. The Sherbee Antique Shop is not open on Sundays and it has been found that foot and vehicle traffic in the neighborhood is at its least on Sundays.

It is contemplated that entry will be made on 4/19-20/59, by use of key previously obtained to SWP headquarters. Security will be assured prior to entry. After entry is made, the entrance to the building will be made secure. Security guards will be discreetly placed outside the building and will be in radio contact with agents developing this source.

It is noted that sources at SWP headquarters, [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] were developed on 11/22/58 and have been successfully contacted since.

III. PURPOSE OF ASSIGNMENT

To complete survey to expand coverage of misur to cover the other floors of SWP headquarters and further contact of source [REDACTED] to obtain additional documents regarding SWP membership and top-level activities, especially material on the 4th floor where National Headquarters are located.

On 1/28/59 I telephonically communicated with Mr. JAMES MALLEY of the Bureau for the purpose of obtaining authorization to develop a highly confidential anonymous source at the business office [REDACTED] NY Top Hoodlum.

I advised Mr. MALLEY that [REDACTED] was in a [REDACTED] story building at [REDACTED] NYC, and that his office was the [REDACTED] on the [REDACTED] floor. I pointed out that the superintendent [REDACTED] was most cooperative and had volunteered access to the building which was under his control during the early morning hours [REDACTED] would not be present during the development of the source and the agents once inside could control the building with full security and could keep it locked with elevator service cut off and the stair well secured.

Mr. MALLEY gave authorization upon the assurance of full security.

RE: SOCIALIST WORKERS PARTY,

HEREIN
DATE 3-4-81

SPATMP

I. BACKGROUND

The National Office, the New York Local, and various publishing ventures of the Socialist Workers Party (SWP) have their headquarters on the second, third and fourth floor of 116 University Place, New York City. Party records, correspondence, membership lists, etc. are maintained on these premises. The Bureau has recently instructed that all offices with active SWP branches under investigation should intensify their investigations in view of the recent examples of the SWP seizing the motive from the CP in some fields.

II. SECURITY ASPECTS

The building at 116 University Place is a four story building with the Sherbee Antique Shop occupying the ground floor (with its own entrance) and the SWP occupying the upper floors. The Sherbee Antique Shop is not open on Sundays and it has been found that foot and vehicle traffic in the neighborhood is at its least on Sundays.

25 It is contemplated that entry will be made on Sunday, 1/26/59, by use of key previously obtained to SWP headquarters. Security will be assured prior to entry. After entry is made, the entrance to the building will be made secure. Security guards will be discreetly placed outside the building and will be in radio contact with agents developing this source.

It is noted that sources at SWP headquarters and [redacted] were developed on 11/22/58 and have been successfully contacted since.

It is believed that the subject has been a member of the CP for approximately [redacted] years and is currently quite active and is possibly a [redacted] New York State CP. (u)

III. Purpose (u)

It is believed the establishment of this investigative technique will produce valuable information and perhaps membership identification of the [redacted] New York State CP. The above-mentioned interior survey revealed the presence of a large bookcase and desk in the subject's living room. (u)

IV. Sources (u)

The [redacted] NYC, [redacted] has been extremely cooperative with the writer. During the course of the investigation, he turned over for the writer's disposal [redacted]

V. Plan of Entry (u)

7/15) A suitable surveillance will be instituted early Friday, 5/27/60, in order to determine the subject's destination for the week end. A survey of the subject's apartment building has revealed considerable traffic between floors of the tenants during the day and early evening hours. However, after 9 p.m. in the evening, the building is relatively quiet. The entry party, equipped with a camera unit and a handy talkie radio could utilize the empty apartment on the second floor until an appropriate time late Friday evening. This would furnish maximum interior security. Outside security would be maintained by a radio car unit parked in the vicinity. (u)

7/15) The entry party will be under the supervision of [redacted] and entry will not be made until the subject and all members of his immediate family are under surveillance and have been taken a considerable distance from his apartment. (u)

The FPCC National Office is located in room 329 at 799 Broadway, NYC, which building houses five organizations, subversive in character, all of which organizations are subjects of current investigations in Division IV of this office. Agents assigned to Division IV had developed a live source at this building who, on an almost monthly basis, has been able to furnish access to the quarters of the organizations in interest.

As a result, during the Spring of 1961 [REDACTED] was developed, which source furnished information concerning the books and records of the captioned organization. In all, this source to date has been contacted four times, each time having furnished invaluable information concerning the captioned organization. This source was last contacted during September, 1961.

It is anticipated that, in coordination with agents of Division IV, that this source will be recontacted on Sunday evening, 5/20/62, with particular emphasis on the correspondence and financial records of the FPCC. If approved, SAs [REDACTED] and the writer will participate.

It is requested that appropriate authority be furnished for contact of this source, as outlined above.

I. BACKGROUND

The YOUNG SOCIALIST ALLIANCE (YSA) is the youth organization of the SWP. The SWP utilizes the YSA to further its aims and goals and the YSA is considered, in addition to the action group of the SWP, as the main source of recruits into the Party. The leadership of the YSA on a national basis in NYC and throughout the U.S. on various local bases is composed of SWP members.

individual pursues his profession, together with [REDACTED] This activity transpires during the daytime [REDACTED] does not reside on these premises and is not known to frequent the premises in the evening hours.

The YSA Headquarters are located on the second floor loft space. The YSA moved into these headquarters on 9/21/62. Numerous spot checks of the area have shown very limited pedestrian and automobile traffic after midnight. The buildings adjacent to this location between 12th and 13th Streets, on both sides of the street, are commercial establishments and lofts, and contain no residence.

It has been ascertained that the paint store at this building closes at 6:00 p.m. and that all of the commercial establishments in this area close business between 5:00 and 6:00 p.m.

By means of a suitable pretext by the writer on 9/25/62, keys were obtained to both the street entrance ~~to the second and third floor lofts~~, together with the key to the entrance of the YSA space on the second floor.

Entrance will be made between the hours of twelve midnight and 4:00 a.m., on 9/28/62 [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] In addition to the above security precautions, agents will be assigned security duty in the vicinity of 125 Fourth Avenue, and will be in radio contact with agents contacting the highly confidential source.

Explanation of why original list was destroyed:

As set out above, the lists were destroyed by SA [REDACTED] who has since resigned. The supervisor of the Section handling the matter at that time was former SA [REDACTED] although there is no indication in the file that any SA other than [REDACTED] took part in the decision to destroy the exhibit.

The reason for destruction of the exhibit cannot be determined without consulting former SA [REDACTED] or possibly former SA [REDACTED] who might recall issuing instructions relating to the destruction of exhibits at the time. However, a probable reason for the destruction of the exhibit might be offered as follows: (1) The contents of the exhibit had been recorded in the file and disseminated to appropriate auxiliary offices; (2) The source of the exhibit was of such a nature that it could never be used as evidence; (3) Therefore, further retention of the original exhibit would not have been warranted and it was destroyed so that it would not take up storage space.

Determination whether list was accurately described:

Re my memorandum 11/2/53 requesting Newark to endeavor to develop a confidential source at [REDACTED] to determine if information could be thereby obtained concerning subject which would be of value in this investigation.

On instant date SA [REDACTED] of Newark telephonically advised me it had been ascertained that an FBI agent would necessarily have to get permission of the CIC agent of the Army who was assigned to [REDACTED] to develop this source. He said that the CIC agent is a resident agent of the 103th CIC Detachment whose location is in Newark, New Jersey; that he is certain that if contact is made with this CIC agent it would be necessary for him to obtain permission of the CIC resident agency which in turn would have to secure the permission of [REDACTED] of Governors Island.

SA [REDACTED] suggested that it may be more expeditious to contact [REDACTED] in the original instance and suggested that SA [REDACTED] of the New York Division who is well acquainted with [REDACTED] be requested to make this contact. SA [REDACTED] stated that if this is deemed advisable he would appreciate it if SA [REDACTED] would also secure permission for the development of the same type of source concerning the subject that Newark has under investigation. Subsequently [REDACTED] called from the Bureau and advised the letter should be taken to Washington and directly to the office of Asst. Dir. Donald J. Parsons, who has already been briefed concerning this matter.

I told [REDACTED] that we would be submitting recommendations on further action and at that time, Mr. A. H. Belmont spoke with me and indicated it would be desirable to hold off any action until the letter is examined so that the best course of action can be decided upon.

At 1:40 P.M., I spoke with ASAC Johnson, Boston, and suggested that they hold off until the Bureau decides upon the best course of action.

SA [REDACTED] was dispatched to the Bureau with instructions to proceed immediately to Mr. Parsons' office.

House in question is situated in reasonably crowded suburban area of inexpensive single homes. Close neighbors are situated on both sides, across the street, and to the rear of the house, which is situated in an exposed and prominent location on a bank several feet above the street level. House is new and landscaping incomplete. There are no trees or shrubs to provide any degree of privacy. DE [REDACTED] (C)

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] A check of the Detroit criss-cross directories note that a large portion of the inhabitants in the aforementioned neighborhoods appear to be of Polish extraction.

[REDACTED] The neighborhood is in a "poor" locality; however, the apartment building appears extremely "well maintained."
An examination of the criss-cross directory does not indicate that the occupants are predominantly of a foreign nationality.
The neighborhood [REDACTED] is in a "poor" and "mixed" (C) neighborhood.

The Bureau's and New York's attention is invited to the fact that in order to establish Anonymous Informants at the aforementioned residences, it would be necessary to conduct appropriate neighborhood inquiries under pretext to establish neighborhood sources, complete lists regarding occupants and figures to determine the pattern of activities with respect to the occupants in question.

Since many of the neighborhoods consist of inhabitants of foreign extraction, it has been this Office's experience that such persons are of a "suspicious" nature and it would be extremely difficult to discreetly obtain pertinent information regarding residents in that locale which would be so necessary in the development of a successful anonymous informant. Figures could not be maintained for extended period of time, without arousing the curiosity of neighbors.

In view of the delicate nature of this inquiry, and that Detroit's investigation has been restricted to record checks and contact with established sources, it is felt that suggestion #4 would possibly be productive in the event of any future contact. However, this would not insure that the requested information could be ascertained through this method.

[REDACTED] (C)
It should be realized however that the relatives in Detroit undoubtedly will be ultimately interviewed when this case is brought to a logical conclusion and the pretext previously utilized would be obvious to them.

The Bureau's and OO's observations and suggestions are solicited with respect to the above comments.

THIS SERIAL SHOULD BE MAINTAINED AS TOP SERIAL IN THIS FILE.

On 6/28/76, a comprehensive review of the material contained in this volume was conducted by me. There is no question in my mind that each and every item, with the exception of the top serial which is a memorandum from [REDACTED] dated 7/14/72 which should remain unclassified, contained in this volume requires classification of at least "Confidential", exemption category 2 (intelligence sources and methods) with automatic declassification.

[REDACTED]

Departmental attorneys assigned to the Civil Rights Division who recently conducted investigation in the NYO, had access to this volume and made xerox copies of six memoranda covering the period from 4/3/70 to 7/14/72. Five of these memoranda, in my opinion, warrant classification of "Confidential", have been individually so stamped, and the Bureau will be requested by teletype to handle appropriate classification at the Department.

The classifying officer is myself, #6392, and the date of the classification affixed as 6/28/76.

Re my memo 6/8/54, placing a key to the Sholem Studios, 11 West 18th Street, New York City, which was the headquarters for subject group, in the Tel-Kee cabinet in the office of ASAC D. E. Moore.

Inasmuch as the JYF is no longer active and instant case is in a closed status, the retention of this key serves no purpose and accordingly it is being destroyed.

In connection with keys maintained in NYO which pertain to confidential techniques employed, the following procedure is recommended:

- (1) Keys obtained for the purpose of carrying out confidential techniques will be maintained under the control, supervision, and custody of the ASAC of the Division handling the cases to which they pertain. They will be maintained in a locked Tel-Kee cabinet at all times. The Tel-Kee cabinet will be maintained in the office of the ASAC. The keys will be released to investigative personnel by the interested ASAC only.
- (2) Upon receipt of a key pertaining to a confidential technique by an investigative Agent, a memorandum will be prepared by him for the subfile of the June file. This is File No. 66-6182-A. This memo, prepared by the investigative Agent, will describe the premises to which the key pertains and any other data believed essential, describing the premises and the utilization of the key. This memo should also include a comment as to the probable duration for which the key should be retained.
- (3) All ASACs maintaining Tel-Kee cabinets with keys pertaining to confidential techniques contained therein, will maintain an administrative tickler on each key in order that he may assure himself periodically whether or not further retention of the key is necessary. If it is ascertained that the key is no longer necessary, appropriate action should be taken to so record this fact in NY File 66-6182-A, and to appropriately dispose of the key.

NOTE: This memo will be the basis for opening a subfile of the June File -- 66-6182 and will be designated as 66-6182-A. (u)

Each ASAC having a Tel-Kee cabinet on keys utilized in connection with confidential techniques must have prepared by the investigative Agent interested in such keys a separate memo, as indicated in Item 2 above, for the Subfile of the June File -- 66-6182-A. When all memoranda have been written, the ASAC should advise [redacted] of same. (u)

Alarm Systems

It has been learned that many of the new apartment houses and office buildings have equipped the space occupied by their tenants with alarm systems, which will alert representatives of the management when unauthorized persons enter the space of their tenants. The alarm is activated by the tenant when he leaves his space, and is deactivated when he returns.

[REDACTED] has brief write-ups on the security setups in a number of office and apartment house buildings where we have made investigations in connection with ITSP violations. These write-ups are available for review to any Agent having an interest in the alarm system in any particular building.

A DIRECT CONTROL FROM APARTMENT TO BUILDING LOBBY...WHICH SETS OFF AN ALARM IN A FLASH WHEN AN INTRUDER ENTERS WHILE A TENANT IS OUT.

How The Guardsman Alarm System Operates . . .

When a tenant leaves his or her apartment, the tenant informs the doorman who in turn immediately activates the electronically controlled GUARDSMAN ALARM SYSTEM which automatically puts the apartment on the alert.

Upon the tenant's return to the building the doorman deactivates the apartment. If during the tenant's absence anyone attempts to enter the apartment through the door or tampers with the door, the GUARDSMAN Control Panel alerts the proper authorities who will take immediate action.

What the Guardsman Alarm System means to the tenant and owner

1. Tenants have greater peace of mind and safety.
2. Insurance rates are lower particularly in buildings located in areas of high crime incidence.
3. Tenant can leave the apartment for a day, week or month and the Guardsman Alarm System will be on the constant alert.

I have been informed by Agents of the NYO, who attended a school on 8/3/61 conducted by [REDACTED] of the Bureau Laboratory, in the latest developments in document examination, that the techniques discussed by [REDACTED] have proved very valuable in the handling of highly confidential sources of the NYO.

These Agents have stated that the instruction they received has helped decrease the area of risk considerably in the handling of these highly confidential sources.

We are most appreciative of the excellent instruction afforded by SA [REDACTED] and appreciate the Bureau's making his services available to us.

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : SAC, NY

FROM : ASAC I. D. MACLENNAN

SUBJECT: [REDACTED]

DATE: 11/28/56

Re memos, 11/7, 15/56 [REDACTED]

On 11/27/56 the writer discussed this matter with [REDACTED] of the Bureau. At that time [REDACTED] indicated that he felt that there were some men in the NYO who had had fairly recent training in [REDACTED]. He stated he would check his records and let me know.

On 11/28/56 [REDACTED] telephonically advised that the Bureau's records reflect that in September and October, 1956 SAS [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] attended a special two-weeks school at the Bureau which covered just this phase of training in [REDACTED]. Under the circumstances [REDACTED] felt that before proceeding with any further training we should specifically ascertain whether these men are, in fact, capable of handling the work.

I then discussed with [REDACTED] his reaction to the suggestion that when additional personnel are trained they include a photographer on the theory they were less susceptible to training and on many occasions a photographer would be an adjunct to the [REDACTED] operation. [REDACTED] indicated he would look favorably upon this suggestion in the event the above named three Agents were not capable at the present time to handle [REDACTED] assignments. [REDACTED] did point out that if such were the case it would be an indication that their school was not successful.

NOTE: It is noted that none of the above three men are listed in our Special Book and same should be revised.

TO : SAC, NEW YORK

DATE: 11/15/56

FROM : [REDACTED] (#6)

SUBJECT: ~~SEC. MAT.~~ (Re: [REDACTED])

Reference is made to my prior memo suggesting a photographic or stenographic personnel be afforded training.

On 11/15/56, the writer had occasion to require this ability on an emergency basis involving the investigation of the [REDACTED] who fled this country for the Soviet Union in possession of American atomic secrets. Particular incident involved an emergency use of the [REDACTED] technique. I examined a list of those agents who have had this training. Of the six listed, three indicated that they had not had any practice for from five to ten years with this technique. They were willing to make their services available, but expressed doubts as to their ability to do a satisfactory job after so long a period of inactivity.

The remaining three were not available in the office in time to be of assistance in this particular case. The writer does not know whether these remaining three would consider themselves sufficiently experienced to handle the assignment.

The agents who have indicated that lack of recent experience might preclude them from a successful operation are: SAS [REDACTED]

SAS [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] were not available for use on this assignment.

It is again requested that consideration be given to training someone in the photographic laboratory in this technique. It is believed by training such personnel, that the personnel will be available when necessary to utilize this technique. They would combine the technique with photographic ability, which is always a necessary requisite in any [REDACTED] matter.

JUNE

You are aware that [REDACTED] has been transferred to the Office of the Legal Attache, Bonn, Germany, and is expected to depart this office on or about 12/1/56, for Germany.

[REDACTED] has for many years served this office on [REDACTED] assignments. The writer is aware that agents of the office have received Bureau training in [REDACTED] and these agents are assigned to various squads throughout the office. The writer does not know the degree of proficiency of many of these agents to handle a [REDACTED] assignment.

It is suggested that you may wish to give consideration to having the Bureau train additional office personnel in [REDACTED]. It is further suggested that such training be afforded responsible clerical, stenographic or photographic personnel rather than agent personnel. In every [REDACTED] assignment there is required either photographic ability or stenographic ability to fulfill our responsibilities. If the [REDACTED] training was combined in this type personnel it would enable the person handling the [REDACTED] assignment to complete the assignment rapidly and efficiently. Time is always of the essence in such assignments.

It is believed that this suggestion has the added merit that our experienced stenographic and photographic personnel have been with us many years and can be expected to be with us many more years, thus the value of the training afforded would not be lost, as it is when agent personnel is trained, by reason of the transfer of the agent personnel.

It was agreed that this training should be deferred until a date in the future.

The following individuals indicated a desire to attend X-Ray Training School. However, they were not recommended by their Supervisors, as their services could not be spared:

X-ray Equipment - Training

DATE: 11/20/56

SA [REDACTED] has advised me that he is interested in being trained in the use of x-ray equipment for possible assignment to this type of duty in the NYO.

As to background, SA [REDACTED] has held a Second Class Radiog. Telegraph and Telephone License. He has served as a monitoring officer for the Bureau in CW radio. He has had a course in General and Modern Physics while in college and has a degree in chemistry. He has also had many years of experience as a Bureau sound man.

Although I feel that he may be qualified for this type of training by the Bureau by reason of his background, as set out above, I should like to point out that his services as a sound man are very urgently needed and in view of the present trend in this type of activity, I feel that assigning him to x-ray training at this time would not serve to benefit the Bureau. Therefore, I do not recommend him for the x-ray equipment training.

X-ray Equipment - Training

SA  has advised me that he is interested in receiving the Bureau training in x-ray equipment for possible assignment of this type work in the NYO.

In looking into  background, I find that he has had training, while in the Army, in Morse Code and procedure, and also some training as a radio operator. He has worked in radio communications both in the Army and in the Bureau. He manifests an interest and aptitude in electrical appliances and equipment related to sound work. He has had some experience in sound work. He has his degree in Primary and Secondary Education from the University of Minnesota.

I do not feel that his background qualifies him for the x-ray training nor could we conveniently spare him from his present assignment on Section 4 without having a replacement. Therefore, I do not recommend him for this assignment.

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : SAC, NEW YORK

DATE: 11/29/56

FROM : SA [REDACTED]

[JUNE]

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

At 11:30 A.M., 11/29/56, Assistant Director DONALD PARSONS of the Bureau telephonically contacted SA [REDACTED] concerning use of the X-ray machine [REDACTED].

PARSONS made reference to a prior conversation with SA [REDACTED] wherein he indicated a desire to train certain agents in NY in the use of this machine. He felt that his commitments at this time were such that this training could not be given at this particular moment. He wanted my views. I told him that NY, of course, recognizes the demands placed on the Laboratory and that if this training was not available at this time, we would accept it whenever it was available. PARSONS mentioned that there has not been too much travel by the Laboratory technicians on this project, and that certain electronic equipment was being marked in such a way that it will show up when photographed by the X-ray machine. ca

I gained the impression that PARSONS, at least at this time, desired to retain control of the X-ray machine in the Laboratory. This factor, together with the other commitments which preclude training of personnel here in NY, was such that I agreed we should defer that training until a date in the future. ca
